PC Proposal Would Have Ridings Hold Straw Votes on Leader

Special To The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — A new weapon has been brought into the Conservative leadership battle — an informal version of the American presidential primaries.

The party's student federation and several MPs are planning to hold mock elections in which Conservative supporters will cast ballots for their choice as party leader.

An I. to A. Diefenbaker - Donald Jean Drapeau - Davie Fulton - George Hees - Mike Star - Alvin Hamilton and assorted - Conservative - Company sort of thing could be the result.

Young (38) Conservative MP Howard Grafftey of Brome Missisquoi made the suggestion Thursday and plans to stump the country to "sell" it to Conservatives. A United States - style primary in all 263 constituencies would give card-carrying party members a direct voice in the choice of a leader.

It would amount to a series of province-wide popularity contests with the party members "writing in" on their ballots, their choice for the leadership.

Anti - Diefenbaker Conservatives are confident such straw polls will reveal a dramatic drop in John Diefenbaker's popularity and influence him to retire before the party leadership convention later this year.

Several pro-Diefenbaker MPs from the prairies are also toying with the idea, but for the opposite reason. They regard The Chief as the friend of the "little guy" and the enemy of "the eastern interests."

To many ranks that way? No, not necessarily, believes Mr. Grafftey, certainly not many more than would be making a run for it anyway.

His words these "primaries" held between now and the convention, beginning at once, with the candidate going about the country presenting themselves to party members and discussing the issues of the day.

He suggests the convention be scheduled for early fall — a compromise as he sees it between the Diefenbaker partisans who want it this spring, and the supporters of Dalton Camp's contention that it shouldn't be held until late autumn.

Any party member could vote in such primaries, being required only to agree to this stipulation:

Apart from that, the ballot would be blank.

Out of it, says Mr. Grafftey, could come a dark horse, "and make the final race all that more exciting."

Further, on the basis of the primary vote, each of the candidates, those openly in the running, and those hanging back waiting for a draft-call, would have a clear indication of how they stood.

Best of all, believes Mr. Grafftey, such popularity contests would give every voting and working Conservative a chance to "bet" with his primary ballot, on the race.

It would "Democratize" the convention, as he sees it.

Michael Vineberg, president of the Conservative Student Federation, said in a separate interview he will ask 20 Conservative clubs at universities and colleges to hold similar elections. The students hope to send at least 65 delegates to the leadership convention.

With a crucial meeting of the party executive opening in Toronto Saturday, Mr. Diefenbaker and his wife Olive leave today for a short holiday in Florida.

They are expected back in Ottawa Wednesday, but a spokesman said there is a possibility they will fly to Barbados for a longer rest.

Mr. Grafftey said "pre-convention elections" will be held soon in his Quebec riding.

Conservative supporters would be invited to vote for their favorite candidate at 30 polling places throughout the rural riding, using blank ballots. Many other MPs are reported planning similar straw polls.

Two Provinces Hit Labor With Anti-Strike Plans

Wall Poster Reports China Clash Kills 100

TOKYO (CP)—A wall newspaper in Peking reported today that more than 100 persons were killed and many wounded in clashes between supporters and opponents of Mao Tse-tung in China's remote Sinkiang province.

The wall newspaper, reported by Japan's Kyodo news service, said the fighting occurred in the city of Shihotzu, in the northwestern province bordering the Soviet Union.

The report did not specify when the clashes occurred, but indicated it was a fresh outbreak in the province where anti-Mao forces have been reported dug in and putting up strong resistance.

The poster said most of the Red Army troops in the area are backing the anti - Mao provincial military commander and the head of the provincial party committee.

Kyodo, quoting another wall newspaper in Peking, said the situation in Sinkiang province is "too tense for a deputy military commander there to settle."

Quoting a dispatch from Urumuchi, provincial capital of Sinkiang, the report of fighting in Shihotzu said machine-guns, rifles, field artillery and hand grenades were used in clashes.

The New China news agency admitted that opposition had cropped up in Manchuria and around Shanghai, both areas where Mao's group had claimed victories.

Japanese reports from the mainland told of wall newspapers in Peking reporting that Premier Chou En-lai had informed Mao "the recovery of authority has only started."

Other wall newspapers said that Mao's chief purge administrator, Chen Po-ta, had complained that Red Guards in the capital were "failing behind the rest of the country."

Mao's own propaganda outlets indicated the shape the struggle was taking. There was growing emphasis on the military, and the New China news agency poured out thousands of words claiming army support at the "decisive moment" routed anti-Mao forces in Shensi province and the Manchurian industrial city of Pinkiang (harbin).

Wall newspapers also told of trouble in Tibet, an army of 10,000 military veterans organized against Mao in Sinkiang, and anti-Mao upheaval in Inner Mongolia.

There was no way of verifying the reports, but observers in Tokyo pointed out that violence in Pinkiang and Shansi was first reported in wall newspapers and then admitted by Mao's news outlets in reports that the army had quelled the uprisings.

Embassy Picketed

PEKING (Reuters) — Thousands of Red Guards and students demonstrated outside the Soviet Embassy here today as China unleashed its fiercest invective yet against the "filthy Soviet revisionist swine" in the Kremlin.

A People's Daily editorial on alleged beatings of Chinese students by Moscow police said their "atrocious, bloody suppression of the Chinese students resembles the atrocities committed by the Czar, by Hitler, and by the Ku Klux Klan."

The editorial, quoted by the New China news agency, urged its readers to "hit back hard at the violent provocations of the filthy Soviet revisionist swine."

Women Tell Why Quit Prison Posts

OTTAWA (CP)—The Kingston prison for women has developed into "a maximum security institution" without professional staff at a time when the emphasis of the federal penal system is supposed to be on rehabilitation of prisoners, a Commons - Senate committee was told Thursday.

This picture emerged as three women told the committee why they resigned key posts in the prison last year.

They were Isabel Macneill, superintendent from 1960 to last March; Margaret Benson, psychologist from 1961 to late Aug. 12, and Mrs. M. E. Batstone, who quit last Oct. 26 after nine years as the prison social worker.

Earlier this week, Penitentiaries Commissioner J. A. MacLeod told the committee that the service is seeking 15 psychologists but he said public atmosphere makes it difficult to get professionals.

At the same time, Solicitor-General Pennell said rehabilitation is being stressed.

Miss Macneill said Mr. MacLeod hired her and backed her up, but trouble began in 1962 when she became responsible to a regional director rather than the commissioner.

The regional director insisted that security measures in the prison for women, with about 110 prisoners, be the same as those for the 2,000 male prisoners in nearby Kingston penitentiary, she said.

The result was that a successful program in the — men's prison was "gradually strangled."

Mrs. Batstone said she resigned when it became evident that a philosophy of rehabilitation was being replaced by a militant custodial one.

Using Their Heads to Promote School Spirit

That's what this group of Grade 10 students were doing this week, unofficially designated as "school spirit week" at BCI. For the past several days, each grade has been using a different approach in an attempt to draw attention to the importance of enthusiasm in school activities. The above group decided to use an "original hat" theme.

Transport Bill Passed Finally

OTTAWA (CP) — A two-day wrangle over the legality of an amendment the government sought for its new transport bill ended Thursday in a victory for the Conservative opposition.

It marked the final contentious note in the clause-by-clause study of the massive bill, which ended late Thursday night after 15 days of debate.

The bill, introduced last September, now needs only routine third reading before going to the Senate.

When it finally becomes law, sometime within the next six weeks, the bill will cut the railways free of most federal controls over rate - making and let competition rather than regulation become the governing factor in rates.

There was only one major point of controversy as the marathon debate reached its final round. It led to the ditching of a major government amendment.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux upheld a Conservative claim that the amendment was an attempt to reverse a House vote last week which deleted a section ordering a cost study of the Crowsnest Pass freight rates on export grain.

Joe Smallwood Blasts Unions

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Organized labor was dealt a strong blow in two provincial legislatures Thursday.

Premier Joseph Smallwood of Newfoundland proposed legislation to outlaw all hospital strikes.

In Quebec, Premier Daniel Johnson said his government is being forced to withdraw the right to strike from Quebec teachers.

Labor Minister Clyde Wells introduced the measure in the Newfoundland House in stiffness to end a three-day outlawed hospital strike at Grand Falls. Under the proposal, given second reading Thursday night, unions that strike against hospitals face decertification.

Premier Smallwood blasted the unions, Local 900 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, as "the same union which threw masses of men around hot hospitals in Quebec and turned back ambulances."

The bill orders Local 900 to end its strike "within 24 hours after this act comes into force" or face decertification. The employees will be rehired if they return to work in that time.

Charges of brutality and ruthlessness were levelled at the Canadian Union of Public Employees during the debate. The government said it was trying to head off a succession of strikes and usurpation of the legislature's right to spend public funds.

The strikers walked out Tuesday to back wage demands and forcing a cabinet decree of a state of emergency that made any strike illegal.

At a mass labor rally Thursday night in Grand Falls, 15 separate unions pledged support and organizer John MacMillan of the CUPE offered to "go to jail and rot there" to support the strike. David Lewis, head of an office workers local in Grand Falls, said "if little Napoleon gets away with this we're all finished."

Premier Smallwood, who said the situation resembled a bitter longer strike centred around Grand Falls in 1959, charged the CUPE with employing "Communist tactics" and trying to "wipe out the social order."

He said it was the second time in five months the union had shown disregard for such an emergency decree. The first was at Western Memorial Hospital in Corner Brook, where a local threatened to strike after the decree but eventually received its increases without action.

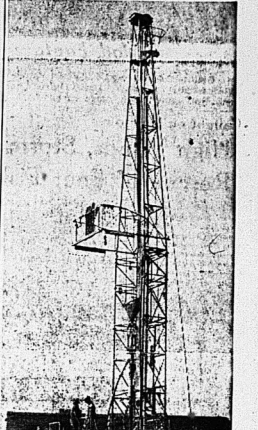
"They told the lawmakers where they could go," the premier said. "They could go to hell." Why couldn't the union wait for the budget?

"They wanted to tell this house when it would pay and how much and to whom. We shed blood to take that right away from the monarch. Now, are we going to give it to a union?"

In Quebec, Premier Johnson, speaking on the current teachers' strike which has thrown 217,000 children out of school, said the serious part of the affair is that public opinion is being aroused against the teachers.

"The members of this house are being forced to pronounce themselves against the right to strike. We are in favor of this right, but a mechanism must be found to put an end to this situation."

Teachers were given the right to strike when the provincial labor code was adopted in 1964.



Rigged for Gas

Consumers' Gas, Toronto, is continuing its search for gas or underground storage space in Prince Edward County this week at the Cherry Valley farm of Lyle Hicks. It follows earlier testing two weeks ago in Amelisburg-township—part of an overall exploratory program by Consumers' in the area. Results have yet to be weighed by geologists.

Quinte Blanketed By Freezing Rain

Winter bit back with a vengeance today, girdling the Quinte district — and much of Southern Ontario — in a bitter belt of freezing rain squeezing weekend road travel to a minimum.

Provincial Police reported few cars on district highways as road crews worked overtime to keep main traffic arteries clean of ice hazards.

But in a 20-hour period since the storm first began bucking the district around 4 p.m. Thursday, police patrols reported few accidents — none of them serious.

District bus lines were successfully competing with road hazards and running only minutes late. There were no incidents of school cancellations.

Canadian National Railways in Belleville said early-morning inquiries indicated more people were leaving their cars at home this weekend and travelling by rail.

Meantime, heavy snow and gusting winds predominated the weather map in Quinte northern sections.

The department of lands and forests radio station at Tweed reported snowfall ending in the area as winds blew up to 35 miles an hour.

At Canadian Forces Base Trenton, the weatherman warned against freezing rain and ice pellets for much of today followed by snow flurries later this evening.

The rain moved into the region about 3 a.m., following a 12-hour snowfall that left about four inches on the ground.

Visibility was complicated by 30-mile-an-hour winds that dumped snow across highways and open countryside, gaining intensity around midnight.

Massive snow removal operations were under way at the Trenton base this morning — although the weather had not affected flight schedules.

An official said the first air transport flights from Europe were not due until this evening, and the situation was still being watched for possible touchdown diversion measures.

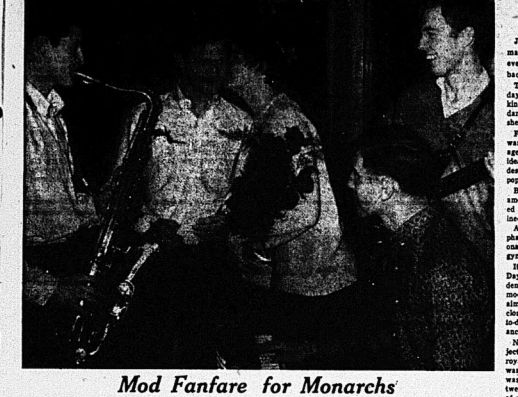
Lewis Huffman Joan Leslie, King and Queen at Quinte



Joan Leslie and Lewis Huffman may not be known to everybody — but they have solid backing to indicate they should.

The two 18-year-olds yesterday were named Queen and King and queen at Quinte Secondary School — on the basis of sheer personal popularity.

Both emerged from a poll among Quinte students concluded yesterday that saw 11 nominees for queen and 13 for king.

An even more democratic emphasis was given their brief coronation in one of the school's gymnasia.

It coincided with Hard Times Day at Quinte, when the students were allowed to attend in mock-drab outfits — a venture aimed at drawing the students closer together by relaxing day-to-day conformity in appearance.

Not only were the student subjects homely clad — so were the royal couple. In fact, as plebian was the whole affair, there wasn't even a robe to share between the pair, the only symbol of office allowed them being tinsel crowns.

However, it didn't detract from the proprieties of the occasion. School Keyette Cindy Bonnell, president, Barbara Belsey, presented Joan with a bouquet of red roses and Lewis with a boutonniere.

Caught on Ice Flow

High Winds, Storm Hampers Rescue of Four Fishermen

High winds and crippling ice storms are hampering rescue operations of four fishermen ice caught on a large ice flow on Lake Simcoe today.

Police appealed to the Rescue Co-ordination Centre, Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, for a helicopter, but this there report Ice building up on the helicopter's blades plus the high wind on the lake make it impossible to send help. It might be dark before a copter can be sent.

The fishermen, all from Brechin, in the Lake Simcoe area, were on the lake when a piece about one mile across broke away and began drifting.

The fishermen have shelter in the shacks on the flow and there is a chance the flow may drift to shore, but police are keeping a constant vigil.

Officials report that if everything else is impossible, an aircraft plane might drop a rubber boat to the men, but this is dangerous because of the high winds and roughness of the lake.

Police report the lake is too rough to send a small boat out for the men and may be able to get a large boat out of winter storage to rescue the men, though conditions make this hasardous also.

Weathermen at Trenton say the ice storm in this area is going to prevail for several hours, so there is no way of knowing how long it will be before a helicopter can be dispatched.

Rum Runners Beware!

COLUMBUS, Ohio—(AP) Ohio liquor agents are getting a $18,000 tent-engine boat to chase rum runners they charge are doing a multi-million-dollar business in bringing liquor across Lake Erie from Canada.

The state controlling board Thursday approved purchase of the boat capable of speeds up to 40 miles an hour.

Assistant Liquor Director Floyd Moon said estimates on the value of liquor run into Ohio from Ontario range from $60,000,000 to $86,000,000 a year. He said the top figure would mean a $17,000,000 tax loss to Ohio.

Without a boat, Ohio has no direct way to intercept the flow of contraband across the lake. He expressed doubt that Canadian officials are concerned "about keeping their whisky from coming into Ohio."

Believe Fire Started From Cigarette Butt

The chief said the fire — estimated to have caused about $5,000 damage to the building — started in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Don Slaunwhite. He believed it was caused when a cigaret end ignited a living room chesterfield.

Firemen were called at 1.05 a.m. after Claude Huard, who lives below the Slaunwhites, smelled smoke, and spotted the upstairs fire from outside the house. Chief Postle said had the call been delayed another 10 minutes the fire might have been beyond control.

Firemen had to don smoke masks to get at the core of the blaze.

Will Mark White Cane Week in Feb.

A well attended business meeting of the White Cane Club was held at the Recreation Centre on Wednesday evening. President Vi Wate welcomed the members and escorts following the opening songs.

Mrs. Maude Rollins read the correspondence and the January C.C.B. Council Commentary. Clarence Morris announced that 1967 White Cane week will be observed from February 5 to 11. The theme this year: 'The Blind Yesterday and Today' with the slogan: 'Celebrate the Progress of the Blind.'

A letter from Mr. Jack Bows of Kingston, president of the Ontario Division of the C.C.B. was received with interest. This letter was sent out to ascertain if any registered blind person is performing services to the sighted public. Two examples were given in a memo from the National Society of Public Relations. One blind housewife on a weekly basis reads from braille books to a group of sighted children in a crippled children's hospital. Another blind woman is actively engaged in leading a sighted Brownie pack.

Vi Wate introduced the guests who provided musical entertainment for the evening. Mrs. Irene Reid at the piano, Mr. R. Winstanley and Mr. Gerald Clement with their violins pleased the audience with a varied number of selections.

Artie Scott voiced the appreciation of the Club.

An article from the January C.C.B. Outlook concerning the Centennial project was read by Mrs. Gladys Seldon. The initial goal of this project was 'The Restoration of Sight to Blind Leprosy Patients'.

It has been learned however, that because of the lack of qualified surgeons to perform the delicate operations necessary to restore sight to these unfortunate people, this program would have to be carried on at a slower pace.

A quickening step has been added, and the original project has been extended to include the purchase of a fully-equipped mobile eye clinic. This would be a great help to hundreds of thousands of persons in the under-developed countries who are suffering with eye troubles, from total blindness to those with minor disorders, which, if neglected could lead to permanent blindness.

During the discussion which followed it was decided to continue, and if possible to accelerate the donations to this worthwhile project.

A Bevy Bewitches, Bemuses

At least that's what seems happening to Jim Slavin in the lead role of tonight's BCIVS play Tongue In Cheek, surrounded by a choice of complications. However, Indian chief Terry Gerow takes the situation stoically. Girls are Sherry Graves, Penny Wright, Mary Romanow and Joan Renouf.

Authority Members Hold Meeting

Moira River Conservation Authority chairman Gerald Irvine (left) and vice chairman James Spry with advisory board member Mrs. Basil Kuglin and Mrs. Sylvia Logue.

Former Reeve of Sidney Twp. New Chairman for Authority

Former reeve of Sidney township, Gerald O. Irvine was named chairman of the Moira River Conservation Authority at the general annual meeting held at Canniffon yesterday.

Mr. Irvine succeeds James Spracklett of Tudor towns hip who turned over the reins following a one-year term of office. James Spry of Rawdon township becomes Authority vice-chairman.

Advisory board chairman are: forestry — Kenneth A. Bell; Conservation areas — Bruce H. Smith; water control — Graham Bell; education extension — Harry Coulter, and fish and wild life — Bill Armstrong. James H. McLeod remains as secretary treasurer.

An Authority budget of $90,000, similar to that of last year, was approved for 1967. Of the total, the local levy against participating municipalities will be $18,000, the balance being made up of provincial and federal grants.

The Conservation Authorities Branch was represented at the Continuing development of meeting by Fred Jackson supervisor of conservation areas. the O'Hara Mill Conservation Area as a centennial project was approved by the Authority. Advisory Board chairman Bruce Smith, said he would like to see gates erected and a start made on restoration of the old O'Hara home as a museum.

A church shed once used at the Stone Church on Sidney township has been donated to the Authority and will be rebuilt at the O'Hara Mill site. The building will be used to house old farm machinery as a museum attraction.

Bert Frink, appointee to the Conservation School Committee, reported on the success of the conservation school last year which saw all grade VI public school pupils in Belleville visit the Vanderwater Conservation Area for a day.

Authority chairman Gerald Irvine said that although rural children live much closer to nature than do their city cousins they also would get much out of the conservation school program. Hopes are that the program can be extended to include rural children.

Mr. Frink said he would like to see some kind of a permanent building erected at the Vanderwater Area for use by the conservation classes. Such a project would be a lasting memorial year monument for the Centennial, he suggested.

Fish and wildlife advisory board chairman Bill Armstrong said his committee was willing to work closely with other advisory boards in the promotion of wildlife interests.

Authority members gave the go-ahead for the preparation of engineering plans and construction of the proposed seasonal dam on the Moira River just above the old Station's Dam in Belleville.

City council last year requested the Authority to construct the dam as an adjunct to the development of the Fry park on Canniffon Road.

Water Advisory Board chairman Gordon Sandiford said he did not expect there would be any actual developments in the proposed Rock Lake dam in Kaladar township this year.

He said the Authority was currently revising its brief on water control for presentation to ARDA through the Conservation Authorities branch and that it will be broadened to include multiple land use as well as water control.

NEW MEMBERS WELCOMED

If the Deer Rock Lake dam is approved as an ARDA project, a grant of 90 per cent of the cost could be expected.

Mr. Bell said he was hoping for approval of the brief so that the project could go ahead.

Approval for a fill permit for Harold West was given subject to engineering certification. The request is for permission to place fill in the river at the rear of Belleville Creameries on Station Street.

Authority members for 1967 are as follows: Belleville, D. G. Joss and Bruce Smith; Deloro, C. Gordanier; Elsevir and Grimsthorpe, John Thompson; Hungerford, Harold Vartyr; Huntingdon, K. A. Holland; Kaladar, Anglesea and Effingham, A. E. Northey; Madoc township Earl Sager; Madoc village, W. J. Armstrong; Marmora and Lake, Graham Bell; Rawdon, James Spry; Richmond, C. Richmond; Sheffield, Paul Burns; Sidney, G. O. Irvine; Thurlow, C. B. Ketchesou; Tudor and Cashel, J. H. Spracket; Tweed, T. C. Graham; Tyendinaga, Leslie McLaren; Ontario government, Barton Haggerty, Harry Coulter and Carl Thompson.

Quinte Field Naturalists Meet

More than 800,000 kinds of insects have been catalogued in the world and entomologists believe there could be twice that number still to be listed.

This was learned by members of the Quinte Field Naturalists as they heard Hedley James, research scientist with the Canada Department of Agriculture, who spoke at their January meeting.

Centennial year officers for the naturalists' club are: president, Mrs. William Watson; vice-president, Terry Sprague and J. Cornell; treasurer, Miss G. Lazier and secretary, Miss Joy Young. The new executive officers were installed by past president Miss F. Fitzgerald.

Fittingly enough the talk on insects by Mr. James was heard at the Dundas Street Research Institute where insects rate high in research.

The colors and shapes of the many insects shown were a thrilling sight to viewers as they were projected on a screen by slides.

FIELD TRIPS PLANNED

However, qualities such as "harmful", and "beneficial", "biting" and "non-biting" were heard more often than artistic terms.

Plans were discussed for meetings and field trips throughout 1967, with particular emphasis on the annual dinner meeting to be held on February 27th when C. J. Becker will give an illustrated talk on "Nature" related to South Africa.

The Expo '67 nature display known as Notre Dame Park, where distinctly Canadian wildlife will be displayed was brought to the attention of the meeting by Miss L. Hart who encouraged all to take this in. Miss Hart's pictures were a sightings of interest by members were a meadow lark who apparently missed his flight south, a cardinal on Burnham Street, a Virginia Rail in a small fen-free area of water, a great grey owl by Terry Sprague on the Gilead road and a deer at the latter. Known as Young's mountain, on the Centre road by Mac Walbridge.

Canadian Play Centennial Project of BCI Drama Club

As one of the few stage pieces by national writers presented in the city, the production given another added edge to the club's 1967 presentation.

The play is a comedy, "Tongue in Cheek" by Clather in Brickenden, of London, Ont.

According to the traditional three act framework, is a holiday lodge in Northern Ontario, and calls for a cast of eight.

Mrs. Brickenden is particularly well-known for her stage work in Western Ontario where she has been associated with the Simcoe Little Theatre and the London Little Theatre.

Several of her plays have been published and by Samuel French, the leading promoter of written stage works in Canada. However, "Tongue in Cheek" as yet has not been published.

The BCIVS production also will be seen tomorrow night.

Its major role goes to Jim Slavin as a young Canadian unexpectedly enmeshed with situations and personalities at the holiday lodge. As befits a light comedy, the fun is emphasized by a pretty fair number of the opposite sex — all of them pretty and fair.

Too Many Restrictions

It is Government-by-Big-Brother in Britain today, if we are to believe the "new commandments," as set forth by The Sunday Post, a Scottish newspaper.

A long chronicle of "dos and donts," to which Britons are being subjected by the Labor government, they are a reminder of what life can be like under socialism, with the government assuming too much power, and discouraging individual enterprise with regulations and tape and ineffiiciency.

The wonder is that Britons are as inventive and full of initiative as they are in the face of such implied commandments as these — "Thou shalt not benefit from any invention," paid, however carefully worked out to help you, your employer, and the country . . . Thou shalt carry an increasing burden of taxation, without complaint, £180 a head when the government took office, £229 a head now. . . . Thou shalt pay heavier deposits for rental goods, 40 per cent instead of 25 per cent for cars, 33⅓ per cent against 25 per cent for domestic appliances, and 20 per cent instead of 15 per cent for furniture."

The Glasgow paper sees it this way: "Individual" freedom is being whittled away. Incentive is being sapped out of life . . . It is the cold hand of dictatorial power, and there is no end to it."

Depressing indeed, and as good reason as any for so many Britons emigrating to Canada and other Commonwealth lands, as well as to the United States, and also returning to ourselves as to the real nature of socialism.

But millions of Britons remain at home and it must be said they are still, perhaps, the most inventive people on earth, for all the economic difficulties and government red tape restrictions they face. Not content with having given the world jet propulsion, radar, television, the hovercraft and numerous other major developments, Britons like to dabble in more obscure spheres of invention and genius. Like the remote-controlled robot that cuts the lawn, runs errands, takes the baby for a walk and does odd-jobs, and the plastic matting which when placed over a hillside enables ski enthusiasts to pursue their sport all year round.

Why is it that with all the technological facilities available on this continent more inventions of this kind do not originate here?

Beau Geste

The hassle over the publication of William Manchester's book The Death of a President has been a trying one for all the parties concerned.

Here was a conflict involving the professional integrity of the author, the right of publication by the publishers once they had received the manuscript, the right of the public to be appraised of all relevant and hitherto unpublished details surrounding the death of President John F. Kennedy, and the right of his widow to oversee (as by prior agreement with the author) certain passages regarding her private life with the president.

Apparently some passages were not deleted as Mrs. Kennedy had hoped and this stress led to legal action by her and by her brother-in-law, Senator Robert Kennedy. A settlement was reached paving the way for publication, but there remained the possibility that the Hamburg magazine Stern, which had bought the German rights to the book, would publish it in full.

In fact, Stern said it would do just that. But handsome is as handsome does, as a recent telegram to Mrs. Kennedy from Henri Nannen, Stern's chief editor, indicates.

It reads: Dear Mrs. Kennedy, what I would not do under either political censorship or pressure of legal actions I gladly consent to do voluntarily. The next Stern issues of William Manchester will not contain the personal passages you object to. I am sorry to have caused you displeasure, yours very sincerely, Henri Nannen."

Mrs. Kennedy is reported to have sent a telegram of thanks for the decision.

Thus honor and integrity were satisfied, where the German publication was concerned, while Mrs. Kennedy was assured that her feelings at this difficult time for her were being respected in at least one quarter.

Sharpshooter

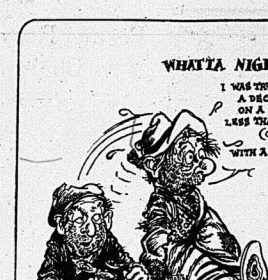
The former air stewardess is said to be a sharp shot even with a .45, a heavy weapon to handle for most people.

But to look at Mrs. Ky, pictured wrapping a scarf around her head on arrival at Wellington, New Zealand's windy capital city, no one could have looked further removed from the realities of Viet Nam. She was all smiles and bore herself like a queen.



To Your Good Health

Woman Worried About Possible Side Effects of Hormone Pills

Dear Dr. Molner: I wrote last summer but have not seen an answer. Explain the side effects of hormone tablets.

I am in my 50's and my doctor prescribed a hormone because of softening of the bones, osteoporosis, he called it. He said six to 12 months might be required before I can be free of considerable pain.

After reading an article on "Common Sense and Femininity Pills" I quit the medication. Of course I feel as bad as I did months ago, but I have not told the doctor I am not taking the hormones.

How dangerous is it, really?
— M. J.

You didn't get an answer because you didn't tell me what kind of hormones, and more important, because trying to list all the possible side effects is a fruitless undertaking for somebody who has been bitten by the "side-effects jitters."

Nearly every drug can have one or more "side effects" or unwanted results.

People should realize that side effects can occur, but too many people (you aren't the only one by any means) are being scared out of their w . s. That's not good.

In your frame of mind, Mrs. M. J., it's a fair bet that if I listed all the possible side effects of a drug, you would promptly start having all of them.

What you should, and must, do is leave it up to your doctor to cope with side effects, if any. If you encounter trouble, tell him so he can judge whether to change, reduce or stop the drug. But until you can detect any real problems, stop torturing yourself about what might happen. Side effects are what can happen, which is quite another thing from what will happen. Pharmaceutical firms are under government instructions to disclose known side effects to medications, and in some cases their comments listing untoward effects which actually occur only once in a million or several million cases.

Osteoporosis (loss of calcium from the bones) not only can be painful but incurs risk of fractures. The only sound treatment I know of entails an adequate diet and the use of hormones.

Rarely do side effects occur but they can in some cases, and it is for those cases that the doctor is always on guard.

As to the article you read, I didn't see it, so far as I recall, but I'm sure I've read o h e r s like it. Hormones have a place in medicine, but I don't go along with the notion that if you pump enough hormones into all women, they'll never get old.

Hormones are useful as medication, but deserve, like any medicine, to be used with respect and judgment.

My advice is to go back to your doctor and say, "I might as well confess. I read a magazine article and panicked, so I stopped taking the hormones. Now I'm ready to follow your instructions and will try not to get the heeby - jeebies any more."

Dear Dr. Molner: Could it be that a head injury can cause a person to become hyperactive? My son was struck by a car when he was 2½ years old. He was unconscious for a week and had a fractured skull. He is now 5 and has been hyperactive since he was 3. He is constantly on the move, makes loud mouth noises and a move around a lot in his sleep or is it nervousness? — Mrs. O.

It could be either — or both. Flipworms are a frequent cause of restless sleep (grinding the teeth, squirming, etc.), but because of the items in your letter which I omitted, I would certainly want to explore the possibility that his unhappy earlier childhood has caused a great deal of tenseo.

Note to Mrs. C. K.: Monocucleosis certainly cannot be responsible for all of the unpleasant problems she list. "Mono" is a virus disease which can be passed from person to person, so would close contact at may be associated with encephalitis but does not lead to leukemia.

Strictly Personal

Cars Mostly Look Alike

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the big car - rental agencies has bought itself 1,000 deluxe sports cars and distributed them to rental stations all over the country. According to the company head, this car "gives the travelling businessman a visual conviction operator with clients he visits."

There may be many valid reasons for driving a sports car, but I don't think that is one of them. My car is a visual, conservation caretel but the conversation dies a minute after it opens.

"How fast will it go?" are the "How much does it cost?" are the only two questions I have ever been asked about it. To the first, I truthfully answer, "I don't know, because I've never pushed it over 100," and to the second, I tell them what J. P. Morgan replied to the chap who asked how much a yacht cost: "Young man, if you have to ask the price, you can't afford one."

Unless a man is keenly interested in the subject, he couldn't care less about what goes on under the hood of his air-cooled bottle reindeer might be pulling it, for all he knows. An expensive sports car, to the average man, represents only Success, Status, and Sex. To add a fourth "s", it is a Symbol, and not a piece of machinery at all.

He would be pulverized with boredom if I actually tried to engage him in conversation about my car. There is little sparkle in chatting about the double overhead camshaft engine, the limited slip differential, the torsion bar front suspension, or the rack-and-pinion steering — about all he wants to know is how does it do as a crumpet - catcher.

The important, costly sports car has become such a symbol because we have "affluenced" ourselves right out of the domestic market. What does it profit a man to drive a Cadillac or Lincoln if his butcher or plumber are looking around in identical models? As a society gets richer, the tangible symbols of wealth turn from opulent conformity to tasteful individuality.

There is another factor, I am convinced, responsible for the rise of the sports car. Nowadays there is no such thing as a "cheap-looking" new car. They all look much alike — and a Chevrolet approaching you has the same sleek lines and elegant trim as its more expensive brothers. It takes a keen-eyed boy of 9 to be able to tell the current models apart, so debonair are they all.

and out of the ordinary. It is almost essential to dip into the imported sports car field. Even a kind of snobbish ugliness is now a mark of distinction, when everything else on the road is so bland, inoffensive, and so indistinguishable.

Manitoba granted women the vote 51 years ago today—in 1916—after a hard-fought political campaign in the province. Although the legislature voted for the bill unanimously once the members knew it was bound to pass, dissidents took it to court on constitutional grounds, only to lose their case. Thus Manitoba became the first Canadian province to allow women equal political rights with men. The federal government followed suit in 1918 and Quebec, the last province to do so, granted women the vote in 1940.

City Should Not Neglect This Chance

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am not convinced as yet from what I read in the newspapers that Belleville is assured of a Community College.

I do think that all the people of Belleville should get excited about this matter. It is said that nothing much is accomplished without enthusiasm, or one could say without getting excited. One can hear about the City the common expressions that "I doubt if Belleville will get this" or "Belleville is always on the tail end" etc. etc. I will admit that this is my first natural reaction to either accept such statements or to express some myself. I am trying to be optimistic but I wonder why all of us in Belleville don't really get worked up over the prospect of this College. It would be as good as or better than a major industry.

We should be bombarding the politicians constantly with our expressed determination that this time Belleville should not be left out in the cold. I mean that we must absolutely and positively be made aware that we mean business. Peterborough has a Teacher's College and now a University as well as a generally booming economy. Kingston is indeed well off in the same regard. Lindsay is close to Peterborough and is not so desperately in need of "local" educational opportunities.

Let's get excited — we should almost in one collective mass be up in arms and let Toronto know that we will have long memories if we miss out on this one. Call it political pressure if you will, but doesn't the squeaky wheel get the grease.

Can you not visualize the attitude of the Parliament in Toronto? They might think that Belleville is secure politically, no matter what is done or not done for the Quinte area. Would it not be better if they knew for real sure that "Boy — the whole community of Belleville is really worked up."

It's too bad that we don't have the time or opportunity to go in literal thousands to march on the Parliament Buildings. You know that then we would be recognized.

Congratulations to those who have and are still making efforts on our behalf. Aren't we really a sleepy lot though. Let's not sleep through this one. We are on the verge of being a go-go City.

I hear rumors to the effect that the local interested groups need a temporary office but they have no money to pay the rent. Isn't this typical Belleville! Will the City Hall not pay the rent or even the Industrial Commission out of their budget. They can have my office for free. I will pay some of the rent on my office — will you and you and you?

I am sure going to let the present political representative and the would be representative of all parties know that I am excited about this. Will you please get excited?

Focus on Sidney

Quinte Community Merger Envisaged

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

There is a possible solution for Belleville's and Trenton's woes which could solve a few other problems at the same time. It would stem the inter-town rivalry which may yet Loyalist College in Sidney Township, provide an attractive and easily-promoted industrial area, save Sidney Township from deterioration and ease the downtown redevelopment problem in both towns. It is, of course, an amalgamation of Belleville, Trenton and the township area between the two towns.

Radical as it may sound, the proposal has many advantages. It is Sidney which will be a natural growth area in the belt line. Thus without a stronger tax base it will be hard pressed to provide the services it will need. It has two major highways and two mainline railroads which will not be unnoticed by the developers for long. With early and proper zoning, the new city could become a model one. For example, if the approaches to the airport's runways were zoned non-residential, it could serve as a municipal field if and when it was vacated. A new city centre would replace the declining Front Streets of respective towns, but these eventually become large, small local shopping centres, allowing the downtowns to be cleared and beautified.

Water could be supplied from Lake Ontario, a scheme already proposed and the new city would have the financial resources to do it. Also, without a strong township between the rail lines suggests prime industrial sites, and with zoning there could be attractive plants complementary to the city. Residential areas would be developed to the north and south of the "interchange" area, with the new civic centre running north-south to the east of Bayside.

There are more advantages to be gained — initially we would eliminate three municipal governments (and several boards) and consolidate them with one. We would have a population of around 50,000 to begin with, and enough land space to contain our expansion for 30 years or more. The two present towns would lose nothing except their identities — they would continue to serve as developed boundaries as well as a whole would gain in space, opportunity for growth and unification of purpose.

There are some drawbacks, the primary one that of interesting Sidney Township in the scheme. Adequate measures would have to be taken to prevent its farmers being taxed off their land, but there is no reason that prosperous farms could not exist within the city's boundaries. To prevent suburb a n sprawl the city should include a mile of greenbelt north of 401.

I feel this proposal should be investigated and be heard on CJBQ's "Why Not Call" a similar or possibly identical (I did not hear all the conversation) view which indicates that others share my view.

U.K. Probe on Mental Tension

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I am seeking information regarding the occurrence of tension in individual people, in the hope that, in the course of my studies, it will be possible to generalise on reasons for its affecting some people more than others, and what remedies, if any, are possible. I should be very glad to hear from any of your readers who are troubled by mental tension in one form or another and who would have been successful in curing it.

No Wonder Prices Rise!

Saint John Telegraph-Journal

— One of the big attractions at the modern supermarket is something the grocery doesn't even advertise — the grocery cart.

So irresistible is the lure of this handy gadget that each year in North America almost 1,000,000 supermarket shoppers craftily stow the cart into their car along with the groceries they have just bought and head for home.

Such mass dishonesty is appalling. It is also costly. For supermarkets, to protect themselves against losing $25,000,000 worth of carts a year, are obliged to increase prices accordingly.

Share Cost Of Expo 67

Corner Brook Western Star

Contrary to widely - held opinion the bill for Expo is not being footed entirely by the federal government. The cost-sharing arrangement is 50 per cent from Ottawa, 37.5 per cent from the Province of Quebec, and 12.5 per cent from the City of Montreal. It is expected, however, that both the city and the province will benefit greatly from the influx of visitors (and Ottawa too). But unless the crowds come (and that's where advertising Expo and the returns may not be worth the expense) the cost-sharing will be a heavy burden on the taxpayers.

Road Signs Need Updating

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Many of the many types of Centenary projects we are looking forward to. Some of them are luxuries, while others are necessary.

Near the west end of the city we need some road signs. The north end of Harmony Road has no sign, and this road is still shown as James Road on the latest city map. Peter Street has no sign at all. Taxi drivers, delivery men and strangers have a hard time to locate us.

I would suggest therefore that those responsible for it should erect the road signs as a modest and inexpensive centenary project.

The 24 members of the graduating class of '46 at the Belleville General Hospital who wrote registration exams in November have recently received a report of the results, with all of the class passing to the degree of Registered Nurse.

Mobile telephone service which will enable a person in a moving car to converse with his home or office as he could from a standard telephone, was described to members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club by D. According to Mr. Switzer, mobile telephones in the future will be valuable in connection with police cars and expediting their aid to persons involved in situations requiring urgent action. It can also be used by firms who operate fleets of trucks on public highways, in taxi distribution, public utility firms, and newspapers.

Layoffs Start Today

Oshawa Auto Workers Plan to 'Raise Hell' in Ottawa

OSHAWA (CP) — Indignant over the layoff of 10,400 auto workers due to start here today, union leaders plan a march on Ottawa to "raise hell" with cabinet ministers over the Canada-United States auto pact.

"We're going to raise hell about the auto pact and see what can be done about getting jobs for the Oshawa area," Albert Taylor, president of Local 222, United Auto Workers of America, said Thursday.

He will be among a 10-man delegation, led by George Burt, Canadian UAW director, which plans to meet cabinet ministers Feb. 8.

Mr. Taylor said the UAW leaders, representing 107,000 workers in Canada, hope to get separate hearings for their complaints about the free-trade pact. The Canadian Labor Congress has promised to submit brief to the federal government on the same day.

General Motors of Canada Ltd. announced several weeks ago that the massive layoffs will continue to Feb. 8 to allow the company to get "new vehicle stocks more closely in line with current demands in the automotive market."

In the U.S., the auto industry Thursday ordered more production cuts because of a continuing slump in new car sales.

Some 3,000 workers won't be affected by today's layoffs. About 100 workers will be laid off indefinitely. He also expects many routines full production after Feb. 6.

Douglas Sutton, Local 222 vice-president, charged Thursday that the layoffs are part of a "planned recession." He said since the company last cut some 3,000 men last year, workers near retirement have not been replaced. The union will make an announcement today on retirements.

In an interview, Mr. Taylor criticized Industry Minister Drury.

"Drury sounds like a record. He keeps playing it over and over and the fancy thing is, he played the same tune on Jan. 11, 1961 when we first went to Ottawa.

He said union leaders have been unable to get action from Ottawa in several talks in the last two years over the controversial auto agreement.

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Starr, Progressive Conservative House leader, called Thursday for a parliamentary inquiry into layoffs and plant shutdowns in the Canadian automobile industry.

He said in an interview that nearly 3,000 General Motors workers have been laid off in his home city of Oshawa and more layoffs are feared later this year. The situation was similar at the Ford Motor plant in Oakville.

Government and industry officials should be called before a Commons-Senate committee to give detailed information about the effects of the Canada-United States auto free trade agreement, he said.

It was nonsense to blame the layoffs on falling car sales, since some buyers had to wait 10 to 12 weeks for delivery of new cars.

Mr. Starr, MP for Ontario, said the government gives out little information about the economic impact of the auto agreement.

The GM plant in Oshawa would shut down for six days starting Sunday and workers would be called back on the basis of seniority, indicating further layoffs.

He said rumors are circulating in Oshawa that GM will apply production of 1967 models in mid May instead of July as in previous years, resulting in a shutdown of four or five months.

There were other rumors that the production of all Pontiac models would be shifted to U.S. plants in the fall. The Oshawa plant would retain only Chevrolet models and some truck lines.

Bound to Be Bankruptcies If Money Tight: Towers

TORONTO (CP) — Pressures at times during 1966 were "as great as could be tolerated without serious damage to the world economy," Graham F. Towers, the first governor of the Bank of Canada, said Thursday.

He told the annual meeting of the Canada Life Assurance Co., of which he is chairman, that the relative scarcity of tendable funds endangers prudent borrowers and under such circumstances there are bound to be bankruptcies of international importance.

"It is important that these developments should not have a snowballing effect to produce a serious lack of confidence such as occurred in 1930-31," he said.

Mr. Towers, governor of the central bank from 1934 to 1961, said North America is the only major industrial area which, the next five years, will have a rising labor supply and the capital resources to increase productivity of labor.

All Banks Sound: Sharp

Rasminsky to Give Views on Bank Act Revision

OTTAWA (CP)—Robert Macpeden, vice-president of the First National City Bank of New York, wrote a note in 1963 saying he intended to clear in advance with the federal government his bank's now controversial entry into Canadian banking, it was revealed Thursday in a Commons committee.

The committee incorporated into its minutes, and thus made public, a confidential memorandum to this effect written by Mr. MacFadden while in Ottawa June 20, 1963, for an office-record meeting with Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada.

Six days later the Citibank, signed a deal in Rotterdam to buy the Mercantile Bank of Canada from its Dutch owners. Mr. Rasminsky was informed on July 3.

On July 18—nearly a month after the contract was signed—Mr. MacFadden and his boss, James S. Rockefeller, informed Walter Gordon, then finance minister, of their purchase of a Canadian banking charter.

Until Mr. MacFadden spoke to Mr. Rasminsky, the Bank of Canada had no intimation of the American bank's plans to buy the Canadian banking charter from Rotterdamsche of Holland.

Mr. Rasminsky is expected to appear before the Commons finance, trade and economic affairs committee next week to wrap up his views on the Bank Act revision now being studied in committee.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday night the government won't be bullied into changing the proposed legislative restraint on the growth of the Mercantile Bank of Canada.

He also said in a television interview he believes the First National City Bank of New York, now sole owner of the Mercantile, can find a ready market in Canada for Mercantile Bank shares if it would be willing to reduce its holdings to 25 per cent.

Mr. Sharp said that if Mercantile were 75-per-cent owned by Canadians, it would be open to unlimited growth in which the New York bank would be able to share.

Mr. Sharp was interviewed on the CBC - TV program Twenty Million Questions. A transcript was given to newspapers in advance of broadcast.

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Sharp said Thursday night there has been an unusual run of withdrawals from the Montreal City and District Savings Bank but stressed "there is no doubt whatsoever" that the bank is in sound financial condition.

The minister said the run on the bank earlier in the day apparently resulted from a faulty translation in a Montreal foreign-language newspaper.

Rising in the Commons at 7 p.m. EST for a special statement, Mr. Sharp said all of the country's banks, including the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, "are in a sound financial condition and there is no doubt whatsoever about their ability to meet their financial obligations."

His brief statement followed Montreal reports of heavy cash withdrawals from four or five branches of the bank by members of the city's Greek community.

Canada and U.S. Approach Food Inquiry Differently

OTTAWA (CP)—On a low-budget parliamentary inquiry in Canada achieve more than a high-budget congressional inquiry in the United States?

That was the poser Thursday for the Senate-Commons committee which is trying to get to the bottom of consumer prices in Canada with the full-time help of one economist.

The committee was told that a recent U.S. commission on food marketing hired eight senior economists, 10 junior economists, two lawyers, and groups of field interviewers and secretaries, for a full-time staff of 45. In 18 months the commission spent $2,100,000.

For all the expense, said committee witness Dr. George E. Brandow, the commission's executive director, the inquiry came up with a 1,200-page report of opinions and its 15 members. He said they were busy people who did not take time to resolve their differences, and in the end tended to fall back on doctrinaire beliefs.

In retrospect, said Mr. Brandow even the recommendations of the majority were tactically off the mark. They proved to be too bold and specific.

"We had too much hope our report would have an immediate impact," said the professor of agricultural economics at Pennsylvania State University.

"We gave it too much punch."

Invited here to comment on the American experience, Mr. Brandow said the commission should have stated a strong philosophy and approach about the changes it wanted in food marketing. But it should not have spelled out specifics of support about government action.

The Canadian committee provides a contrast to the American group in that it tries hard for unanimity in its decisions. The pre-Christmas interim report on food prices was supported by all members as far as it went, although New Democrat members would like to have seen some additional recommendations.

But like the American report, it argued strongly for fast action on a number of controversial questions, notably: a federal department of consumer affairs, abolition of "cents-off" labels, immediate steps in standardization and grade simplification and restraint of non-price competition by retail food outlets.

Mr. Meltzer on Real Estate
"What's Your Problem"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The tight money market which prevails has greatly affected the investment returns on real-estate. They have increased. Many readers have inquired as to the current level of yield that can be expected on real estate investments. The reply to our correspondent should be of interest to all readers.

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I am 40 years of age and am starting to plan for my retirement. I have a considerable amount invested in stocks. However, I feel that my average yield is less than 4 per cent.

I have heard that real estate investments yield much higher returns. I've read many articles and books on the subject, but none specifically indicate what range of investment return one can expect. Real estate brokers I've spoken to have given me answers that vary as much as 300 to 400 per cent on the same type of property. Could you tell me what actual returns one can expect from real estate investments? I'm sure many other readers would like to know the answer to this question. — Mr. U. Y.

ANSWER: The investment return on real estate varies depending on the type of property and the risk involved. Currently, these are the approximate investment returns that can be expected on various types of property although they vary somewhat by locality.

Real estate loans based on a long-term basis to attend with "AAA" credit standing, current return is from 1½ to 8 percent. Good commercial or industrial property occupied by tenants with good credit standing is now selling at a yield from 9 to 12 per cent. Large apartments in good condition, well-located and with good occupancy history are now yielding from 10 to 12 percent. Smaller apartment houses of similar attributes are yielding from 12 to 15 percent.

When we enter the realm of greater risk, the yield increases. Older commercial and industrial properties and apartment houses in secondary locations are now yielding in the 15 to 20 percent range. Properties which represent considera b le risk are yielding over 20 per cent. The most risky properties, slum properties for example, yield as high as 30 per cent.

The yields recited above, as is customary in real estate, are based upon the cash investment and not the purchase price. For example, if one buys a property for $20,000 and invests only $5,000 cash (because he has secured a mortgage of $15,000), and has $1,200 left after paying the mortgage payment and all other cash expenses, when h i s yield is 10 per cent. This is real estate, in addition to the investment, the owner gets additional monetary benefits from the annual reduction of the mortgage and from income tax depreciation allowances which effectively increases his investment return in the property.

Dr. Molner welcomes all reader mail, but regrets that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Reader questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

E.E. Follwell Named Head District Cancer Society

By RETA LAWRENCE

Volunteers for worthwhile and humanitarian projects are extra special people. Wednesday evening about 75 gathered in the Tropicana Room of the Hotel Quinte for the annual dinner meeting of the Belleville and District Cancer Society.

Following a social hour, Mr. Les Lennox called the blessing and those present enjoyed a roast beef dinner. Mr. James Conrad furnished piano music to dine by.

Mr. Anton introduced the chairmen of the branches of the Quinte-Thousand Island district. He also extended thanks to Radio Station C.J.B.Y. for their co-operation in publicising the work of the Society.

The guest speaker was introduced by Mrs. Kenneth Douglas. Dr. Ronald C. Burr was recently named Professor and Head, Department of Therapeutic Radiology, Queen's University. He graduated from Queen's University in Medicine in 1932, earned a Fellowship of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh in 1935, is a Fellow of the American College of Radiology and was director of the Ontario Cancer Foundation, Kingston for 20 years.

AGE OF SOCIETIES

"We live in an age of societies," Dr. Burr said. "Almost every debilitating or chronic disease seems to have an organization to help in its control. With the development of penicillin and antibiotics, infection has lost much of the dread that it at one time produced."

"Life expectancy has been a variable factor every year. We expect something must have occurred between the time of Abraham and Sarah and our own time to change this, for Abraham is said to have lived to 185 years of age whereas few of us can expect such a bonanza in this day. At the time of ancient Rome the life expectancy was only 35 years. Now it is much higher. With this increased life expectancy, an increase in the diseases which attack older persons. These include cardiovascular disease and cancer. Of these two, cancer carries with it the greatest dread, mainly because in uncured cases there may be a long drawnout period of illness with considerable distress and discomfort."

"The National Cancer Institute of Canada, formed in 1947, was composed of leading research workers and medical organizations throughout Canada. Its function was to correlate and support basic research into the cause of cancer and to sponsor specialized professional education. The function of the Canadian Cancer Society is the raising of funds from the public from voluntary subscription and the money thus raised is transferred to the National Cancer Institute who, in turn, make grants to deserving research workers for the study and the control of cancer."

PUBLIC EDUCATION

Dr. Burr continued, "The functions of the Cancer Society are education of the lay public, the raising of money for research purposes and the very important service to patients. This latter service includes cancer dressing, home visiting, transportation, nursing service, home nursing, supplying aids and drugs. To carry out this diversified program of assistance requires a large number of volunteers as the result of the annual financial campaign in April is considered by most to be an opportunity for the public to show their support of the work of the Society. The Society is faced with a persistent need to provide more services and treatments to many people and increasing and enlarging our educational programs — all of which depend on the generosity and it follows as the night follows the day, that it requires more people. This is an enormous responsibility and I urge you to meet the challenge. It is very rewarding."

Appreciation to Dr. Burr for his thought-provoking address was expressed by Mr. E. E. Follwell. "I am sure," Mr. Follwell said, "that everyone realizes how fortunate we are not only to have the Ontario Cancer Clinic so close to us in Kingston, but also how privileged we are to have Dr. Burr in charge of the great work they are doing at the clinic. I am also sure that everyone has heard of plans for a Lodge in Kingston similar to Princess Margaret Lodge in Toronto, and I do not have to tell you what a great boon this would be to those who are unfortunate enough to have to visit the Cancer Clinic. I am not sure just what stage the plans are in but I believe it will be a reality in the not too distant future."

Mr. Follwell presented Dr. Burr with a gift and Mrs. Burr with a bouquet of daffodils with thanks for their presence at the dinner.

U.C.W. Meetings

HOLLOWAY STREET

The "Challenge of the New Year" was the topic discussed at the January general meeting of Holloway St. United Church Women on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver, president of Belleville Presbyterial, was the guest speaker. "On Time" was the subject of her address. In looking up the definition of the word "time," she said it was found to be the number of meanings it had.

"We have a choice as to whether we use or waste our time. To have wasted or misused our time is a great sin, she believes. Time is endless, lateness, the lazy man wastes his own time and is in the way of others. Time can be wasted through indifference, through lack of vision, through grieving and through too much pursuit of unworthy goals. We have been too busy and have wasted more than the day's of many constructive uses for our time and tomorrow depends on what we use today."

Mrs. D. Richardson, a member of Mrs. A. Miller's unit, presided at the business part of the meeting and assisted in the devotional period. Mrs. G. Bobbs introduced the speaker and Mrs. R. Taylor thanked Mrs. Weaver and others who had assisted in the meeting.

A social hour was enjoyed with Mrs. W. T. Pyote and Mrs. unit serving refreshments.

Interfaith Service Draws Large Crowd

MARMORA—Marmora Community Hall was filled to capacity on Monday evening for the Interfaith Service of Prayer for Christian Unity, when members of the five denominations participated in the Centennial project of Marmora's churches.

In the address of welcome Rev. Mr. K. B. Sharpe said the Free Methodist Church, he stated that "Every day we are being swept by co-ordinations and planners for centennial projects that this year holds in store for all Canadians many great and wonderful things. It is fitting, therefore, that the churches should avail themselves of this opportunity to unitedly present the challenge of the glorious gospel message in 1967."

Mrs. Roy Frost played piano accompaniment for the hymns and Rev. W. H. Dawson of the Pentecostal Church gave the message.

Litany for Church Unity was read by Monsignor F. J. Spence of Sacred Heart Church.

Subject of address given by Rev. R. H. Stewart of St. Paul's Anglican Church, was "One Household of God." He noted "This is the first time that we have come together as a community of Christians to pray, and it is right to take this opportunity of uniting prayerfully to bring the force of the ecumenical movement in our midst. He explained the word "ecumenical" which is of Greek derivation, with a great range of meanings — a dwelling place, a cage or pen for animals, a temple, a prison." Although the ecumenical movement has come to embrace all baptized Christians, it embraces Christians who are divided, not from the other by their particular tradition.

"A household is made up of many different personalities," he continued, "and it is often difficult for different personalities to dwell under one roof. What is true of individual family members appears in larger form in church divisions. In the last ten years the ecumenical dialogue has increased rapidly. If the household learns to speak to one another, help one another, understand one another, there has been a great step forward." He said that the ecumenical speaking to one another has helped leaders and other people to maturity.

"The third thing in being of a household is the unity that we have also to speak to the world. There is always a danger that ecumenical people will be bent on redecorating their own interiors when they should be acting as instruments of Christ's Peace." In conclusion Rev. Stewart said "I call upon all of you to join us as members of the household in a journey to this new Frontier — and the voyage is lost and hazardous but we are all partners in a great and historic journey, a commitment yet being undertaken together — the ecumenical movement brings Christians together on what we have been in past, what we can be in the future depends much on how we pray together."

Prayer for Christian Unity was said by Rev. Douglas Millar of the St. Andrew's United Church and, the Blessing was given by Rev. Bauder.

Pioneering Is Topic at Study Guild Meeting

"The Pioneer Woman," as illustrated by the life of her own grandmother, was the program topic chosen by Mrs. George Sills and the Women's Study Guild January meeting held at the home of Mrs. H. C. Seldon, Bridge Avenue on Monday evening.

Mrs. Leslie Reid had chosen the devotional part of the meeting the description of a good woman. The name Dorcas has become synonymous with acts of charity. Dorcas lived near Joppa, a busy seaport on the Mediterranean and so had many calls for kind deeds as portrayed in a description of the life she probably led.

This, combined with the appearance of Mrs. Wishart in a beautiful dress of her grandmother's, made an excellent introduction of the topic, as did also a card on the references to old-time weaving, spinning, lace, bames, and other arts.

"Granny," the typical woman of the century lived her whole life of over 80 years between the shores of the Ottawa River, on the Quebec side, near the Long Sault Rapids.

It was here in this steep, rocky difficult area that in 1860 Dollard des Ormeaux and his men had a gallant battle against the attacks of the Iroquois and saved the settlements along the St. Lawrence.

Earlier Champlain had almost lost his life at this treacherous spot. Later, when the canals were built here, and at one time a small railroad, the Pioneer Woman was covered the 13 miles between these villages. The river and the road were busy places.

Mrs. Wishart showed relics from "the stopping place" at the village of Cushing, a shawl, embroidered, a spinning and pictures of St. Mungo's Presbyterian Church, the schoolhouse, horses and family groups. She traced her own family history back seven generations to Ireland, England, Welsh and French ancestors.

With so few advantages of modern days it was a case of the "survival of the fittest." The amount of manual work done, infant and maternal mortality were high and many tragedies occurred. One incident was told of a young father whose leg was saved from amputation by the use of a carpenter's saw and ordinary wire.

Few people of the earlier generations left the village but many have since learned of such a yearning created for education which never stopped. The influence of the past is felt in memories of friendships, kindness and high ideals.

During the business part of the meeting Mrs. Wright, Miss Reid; Miss Evans; 1st Lecturer, Eva Evans; 1st Lecturer, Eva Luffman; 2nd lecturer, Keitha Ferguson; 2nd lecturer, Ethel Marcale; 2nd escort, Marion Keller; 1st censor, Mary Whittle; 2nd censor, Mary Livingston; Inner sentinel, Nellie Ming; Outer sentinel, Mae Hall; Pianist, Mrs. Luffman, Nellie King and Georgina Evans. Immediate Past Senior Councillor, Ina Wilson.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat from your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naru Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Then take 2 tablespoonfuls as needed and follow that diet plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if more radiant youthful energy and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, bust, arms, abdomen, hips, legs, ankles and thighs before beautifying curves and graceful lines return, your money back. Don't diet dangerous—how much better to feel fine, alive, youthful and appearing and active.

Love Less, Give More Say Women

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's most outspoken advocate of equal rights for women Thursday urged Canadian men to "love us less and give us more."

Mrs. Michael Sabia, a St. Catharines alderman and president of the Canadian Federation of University Women, said men have put women on a pedestal instead of giving them equal rights and opportunities.

Speaking to the Queensway General Hospital auxiliary, Mrs. Sabia said women have been told they should be eternally seduced, flutter their eyes and wear perfume.

Mrs. Sabia led a delegation of 75 women last Nov. 10 to ask the federal government for a royal commission to examine the status of women.

"When we presented our brief in November, the first words said to us were: 'You have lovely hair,' and the second, from Justice Minister Pierre Sun Cardin, who said: 'I don't believe there is any prejudice. We have no women on a petard, instead of giving them equal rights and opportunities.

"Canada can't afford to waste its female brainpower," she said.

Replies to Letter from Mother Re "Troubled, Foolish Teen-agers"

BOBBIE CLARK

Dear Doris: Re a letter you published from Mother of Three, talking about "troubled and foolish teen-agers."

I am a teen-ager myself and when I read that I thought to myself how foolish she herself must be. When her children become teen-agers and as you say "are bombarded with life, fun and new ideas at such a fast rate" they have my deepest sympathy. How could they possibly solve their problems at home with a mother like that?

She obviously does not remember her own teen years. We try so hard to please everybody but sometimes things seem to come at us from all directions in such a hurry we please nobody. It is at times like this when we really need our parents and the help and advice that they can give us.

All over the world teen-agers are helping their fellow men. If "Mother" would only look around her she would see how wrong she was in saying that teen-agers are "foolish" members of our society.

Of course, there are some bad teen-agers, but isn't that the way with every group? Don't we see bad adults as well? I think a lot of adults would do well to note this carefully when they start referring to teen-agers as a bunch of delinquents or whatever they happen to call us.—A Teen-Ager

Dear Teen-Ager: Bravo! And workers with delinquents often find that the original culprits are the delinquent adults who failed to give trust, time, thoughtful care, to their young ones when they needed it most.

• • •

Dear Doris: I can't tell you how sorry I felt for "Overlooked". I was 36 when I had my first date. I also know a three more young men, from 39 to 49 years old, who don't have any dates. Each of those men (as well as myself) are decent, respectable, and well liked by those who know them. We all wanted to meet some girl who respected herself, as well as others, but our reason for not getting dates was, we were too shy.

"You may think this is a silly way to be, but if you were born like that you'd understand better. Once we did want to know the girl first, and she'd have to know them, and they'd have to be sure if they asked her for a date she wouldn't refuse for if she did refuse it would make it to feel very ashamed of themselves.

I was living in a boarding house when I met my wife, who was a fellow-roomer in the house. I got to know her well, and she got to know me well, and it took me 3 months to get courage enough to ask her for a date. I often wished the woman had to ask for the dates, for if that was the case the four of us would have had dates long before we did.

So, I hope this will bring some comfort to "Overlooked" to know there are good, respectable men in the same boat she is in. It's a pity there isn't some way for them to meet one another.—Happily Married Man Now.

Dear Happily: Bravo! Your courage in setting it all down may help some other shy man — and give him the nerve to do a little prospecting for an Unclaimed Treasure for himself.

• • •

Dear Doris: If I send out wedding invitations to my guests with an enclosed envelope for their reply, and they send no reply, would it be proper to telephone and ask how many are coming? — Seeking Advice.

Dear Seeking: Not exactly; and that enclosed envelope is far too broad a hint. Most folks know that a wedding invitation calls for a written acceptance. If one or two slip up your telephone call must be most diplomatic. Just: "We're all looking forward to seeing you at my reception. Do hope you'll be able to come."

The caterer simply has to have a firm estimate of guests and that's for sure.

Longer, fuller replies went privately to those correspondents who enclosed a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

London Stock Exchange, Sternest Male Bastion, Attacked by Women

LONDON (CP)—One of the sternest male bastions in that awesomely masculine preserve, the City of London, may soon surrender to modern times in its rearguard action against women.

The London Stock Exchange, dipping a cautious toe into the swelling stream of sex equality, has agreed "in principle" to consider admitting women as full business members. By the end of February a vote will be taken to amend the ancient Deed of Settlement—founding charter — to permit women to become partners in stockbroking firms.

At present the handful of women who work in London brokers' offices can only achieve the status of "attache" or "registered clerk," working on one-third the commission placed by full partners. Attaches are dependent on commission: clerks receive it in addition to a regular salary.

The forces of revolution, however, are hardly headlong. Women will still be barred from dealing on the floor of the House and there is considerable doubt whether the vote to amend the charter will go in their favor anyway.

Amendments have to be carried by a 75 per cent majority of members and there are pockets of resistance to female invasion.

"The wheels grind slowly in here," said a short-term change spokesman, who incidentally let slip the phrase "second class members" as he explained how the 18th century deed would have to be altered to permit women to join.

Two women who have already tried in vain to storm the fortress in Throgmorton Street will likely be first in line if the vote goes in favor. Neither is optimistic that it will.

Mrs. Elisabeth Rivers-Bulkeley, attractive blonde wife of a Lloyd's insurance broker, has been stockbroking as an "attache" for 10 years. Her business days are mostly men and business firms and she has never encountered anti-female prejudice among them.

Her application for membership was turned down in 1962 because her husband was "at business in risk" and the stock exchange felt she might have a "moral obligation" to meet his debts, should he be born in Austria.

Muriel Bailey, a dark-haired woman in her 50s who started in the City in 1925 as a shorthand-typist and now serves as a registered clerk with about 150 clients, was also rejected in 1962.

A year ago, when the stock exchange introduced a form of "limited membership — a category short of partner status in which a broker puts up so many thousand pounds and accepts liability and profits in proportion—Miss Bailey applied again.

EFFICIENCY FEARED

Two male sponsors put her case to the august Stock Exchange Council, the 50-member panel of brokers and jobbers which judges the claims of every candidate for a seat on the exchange. Miss Bailey had to wait outside for 45 minutes while the men deliberated. In the end, they turned her down —but she had the consolation of being the first woman even to reach the Council door.

Neither Miss Bailey nor Mrs. Rivers - Bulkeley are unnerved by exclusion from the hectic floor-dealing. In New York, women already become members of the New York Stock Exchange but are barred from the floor of the house. In a commonly accepted convention on most exchanges that scrambling to buy and sell as prices shuttle is physically too strenuous for women.

The Daily Mail, noting in an editorial that women have successfully proved returns in business fields from banking to store management, suggests it might be fear of the chillingly efficient businesswoman that keeps the barriers up.

"Men enjoy an easy, placid life. They are afraid that women will come and upset them. The female attitude tends to be impatient with some of the slow, easy-going male ways.

"Female stockbrokers might even make a bid for the Stock Exchange Council, start wondering why the exchange closes at 3.15 p.m. and why there are more refreshment rooms in the square yard in that part of London than anywhere else."

Ann Landers Receives Pep Pills From Cleaning Woman

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A friend of mine who is normally quiet — in fact, you might even describe her as depressed — showed up at a party last week in high spirits. I couldn't get over the change in her personality so I pulled her aside and asked what had come over her.

ANN LANDERS

She swore me to secrecy, took a pill box out of her purse and showed me some capsules which she said had done wonders for her. I asked her what was in the capsules and she said she didn't know and didn't care. When I asked if the medical doctor who had recommended them she replied, "I got these from my cleaning woman. I wouldn't say a word to my doctor because he might not approve and I'd be down in the dumps again."

I have never been one to take medicine. In fact, I'm one of those people who has to be dying before I will take an aspirin. I admit I am tempted to try those capsules just to see what they would do to me. Do you know anything about this sort of pepper-upper? — NEED A BOOST.

* * *

DEAR NEED: No more than you do — which is nothing. But this I do know, any medicine you would let her cleaning lady prescribe medication is short a few buttons.

If you need a boost, go to your doctor. Perhaps you are not getting enough rest. Maybe your blood pressure is low, or you need more sugar or a thyroid check. Only a physician should decide.

People who get pepped up with capsules pay for it later. It's like racing a motor at top speed. It could shake you apart. The magic medicine you think is going to put a tiger in your tank could cause sleeplessness, severe heart palpitations, melancholia — or worse. Forget it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I read the letter from "Another Wall Street Warrior's Wife" — only she lives in Winnetka. Her husband probably works on LaSalle Street.

I live in Winnetka, too, and I want that woman used to describe her life apply to me straight across the board. Before you say "So What, . . . they probably apply to a thousand other women." I would like to make it clear that I am not a woman, — I am a husband and father. And if anyone had told me I would wind up writing to Ann Landers, and a serious letter at that, I would have said they were crazy.

But here I am because I want yo uto know that I, too, would gladly exchange the big house, the cars in the garage and the country club membership for a flat, a subway and church with me and the children and show some interest in our home. As far as sex is concerned, that went dead ages ago in the dry martini. — ALSO DISENCHANTED.

* * *

DEAR ALSO: Thanks for your letter. It is a grim reminder that disenchantment in marriage knows no gender.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Two weeks ago my father told my brother and me that our job was to empty the trash every day after school. He said if it wasn't done by the time he got home we'd each have to pay him a quarter.

Last night we forgot and Dad made us hand over the money. Then he said, O.K. now go empty the trash." We told him that since he had collected the quarter, he should do it. Are we right? — BROKE AND OVERWORKED.

* * *

DEAR B. AND O.: No. Emptying the trash is your job and your father was collecting his own quarters. The penalty you guys paid was a fine for failing to live up to your responsibilities.

Academy award winner Bill Thomas illustrates how one can re-shape the silhouette if one knows the basic style line. Using the same dress, he demonstrates some optical illusions that improve a thin, heavy, short or tall figure.

Oscar-winning Designer Gives Fashion Lesson

1. How would you like a fashion lesson from an Oscar-winning designer? Academy Award winner Bill Thomas illustrates how you can "reshape" the silhouette if you know your basic style line. Using the same dress, plus three yards of ribbon, he demonstrates some optical illustrates how you can "reheavy, short or tall figure. "To expand a slender frame, try adding a hip-hugging checked sash to a monotone dress. Notice how this causes the eyes to travel horizontally. The pattern attracts attention, while the cropped waist directs the gaze to the wider section of the body." As actress Susan Gates models, the circular route can be continued with a head-spining hair band and strap shoes.

2. Same dress, but new "line up." Wheeler your goal is to slim the figure or to increase height, think vertically! A striped ribbon, placed down the front of an ensemble increases the linear look. The styling strategy is to guard against oversize proportions. For instance, the bow at the neckline is only one-quarter the length of the streamer. Even the tip of the ribbon has been specially notched so it has a tapered look, instead of a wide, blunt end. Thomas, whose designing magic is seen in Walt Disney's comedy fantasy, "The Gnome-Mobile," reminds that accessories should also follow the vertical path.

3. Contouring the figure means knowing your fashion angles. Test-try the following effects: Drape a piece of ribbon in a V-shape across the chest, and the bust seems smaller. Change the streamer into an elongated "U" and dimensions expand — your figure fault is being short-waisted, diagonalize the line from shoulder to hip bone. If the torso is too long, "shorten" it by wrapping ribbon, contoured - style, around the waist. Thomas, who has garnered seven Academy nominations in the past six years, suggests adding a youthful touch to the accessories. Susan, featured in the Disney film, follows his lead by decorating both crash helmet and glove with polka dot ribbon.

P.S.: Do you want to look your best? Our 12-page, photo - illustrated booklet shows you how, in a series of tested tips on being fashion-wise and well groomed. Also, pretty-up pointers on flatter fashions, ideal make-up and hair styling.

Marinated Onions for Smorgasbord

BY MARY MOORE

NOTE: By coincidence this is turning out to be an onion column.

Dinner Menus

FRIDAY

Grilled Halibut Steaks; Egg Sauce; Baked Potatoes; Green and Yellow Beans; Cucumber Salad with Sour Cream Dressing; Plum Puff Pudding; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Pot Roast of Beef; Rich Brown Gravy; Horseradish Cream; Mashed Potatoes; Sliced Carrots in Parsley Cream Sauce; Marinated Onions (see Fri.); Lattice Strawberry Pie (see Thurs.); Coffee.

QUESTION: Would you please send me a recipe for marinated onions such as are served at a smorgasbord? I believe the onions are Bermuda or Spanish. They are thinly sliced and marinated in a sweet vinegar-oil-sugar, etc mixture and left in the liquid at serving time. — Mrs. John K.

ANSWER:

MARINATED ONIONS

Use mild Canadian Spanish or Bermuda or red Italian onions. Slice them as thinly as possible — not any thicker than ¼". For each average-sized sliced onion prepare a brine of 2-3 cup water and 1 tbsp. salt and soak sliced onions in brine for 30 min. Drain very well and pat dry. For each average-sized onion prepare a marinade of ½ cup mild vinegar, ¼ cup salad oil and 1 or 2 tbsps. sugar. Mix well. Pour over onion slices and allow to marinate for 1 hr. before serving (in the marinade).

Question in your column you forgot to mention the popular onion-gravy which often remains whitish. I cannot get my family to taste my I make, and I should put on pounds eating it myself; I also throw in chopped green onion but I think it wrong. Thank you for all recipes. — Mrs. L. R.

ANSWER: Would you please give me your name and address and include a self-addressed stamped envelope to: Youth Parade, Reba & Bonnie Churchill — To Look Your Best, c/o The Intelligencer, Room 1310, 80 King St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

ONION GRAVY

In a frying pan gently melt 3 tbsps. butter and 2 tbsps. saute in it 1 cup finely chopped mild onion and 1 tbsp. chopped parsley until vegetables are wilted but not brown. Now add 1 beef bouillon cube, 1 whole clove of garlic (if desired), and 1¼ cups boiling water and simmer until onions are tender — about 10 or 12 min. Mix together 2 tbsps. flour, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. sugar, then stir in 1 tbsp. lemon juice and 2 tbsps. cold water until you have a smooth paste. Stir into cooked onion liquid until thick. Remove garlic clove. Taste this. If you want a richer flavor add 1 more beef bouillon cube.

West Has Vital Interest In China Struggle Outcome

Whats ahead for China? Many cross currents of ideology and personalities enter the current purge then, pushing most forecasts in the realm of fancy. In this article, last of a series of five on China, an Associated Press specialist in Communist affairs looks at some of the straws in the wind and weighs the impact.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The outcome of the slugging match between contending forces in China is a matter of tremendous concern for the rest of the world.

What will it mean for the future of Chinese policy? What will it mean for the future of Chinese-Soviet relations, now at their ebb? What impact will it have on China's march toward status as a full-fledged nuclear power? What will it mean to the Chinese people and their economy? Is China facing a new economic disaster?

All these questions and many more are involved in the struggle, but the answers can be little more than speculation.

There is always a possibility, for example, that China would make some sort of peace with Russia if the forces of Mao Mae Tse-tung and Defence Minister Lin Piao lose the battle. All ffe so-called "revisionists" in China are in the other camp.

The Russians aren't betting on that, however. Their commentaries on the China scene leave the impression that they have little expectation of a victory by any pro-Soviet faction.

There is a possibility, too, that a Chinese leadership in a death struggle to maintain itself might be prompted to take some sort of adventurous course as a desperate measure to attempt to unify the country. This could take the form of a military feint toward India or involvement in Vietnam.

Clearly, the Russians are worried about this, and display the worry frequently in their press comments on the China struggle.

The struggle has been going on for years. What is happening now is a new — though probably decisive — phase of it. Meanwhile, it has failed to impede China's march, to membership in the nuclear club, which she now claims by virtue of five explosions, including one which married a nuclear warhead to a missile and brought China's neighbors within range.

Some impact of the struggle may yet be felt in Vietnam, since China is one of the two chief sources of help for North Vietnam and the Communist cause in the South. Disruption of the Chinese economy can mean also disruption in the flow of supplies to Hanoi.

Another result could be a lessening of direct Chinese pressure on Hanoi to fight to the last Vietnamese. Preoccupied with its internal struggle, Peking is in no position to be preoccupied with Vietnam, and this could leave Hanoi some leeway should it want to respond to a peace overture.

The most serious consequences of the struggle are likely to show up in the Chinese economy, already weak and austere. China is a nation of 750,000,000, growing at the rate of 15,000,000 a year. About 500,000,000 are peasants. Food already is short and rationed. Living standards are low.

Now the "great proletarian cultural revolution, by which Mao evidently intends to secure his place in the pantheon of Communist gods and insure against a new generation straying from the orthodox path, has reached to the hinterland peasants. This is dangerous for China. It interferes with spring sowing and the next crops.

There are elements in China, evidently who feel that the country should pull in its horns, become less bellicose and pay more attention to the internal economy. They see a prospect only of long, bitter years of hardship for the whole people under present policies.

This might mean, should that side prevail, some sort of reconcilation with Moscow, although in any case it likely would be an uneasy one.

Nevertheless, by all the signs coming out of Moscow, the Soviet Communist party is preparing its own rank and file for a long struggle against Peking policies.

The Soviet Union is not alone in its worries about what the Chinese "great cultural revolution may produce in the future. Nations on Chinas border and elsewhere watch in fascinated awe as the spectacle of the great upheaval unfolds.

It could lead in almost any direction. That is the danger.

Here's One Way to Keep 'em ...Down on the Farm

By HARRY MULHALL
(Staff Reporter)

PICTON — A bevy of blushing beauties are shaping up here for a shapely head-on clash that may make Belleville blanch next Tuesday.

The event is that most awesome of horror epics in the sports world — a grudge match.

Only this time it's taken some different twists - or curves.

And those curves will be seen in some mean twists on ice when the South Marysburg Rockets and the Picton Amazin's face off their all-girl line-up against each other at the Memorial Arena in Belleville on Jan. 31.

The grudge game is part of a double bill with a contest between the Junior B Quinte McFarlands and Trenton Apple Kings taking the second half of the evening.

But star billing has been reserved for the distaff dispute and game organizers emphasize the sooner fans make reservations the better.

They also are emphatic that in the event the ensuing clash leaves the arena damaged beyond repair, refunds will not be made for the second game.

However, all precautions are being taken to at least protect the general public from the fury of the fray. As for the players, there'a a rumor around that only Lloyd's of London will underwrite personal insurance risks.

Meantime, oblivious to all else but the smell of success, the girls are forging ahead with battle practice at the arena here.

Managers for both sides are confident that their comely charges will carry on to victory — although they don't say.

Mrs. Ruth Calver (Picton Amazin's) and Mrs. Dorothy McCaw (The Rockets) know that compliments cut no ice with the girls.

In fact, the way they're shaping up here in practice, the final facing-off may well be a compliment to the bravery of Belleville sports fans.

It looks like the kind of tangle that sends grizzled ambulance drivers scrambling for their smelling salts and big policemen screaming into the night.

However, see for yourself. Game time for the battle of the beauties is 8 p.m. with the Junior B challenge hopefully slated for an hour later.

However, even in such forceful jousting sportswomanship still prevails. After the scars have healed, the Amazin's and the Rockets intend joining forces to challenge for the Ontario Lipstick title.

Combout--Then Workout!

Getting the tangles out before the final tangle with deadly rivals are these South Marysburg Rockets — Debra (Tiny) McCaw and Jackie (Hula) Dance, with (rear) Carolyn (Lanky) Langmuir and Charlotte (Bomber) Brown.

Strategy: Slay 'em With A Smile...

Getting Dressed to Kill!

After all a girl should look her best — even if she does have murder in mind. Amazin' goalie Toni Rondeavelt gets fashion OK from centre Maureen Ryan before flashing smile is replaced by glinting eyes on ice.

It's Me--on Parliament Hill!

Harry J. Clarke students had their pictures taken on Ottawa trip outside Houses of Parliament. Seeking selves out from the group are (from left, front) Anne Bradford, Nancy Wormald, Robert Cronk; (rear) Douglas Throop, Stephen Hendry and Sally Taylor.

Students Enjoy Parliament

Whither Ottawa?

The future may hold a happier answer.

While the adults fume and fret over the nation's parliamentary proceedings, younger Canadians find it absorbing.

While the adults often express a deathly wish to ignore the whole business, the younger set want to see more of it.

At least, those are the impressions brought back to Belleville Wednesday night by a group of Harry J. Clarke public school students who spent the day at the nation's capital.

Six selected young spokesmen later set forth the reactions to the first sight of the nation's capital by nearly 170 of their Grade 8 fellows.

Their biggest beef?

They didn't see enough of Parliament — either as an assembly or the nation's No. 1 public building.

"We didn't have enough time to get anything out of it, confessed 12-year-old Robert Cronk. "We got a fair idea — but if we had been there longer we would have understood more."

The itinerary for the trip was a busy one — calling for viewing the RCMP musical ride quarters at Rockcliffe, the Governor-General's residence and the National Art Gallery, among others.

The highlight was the visit to Parliament, where Lee Grills; MP South Hastings had arranged for the students to sit in on the daily Commons question time period.

But, a funny thing happened on the way out of the nation's forum.

The youngsters had found the time spent in the Parliament buildings fascinating and wanted more of it, said the young spokesmen. The earlier side trips seemed only a time-consuming diversion to them.

Consequently, they felt such future educational trips might benefit by concentrating strictly on Parliament, in everything from its architecture to its assemblies.

"I wish we'd just gone to the Parliament building itself, said 12-year-old Sally Taylor, "so that we had longer to see each part."

The young student said she returned from the trip not knowing all she wanted but with "a better idea" of how Parliament works.

Agreed 12-year-old Nancy Wormald: "I'd like to mainly tour the parliament buildings and spend more time there. We didn't get to see very much of the place.

"I think we would have got more out of it if we'd stayed a few more hours, added Stephen Hendry, 12.

"I'd like to see more of the parliamentary library and that — and be able to look around it, said 13-year-old Anne Bradford.

A more personal impression was added by Douglas Throop, 12.

It was gleaned during the question time visit when he spotted one MP reading a newspaper at his desk.

"He seemed sort of bored—I don't think he should have been reading that newspaper. . . . Especially when there are kids like us around to tell on him, grinned Sally Taylor.

Bruins Ruin Canadiens With Fourth Win In Seasonal Rivalry

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Everybody feasts on the lowly Boston Bruins. Everybody except Montreal Canadiens.

Each National Hockey League club, with the exception of the Canadiens, holds an advantage in the win column against Boston so far this season.

But the Bruins seem to save their best hockey for the Canadiens. Thursday night, the last-place club came up with one of its best performances of the season to down the defending league and Stanley Cup champions 4-1.

Don Stewart led the Boston attack with the winning goal and also assisted on a goal by Murray Oliver. Ed Westfall and John McKenzie scored the other Boston goals. Dick Duff scored for Montreal.

In the other NHL game Bobby Hull scored two goals, including the deciding one, in overtime - leading Chicago Black Hawks a 4-3 victory over Detroit Red Wings.

Ken Hodge and Stan Mikita scored the other Chicago goals. Alex Delvecchio, Bruce MacGregor and Val Fonteyne replied for the Red Wings. Hull's two goals boosted his season total to 35 - best in the league.

Boston's victory over the Canadiens was the Bruins' third in their last four starts and it was also their fourth victory of the season against Montreal.

The Canadiens have three visits against Boston in eight meetings so far this season. One game ended in a tie.

Duff gave the Canadiens a 1-0 lead in the first period but Oliver tied the game early in the second period. Stewart put the Bruins ahead to stay at 13:31 of the second period and Westfall and McKenzie added goals 70 seconds apart late in the third period.

Ed Johnston was spectacular in the Boston goal, particularly in the first two periods when he thwarted just about every member of the Montreal club.

The Canadiens were outshot 32-34 but Johnston had more difficult saves to make than Charlie Hodge in the Montreal nets.

The victory left the Bruins in last place with 21 points, four fewer than the fifth-place Red Wings and eight fewer than the fourth-place Canadiens.

Hull's second goal of the night and 30th of the season at 16:32 of the third period snapped a 3-3 tie. He scored the goal on a 40-foot slapshot in front of Detroit goalie Roger Crozier.

Mikita's goal was the 200th of his NHL career and 20th of the season, boosting his points total to 59. Mikita also leads the league in assists with 39.

Delvecchio gave the Wings a 1-0 lead at 9:28 of the first period but Hull tied the game just over a minute later with his first goal of the game. Hodge put the Hawks ahead 2-1 midway through the second period but MacGregor tied it up just over six minutes later.

Mikita put the Hawks in front 3-2 before the two-minute mark of the third period but Fonteyne tied it for Detroit at 5.10, setting the stage for Hull's winner.

The victory boosted the Hawks into a five - point lead over the second - place New York Rangers in the standings. The Hawks have 54 points and have lost only 11 games in 41 outings this season.

The Hawks had only 36 shots at Crozier throughout the game while the Red Wings fired 34 shots at Denis Dejordy in the Chicago nets.

Seems like Master Bobby Orr has set something of a record. How many junior hockey players jumped into the National League with no stops and was named to the second all-star squad? Pro Soccer Loop Imports Teams

NEW YORK (AP) — The North American Soccer League, represented by 10 U.S. and two Canadian cities, will begin regular season competition in May with teams imported from nine countries, it was announced Thursday.

The disclosure followed two day meetings of club and league officials, the latter headed by commissioner Dick Walsh.

Walsh said that the Aberdeen team of Scotland will represent Washington, D.C., Stoke City of Britain will represent Cleveland and Sunderland of Britain will represent Vancouver.

The other cities in the new professional circuit are Toronto, New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Detroit, Houston, Dallas and Los Angeles.

These franchises also will import teams from Italy, Ireland, Czechoslovakia, Mexico, Brazil, Holland and Portugal, the names to be announced within the next few weeks.

Each team will play 16 season games, eight home and eight away in a two-division setup ending in late July. This will be followed by a three-game playoff, the first two between the first- and second-place teams in each division and the championship game between the divisional playoff winners.

Toronto, Boston, New York, Washington; Detroit and Cleveland will be in the eastern division and Vancouver, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Houston, Dallas and Chicago in the west.

CANADIAN WINS

DURBAN (Reuters) — Former Montrealer Mike Belkin beat Gerald Battrick of Britain 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, 6-3 in a first-rolling Leaf singles match at the Natal Tennis Championships Thursday. Belkin now plays out of Miami Beach, Fla.

McKilligan Family Seeks Figure-Skating Titles

TORONTO (CP) — It's one down and two to go in the Canadian figure-skating championships for the McKilligan family from Vancouver.

Patrick McKilligan, 14, chalked up the first mark for his clan Thursday night by winning the men's novice title after a brilliant freestyle performance.

Now it's up to his older sister and brother, Betty, 17, and John, 18, who are favorites in the senior pairs competition Sunday.

"Betty and John can do it," said Patrick following his win. "After all, they're McKilligans and this championship is our centennial project."

The project received vocal and moral support from the Mc Killigan's father, Art, who unfurled the British Columbia flag during the freestyle competition.

"But you notice I didn't bring it out until after Patrick skated," said their father, a school teacher. "As soon as I saw him perform, I knew he won it."

A Grade 9 student at Windsor secondary school in North Vancouver, Patrick scored three firsts in the ordinal totals and piled up 417.2 points.

Kenneth Polk, 12, of Toronto was leading in the competition, but he fell during his freestyle solo and ended up in second place, 10 points behind Patrick. Paul Fisher, 16, of Victoria was third with 392.4 points.

Mary McCaffrey, 12, of Vancouver added another national title to the B.C. team's list by winning the novice women's freestyle competition Thursday night despite a fall in her freestyle performance.

Mary, who had a commanding lead going into the freestyle final, finished with five out of five firsts in the total ordinals and 407.6 points.

Cynthia Miller, 15, of Montreal was second with 381.6 points. Diane Hall, 17, of Toronto had 378.0 points, but was placed third because Miss Miller had a majority in the ordinals.

Earlier Thursday, 15-year-old Ruth Hutchinson of Vancouver's Riverside Skating Club took the lead in the junior women's competition by winning the compulsory figures, which count 60 per cent of a skater's final mark.

She scored four out of five firsts and was awarded 466.2 points in the gruelling five-figure competition. Dianna Williams, 15, of Toronto was second with 444 points and Judy Williams, 18, of Guelph finished third with 417.0.

On the other side of the junior ledger, David Coffin, 17, of the North Shore Winter Club in Vancouver won the men's compulsory figures to take a commanding lead into tonight's final freestyle round.

David had four out of five firsts and 429.1 points. Bob Emerson, 16, of Toronto had one first and 404.1 points to finish second. Another Toronto skater, John MacWilliams, 15, was third with 396.8 points.

The championships, with more than 150 entries, continue today.

"Louie" Named Centennials' GM

Belleville's Centennial hockey club, with a new general manager and trainer to match, will tangle with the Reme Army team of Kingston tomorrow night.

The game is being played in Kingston's Constantine Arena at 9.00 p.m. Saturday. Belleville expects to have a full team with the exception of Jeffy Mc Gure and Jerry Jones.

Redmond Runs Total To 33 For Season

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Flyers moved to within four points of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A lead Thursday night, but Hamilton Red Wings are still right behind them.

The Flyers took a 4-3 decision over Peterborough Petes on Derek Sanderson's goal with less than four minutes remaining. Meanwhile, the Red Wings built a 3-0 cushion early in the second period at home, then hung on to defeat Oshawa Generals 3-2.

The Flyers, with 38 points and a two-point hold on third place, have played three more games than the Red Wings, Hamilton with 36 points. The Generals and the Petes are tied in the cellar.

John Schella scored the other Peterborough goal.

In Hamilton, Danny Lawson scored twice and Sandy Sowa made it 3-0 before the Generals could get untracked. Ron Dussiaume and Bill Scott scored for Oshawa before time ran out.

The Generals' troubles didn't end there — they lost Dave Hayes with a knee injury when he collided with Hamilton defenceman Rick Smith early in the third period.

Rocky Farr of the London Nationals played as Oshawa's emergency replacement for goaltender Ian Young. Young is still hospitalized with an eye injury.

Mo-Hawks Need Win Tonight

"It's tough to be playing as well as we did against Barrie and Toronto and still lose hockey games."

That was one of the Mo - Hawks talking following their heart - breaking 1-0 loss at North Bay one night ago Sunday.

The setback was that much harder to take because it was the club's third in succession. The Mo - Hawks stunk against Guelph here but on the road, had enough opportunities to score and carried enough of the play to win three games.

Thus, despite their strong play of late, the Mo - Hawks are in a three - game "slip up," one they must snap tonight if they hope to stay ahead of the clubs behind them.

But the Woodstock Athletics will be out for blood after suffering an upset loss in Orillia earlier this week. Orillia continues to be one of the toughest clubs to beat at home but failure to take a full club on the road has hurt their position.

If fans recall, the Athletics beat the Mo - Hawks in overtime in their last appearance here. "We want that one back," says coach Floyd Crawford.

It won't be easy.

Young Ray Reason is one of, if not the top, goalie in the loop. And a rough - tough, two - way defence includes Bryle Klinck, Pat Bester, Don McGregor and Roy "Goose" Land. They don't give anything away.

Divided scoring punch is one of the secrets of the club's second - place standing in the OHA Senior "A" league. Their top point getter, Danny Mahony, is down in 15th in league scoring but all the forwards can put the puck in the net.

Included are Bobby Robinson, Art Sullivan and Dino Leggio among the better attackers.

"We'll need a strong effort from every player to beat them but we can do," claims Crawford.

B.M.H.A. Vice-President Resigns

The Sports Editor:

Due to the fact that I have been in direct opposition to the actions taken by the Belleville Minor Hockey Association and some of its Executive officers, during the past few months, I therefore have tendered in the BMHA my resignation as Second Vice-President, to take effect as of the 23rd of January, 1967.

I wish to take this opportunity, through the medium of your paper, to let the public at large know that I am no longer in any way connected with the Association or the actions which it may take in the future.

I do want to add that I feel that the public as a whole, is very disinterested in matters such as are conducted by a voluntary organization like this Association, and until some interest is shown by the general public, they will continue to be administered in manners not conducive to good business practice.

There are many questions which have been raised in my own mind in this regard and I am certain that the general public could find the time to wonder about the operations of organizations such as these.

Trusting that I have been of some help in my efforts toward this organization, and hoping that I may in some small way, help in the future.

George Dalnard.

Ivanhoe Trims Thomasburg 3-1 In CHHL Tilt

Ivanhoe Knights plucked Thomasburg Thunderbirds' tail feathers by a 3-1 count in a lone Centre Hastings Hockey League game last night.

The win tightened Ivanhoe's grip on second place and prevented Thomasburg from climbing into fourth position.

It was a penalty-riddled contest, tied 1-1 after one period, before the winners potted single markers in the second and third.

In an exhibition game, the strengthened Glen Ross team, which will represent the CHHL in district intercounty playoffs, whipped SACO of Belleville's Quinte League 11-2.

Glen Ross' big line, with Eldon Gray replacing the injured Ken McConnell, had a scoring field day. Gray had one goal and five assists, Andy Faulkner three goals and two assists and Jack Wright two of each. Barry Fryear potted two goals, Bob and Bill Stabler and Glen Hagerman a goal each.

The Collingwood centre has 62 points, including a loop - leading total of 34 assists, and holds a nine - point lead on Jack Price of Oakville Oaks. The latter has 23 goals and 30 assists for 53 points.

Most of the other 20 - goal men rank near the top of the scoring parade.

The most prolific shooter is Ron Hergott of Galt Hornets. He's tied for 10th spot in the scoring race with 26 points but has hammered home 19 goals in only 20 games.

Slump Broken

Don Byes Medicine For Ailing Macs

By GARRY ALEXANDER
Staff Sportswriter

PICTON — Sparked by the offensive leadership of Ron Riley and Bruce Neil, Quinte McFarlands came back from a 3-1 deficit to win an exciting 7-4 "must" decision over Peterborough Don Byes here last night.

The important victory snapped two streaks. The Macs' win pulled them out of a slump and gave them a three-point lead over Kingston in the battle for fourth place. Don Byes' loss was only their second in the last 15 games and left the club tied with Oshawa for the OHA Eastern Junior "B" leadership.

Quinte visits Oshawa and Trenton goes to Kingston tonight.

"It was one we had to win and I am proud of the boys. That was one of our best team efforts of the season," coach Fiori Geegan beamed.

The Macs did it the hard way.

They trailed 2-0 before the game was three minutes old and 3-1 after one heat. Three unanswered goals in the fast-moving second period put them ahead 4-3. But the Petes weren't dead. They tied it after 43 seconds of the third.

BRUCE NEIL

* * *

Ron Riley took defenceman Neil's pass in the centre zone and cut through the defence perfectly before sinking a backhand drive for the winning goal at 6:36. It was his second such effort of the night and the stylish scoring ace was not through yet.

He and Neil broke in again, two-on-one, at 12:00 with Neil carrying the puck. Riley gunned the pass home and for the first time the Macs had a firm grip on the win.

The Don Byes never quit. They lifted goalie Randy Reid for a sixth attacker at 18:40, down two goals, and Neil wrapped up the win by scoring into the empty net.

In all, Neil had a five-point night with two goals and three assists for by far his best effort of the campaign. Riley clicked for three goals and an assist to stay in contention for the scoring crown.

Doug Potts and Larry Stewart added the other goals. Billy Hopkins, John Todd, Pete Fleming and Harold Townsend drew assists.

Rick McLeish had two goals and an assist, Ron Chittick a goal and two helpers, linemate Perry Chittick two assists and Bill Stabler a goal in defeat.

Quinte outshot Peterborough 34-29 and Mac goalie Bob Forrester pulled off several great saves, one on McLeish when he broke in alone, to help keep the club "up" in the game's second half.

Chittick, and McLeish twice, pounced on rebounds while Neil hit the net on a low blueline sizzler for the first-period scoring.

Hopkins and Ray Summers set the pace in the opening seconds of the middle period by narrowly missing as the Macs pressed. Potts stickhandled in close to ignite the comeback at 6:20.

Stewart scored a fluke goal for Quinte's initial lead at 18:12 when he flipped the puck over the net from behind. It hit on edge, took "siding" and darted back into the net.

Stabler's backhand beauty, off Mackness' side-boards pass, tied it early in the third and set the stage for Riley's final pair.

The losers drew nine of 18 minor penalties as both clubs threw some solid bodychecks.

Surtees Returning To Mosport

TORONTO (CP) — Racing driver John Surtees plans a return to Mosport track next August despite a pair of mishaps that struck him in his last two appearances there.

Surtees, 32-year-old native of Limpsfield, England, will drive in Canada's first Formula One race scheduled Aug. 27 in the 2½ mile circular track northeast of Toronto.

Surtees was among the guests at an annual sports activities dinner Thursday night and revealed his plans prior to the $2-a-plate affair sponsored by the Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association.

The dinner attracted 1,146 persons, with proceeds to go to a project in nearby Oshawa being carried out by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Surtees was severely injured in a crash during a trial for the Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport in October, 1960, and spent five months in hospitals, two of them in Toronto and the rest in England.

He returned to Mosport for the Grand Prix last year but was knocked out of contention in a pileup in the starting grid. He was not seriously injured but was unable to compete in the race.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ontario's top athlete of 1966, was awarded a plaque. He won the United States amateur title last year, becoming the first Canadian to win the crown since Sandy Somerville of London, Ont., did it in 1932.

Other head-table guests included Frank Tindall, veteran football coach at Queen's University in Kingston; pitcher Claude Raymond of Houston Astros and a native of St. Jean, Que.; and football player Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan.

Also included were several of Canada's gold medal winners at the British Empire Games at Jamaica last year. They included swimmers Elaine Tanner, Jane Hughes and Marion Lay, all of Vancouver; Sandy Gilchrist and Radko Hutton, both of Ocean Falls, B.C.; shooters Gil Boa of St. Catharines and Jim Lee of Vancouver, and track star Harry Jerome of Vancouver.

Gas House 'M' Squads Post Wins

Mustangs and Marysville B.A. registered opening wins in the Gas House Hockey League playoffs last night.

Marysville tamed the Comets 5-3 and Mustangs nipped Sunoco 5-4 in the first games of three-of-five sets. Second games are scheduled for next Thursday.

Two players attended to the Mustang goal - scoring. Tom Meeker collected three goals and Jim Horwood had the other pair. Tom Woodley drew two assists, Dave Snedden, Leo Holland and Rusty Garvin one each.

Stu Craig scored twice, Gerry Brennan had a goal and assist and Hugh Petrie added the other goal for Sunoco. Doug Bolte had three helpers and Ted Soule one.

Carm Milligan triggered two Marysville markers but Harold Pascoe led the point-getters with a goal and three assists. Bill Richmond and Jim Woodcock also scored. Bruce Pascoe and Paul Couney had single assists.

For the Comets, Harold Babcock scored twice and Chuck Pascoe had a goal and assist. Duke Doran, Al Vader and Frank Wiles had assists.

Council Passes Resolution To Issue Further Debentures

DESERONTO — The Deseronto Town council has held two special meetings this week, one on Monday, and the second on Wednesday.

Monday evening's meeting was called to consider a letter from Hisey and Barrington, the town's engineers, advising council to request the Ontario Water Resources Commission to undertake as a provincial project the work detailed by Hisey and Barrington for a sewage collection system in the town of Deseronto. After some discussion a motion was passed that this be done.

At this point, Councillor James Sharp severely reprimanded James McVicker for what he called "incorrect and biased reporting of town affairs, and especially of council matters in the newspaper as a neighboring city.

A second mistter was brought to the attention of the council. A letter dated January 20 had been received from the secretary of the Napanee District Collegiate Institute Board, and, as this was to be the annual meeting of the present meeting a motion was necessary before it could be considered.

The letter requested the Deseronto Council to pass a resolution authorizing the Lennox and Addington County Council to issue further debenture of $90,000 in addition to the $80,000 already issued, to pay for the addition to the Collegiate. The resolution also is made necessary because of the cessation in building by the first contractor and the necessity of engaging a second firm. Possible lawsuits are in the offing, and additional expense was incurred when Weller and Co. stopped work. Also the old tender was lower than the one which as now been accepted.

CONSIDERABLE DISCUSSION

After considerable discussion, the resolution was passed. However, some council members felt that the matter should not be dealt with too hastily, and an amendment was passed, and resulted in postponement of the decision until a meeting could be called for this purpose. They felt that more time was necessary for looking at all sides of the question.

At the second special meeting of the week two days later, after a further expression of opinions, the motion passed on a recorded vote. Councillor Dorothy McCullough was the sole dissenter. Voting yea were Reeve Donald Armitage, Councillors Gordanier, Huff m a n, Sharpe, William Higgins and Clayton Brooks, and Mayor Gerald Last.

A second motion was passed to register the dissatisfaction of the Deseronto town council over the fact that the whole matter has been handled. Clerk-treasurer Joseph Reynolds was instructed to write a letter of strong disapproval to the Lennox and Addington County Council for its delaying tactics.

Since closing its own high school Deseronto has been a part of the Napanee District school area.

Expect Increase In Budget For 1967

NAPANEE — Town councillors are busy people of late with evening of one, and sometimes meetings practically every several, committees. The budget is the big question. It takes time to estimate the probable expenditures for the year, and usually involves further investigation of several phases of the work of that department. No committee has yet come up with a figure, but it is fully expected that in several cases it will be a bigger figure than for 1966.

Townspeople are almost reconciled to the fact that their taxes will be higher. Some increase as to the increase in the mill rate have already been set. Clerk-treasurer Carson Graham says they are mere guesses, as no definite figure has been arrived at by any one committee.

It is certain that it will take a lot more to police Napanee this year, as much larger quarters are being planned for the department, with a full time secretary. Fire Chief "Pat" Purdon does not see how he can cope without a new fire truck.

By February each committee should have its estimates ready and these will be presented at a special meeting of the town council.

Festival Will Screen Films From Past

Belleville and District Film Council will begin its centennial year series of film festivals with a nostalgic look at Canada's past. The event will be held at Corby Library auditorium Jan. 30.

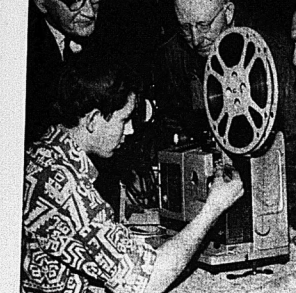
Purpose of the festival is to show individuals and organizations how films can be used for entertainment and instruction during centennial year.

Turn of the Century, one of the films to be screened Monday evening, is a glance at people and events, customs and manners at the end of the 19th and beginning of the 20th century. Canada Between Two World Wars gives vivid recollections of life in Canada between the end of the First World War and the beginning of the second. Visuals, commentary and music combine in Romance of Transportation to give a spritely account of one aspect of Canada's history.

These films are only three of the 18 available through the Film Council at Corby Library. Subjects range from architecture to the Yukon, from psychology to sailing and are geared for all age groups from pre-schoolers to senior citizens.

The Film Council rents blocks of films from the National Film Board and obtains others through foreign embassies in Ottawa, travel agencies, companies such as Bell Telephone and Imperial Oil and from independent film distributors. The Council owns four 16mm and one 8mm projectors. The annual membership fee of $10 entitles an organization to use of film and equipment. Non-members are charged $ 1 fee for use of the projector and a small rental for each film. A trained projectionist must accompany each machine borrowed, unless a member of the group has taken the projectionist's course given by the Film Council.

Another service offered by film librarian Miss Cathi McDonald, is program planning. Conveners grasping for ideas for entertainment for their groups will find a host of ideas in the film catalogue. Informative and interesting films to augment discussions and illustrate educational programs are also available at the Library.



Premiere of Film Festival

Preserve the View

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli government has ruled that no more than one television aerial may appear on each building, to preserve the appearance of cities. TV broadcasting begins in Israel in 1967 or 1968 and it was feared a forest of aerials might spoil the skyline.

Ice Show Sure Fire Starter for New Series

NEW YORK (AP)—Coliseum, the direct descendant of last summer's Hippodrome on CBS, started off auspiciously Thursday night.

The series, replacing Jericho, will be taped performances of assorted and novelties that circle, mostly foreign, and the opening program was surefire: An ice show.

When you have seen one ice show you have really seen them all. Skating seems to hold a perenial appeal with its graceful movements, flashing blades and, now that color has come to so many homes, the costumes.

Stars of the show were the professionals of the new Vienna extravaganza on ice, performing before an audience in Brussels, Belgium. There was the corps of 45 girl skaters, kicking and whirling, the usual male and girl soloist, the boy-and-girl act and, of course, the comedians.

As usual, it was not enough television, so the show was fortified by Herman's Hermits, a long - haired British singing quartet.

Recommended viewing: Saturday—Hollywood Stars of Today, Herman, ABC special, 9:30-11 p.m.

Sunday — The Magic of Charles Dickens, CBS, 4-5 p.m., reading by Emlyn Williams; The 21st Century, CBS, 6:30, premiere of a new series looking into the future; Telephone Hour, NBC, 6:30-7:30, The Sights and Sounds of San Francisco; The Final War of Olly Winters, CBS, 9:30-10, drama with Ivan Dixon as the president's aide in the white house series; Return of the Gunfighter, ABC, 9-11, Robert Taylor in a film made for television; The Royal Palaces.

Sunday School Lesson

Witness to Faith Needed

By CLARENCE W. CRANFORD

"It is a far cry from the Christian who goes to church if he feels like it, listens to a sermon if he stays awake, and goes home to forget about his Christian responsibilities until the next Sunday, or the next time he goes to church, to what Jesus expected of those who followed Him during His earthly ministry. He was constantly sending out His followers to minister in His name. He was continually getting them involved in His mission to the world.

In Luke 9 and 10 it tells how He sent His 12 specially-chosen disciples out to "preach the kingdom of God and to heal" in the presence of a hungry crowd. He said, "Give them something to eat." He called on people to deny themselves in order to follow Him. He led three of His disciples from a mountain - top of inspiration into a valley of service. He sent the 70 followers out two by two to prepare the way for His mission. To a lawyer who wanted a clearance of eternal life, He told the story of a Samaritan who stopped to help the victim of robbers, and held up to disciples two religious leaders who passed by without responding to the victim's need.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for January 29: "The Messiah and His Mission." Luke 9 and 10.

Even His death He thought of as an "accomplishment." He would accomplish by means of His death what He could not do with His life alone. Without His life, His death would have no meaning. But without His death, His life would have no saving power. Therefore He not only had to live for others. He felt He had to die for them.

This doesn't sound much like a faith that requires an hour's worship one day a week, and makes no demands the rest of the time. It sounds like a faith that sends people out into the world to live and witness to their faith. It sounds like a faith that expects people to get involved in a sense of mission.

CHURCH TOO SMALL

J. B. Phillips once wrote a book entitled, "Your God Is Too Small." He might also have written for many Christians, "Your idea of the church is too small," or "Your idea of the Christian life is too small." Most Christians think of the church as a place to go on Sunday to receive inspiration for themselves. They fail to remember that they are the church, and so the church goes with them wherever they go. As Christians, part of their mission is to try to help other people.

This does not mean that churches can throw worship out the window. There are times when, like Mary, people need to sit in quiet communion with their Lord, (Luke 10:29) People can be so busy that God's Spirit doesn't have a chance to catch up with them.

STRANGE REQUEST

When Jesus sent people out on His mission, He made a strange request. "Carry no purse, no bag, no sandals; and salute no one on the road." (Luke 10:4 RSV) There was an urgency about their mission. Only the accomplished would not depend on the man - made things they could provide. It depended on whether God's Spirit went with them. When some of them came back claiming victory over evil spirits in the hearts of those they approached, Jesus rejoiced, "and thanked God that His Holy Spirit had opened His disciples' eyes, and had given them success on their mission, (Luke 10:17 and 21)

In His vivid way of illustrating His truths, Jesus once likened His followers to salt. (Matthew 5:13) This was a great compliment, for without salt, most foods are insipid. But, as has often been pointed out, before salt can add flavor to food, two things must happen. It must be gathered. Then it must be scattered.

Also, it must be gathered from the salt mines. It must be purified and put into salt-shakers before it can be brought to the kitchen or table. Then it must be scattered on the food. Salt that remains in a salt-shaker never improved the flavor of any food.

People needed to be drawn from their pre-occupation with the world. They must be purified by God's cleansing Spirit. Then they must be sent back into the world again to impart a new flavor to life. They must have a faith that can heal the wounds of the world just as the Samaritan had oil and wine with which to cleanse and soothe the wounds of the beaten man. (Luke 10:34) They do not invent this faith themselves. It comes from following Christ as the Lord of the church, (Luke 9:20)

Gus, Ed and Roger Shared One Love--They Lived to Fly

EDWARD WHITE

HOUSTON (AP)—They knew each other as Gus, Ed and Roger. And they shared one real love that bound them together as a team—they lived to fly.

For LL-Col. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, the first Apollo mission would have been his third trip into space, a distinction no man today can claim.

For LL-Col. Edward H. White II, it was a flight that commanded his eagerness as much as his first when he slipped outside Gemini 4 for a breathtaking 21-minute walk in space, America's first.

The three died together Friday when fire erupted inside the Apollo spaceship they were to take on a voyage of up to 14 days in orbit around earth, beginning Feb. 21.

Some called Grissom a hard-luck astronaut. As one of the famed original seven Mercury spacemen, he had to swim for his life after taking a 15-minute suborbital flight July 21, 1961, when his tiny spaceship, Liberty Bell 7, blew its hatch and sank.

Then, March 23, 1965, he and Cmdr. John W. Young had the honor of launching the United States into its highly successful Gemini program with a three-orbit flight in Gemini 3.

Grissom, 40, was a short man with a deep, business-like voice who wore his hair in a crewcut.

During the Korean War Grissom, too young for Second World War flying, finally won his wings, going on to fly 100 missions and win the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Grissom, as were White and Chaffee, was the father of two children.

The son of an air force general, White, 36, was born in San Antonio, Tex., but lived there only a short time.

A deeply religious man, White, a Methodist, attended church regularly. He kept his six-foot frame in top physical condition. In fact, he ranked No. 1 in physical aptitude in his class of 1952 at West Point, and set a 440-yard hurdle record.

Chaffee inherited his love for the air. His father, Donald Chaffee of Grand Rapids, Mich., is a former barnstormer who flew at county fairs in an open cockpit plane.

The astronaut was a slight, dark-haired man who at 31 already had begun to grey.

Co - workers, including Grissom, praised him as a smart engineer.

Chaffee held a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering from Purdue and chose a navy career. He became an astronaut with the third group named in 1963.

Cut in Bank Rate Could Aid Housing

The reduction in the Bank of Canada interest rate may refuvenate Canada's flagging home-building industry, a major Belleville contractor predicted here today.

The bank will reduce its rate to five per cent from 5¼ per cent effective Monday.

The move signals a general easing of credit, the Canadian Press reports.

The decision was announced Friday night by the bank's governor Louis Rasminsky.

"This reduction in the bank rate should be taken as an indication of the bank's view that the recent easing of credit conditions is appropriate to Canada's domestic economic circumstances and its external financial position," he said in a terse statement.

The Bank of Canada rate had remained unchanged since March 14 last year, when it was increased to 5¼ per cent.

There was at least one favorable local reaction this morning to the news from Ottawa.

Belleville builder Maurice Rollins felt the Bank of Canada move could be reflected in reduced conventional lending rates now hinged around 8 per cent.

He felt conventional rates might now draw closer to the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's 7¼ per cent — another move to credit onto the home-building market.

"The gap between the two is now three-quarters of one percent. When it gets down to half per cent the conventional lenders like to put money into CMHC mortgages because they're government-guaranteed," he said.

The freer environment might also again loosen the vast reservoir of funds held by insurance companies and encourage them to re-enter the mortgage field, reflected Mr. Rollins.

"That's exactly what we're waiting for," he added.

He conjectured the reduction might also favorably affect the current CMHC rate when it comes up for its regular quarterly review by government.

The manager of one district trust company doubted if conventional institutions were keen on entering the CMHC environment.

However, he foresaw a likely decrease of interest rates in coming months.

"I think even without the Bank of Canada announcement the rate was going to ease on conventional rates anyway," he said.

The move down and might begin around March — the time of year when housing demands begin to step up.

Elsewhere, the reaction of local bank managers to the Bank of Canada's announcement, was caution.

One manager pointed out it might take some time for effects of the bank's move to filter down to the commercial money zones.

Interest rates on short-term credit have been cut recently by several lending institutions in Britain and the United States.

The Bank of Britain trimmed its record seven-per-cent rate to 6½ per cent Thursday and the same time the Chase Manhattan Bank, the second - largest commercial bank in the U.S., cut its prime rate for business loans to 5½ from 6 per cent.

The First National City Bank of New York trimmed its prime interest rate to 5½ from six per cent Friday. Other large U.S. banks followed. Within a few hours, Bank of America, the largest, anaounced in San Francisco that it would join others in trimming its rate to 5½ per cent.

'Didn't Have A Chance' Apollo Tragedy Verdict

Moon Program Stalled

Belleville's Friday-night traffic backed up along main arteries last night as severe storm conditions slowed rush-hour motorists. Among the men sorting out the situation was police veteran Constable Elmer Minaker.

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. moon program has suffered heavily, not only by the personal tragedy of losing three astronauts, but also by stalling perhaps for months the effort to land men on the moon by 1970.

However, officials say it is too early to tell whether the U.S. goal of trying a moon trip by the end of the decade is in jeopardy after Friday's disaster on a Cape Kennedy, Fla., launch pad.

Lt.-Col. Virgil I. Grissom Jr., Lt.-Col. Edward H. White II and Lt.-Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee died during a simulated flight of their Apollo spaceship when a sudden fire engulfed the vehicle.

Several major factors are involved in determining how long the National Aeronautics and Space Administration now must wait before launching its first manned Apollo flight, a mission of up to two weeks. Grissom, White and Chaffee were to begin Feb. 21.

First, an investigating board must determine exactly what caused the fire, whether it was something only peculiar to this one spaceship, or whether it was a problem that might force a re-designing of the Apollo vehicle's systems.

Then, there is the matter of equipment—whether the spaceship involved in the fire must be completely discarded and a new one used in its place.

Oxygen Flames Kill Astronauts

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — A sudden fire in a space ship Friday night killed the first three men the United States planned to send to the moon.

Quickly and silently, flames fed by pure oxygen ripped through the first Apollo moonship during a practice session.

Not a word was spoken as the fire took the lives of two veterans and a rookie headed for his first journey in space.

The holocaust on Pad 34, which set the U.S. moon program back perhaps for months, claimed these victims:

Virgil I. (Gus Grissom, 40, hero of the Mercury and Gemini programs that blazed the first American trails in space.

All three of the dead were married and each had two children.

Rescue Bid Futile

Twenty - seven launch pad crew members were overcome by smoke in brave but futile efforts to get through to the astronauts. Two were taken to hospital.

Not until 1:55 a.m., more than seven hours after the fire broke out, were the bodies removed from the smouldering spaceship. They were taken to a nearby dispensary.

"They didn't have a chance," said a space agency spokesman. "It was instantaneous."

Some day, every spaceman knew in his heart, it was bound to happen. It was too much to hope that the perilous route to the moon could be travelled without loss of life.

But when it came, they thought, it would be in the far reaches of space, not this way. During launch pad full - scale simulation of the launch that was to carry them aloft Feb. 21 for a two-week ride, Grissom, White and Chaffee were trapped in the spacecraft when it was swept by sudden fire.

First Space Mishap

No word came over the monitors, said Paul Haney, voice of the astronauts. Apparently, all three died immediately from heat or asphyxiation.

The emergency escape system was closed to them, because the entire craft was locked in a protective gantry.

Fire had come to ignite metal seared and blackened the spaceship. Bodies of the astronauts were badly charred.

"Three valiant young men have given their lives in the nation's service," said a shocked and saddened President Johnson. "We mourn this great loss and our hearts go out to their families."

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Paul Hellyer said that Canadians are "shocked and saddened" by the loss.

"Our sympathy goes out to the families and friends of these astronauts," Hellyer said in a message to U.S. Defence Secretary Robert McNamara.

All Died Immediately

Until this sudden disaster, no far unexplained, Americans had come through many daring space rides without a mishap. Three other astronauts had died, but in plane crashes. The deaths leave the American space program with 47 astronauts.

Johnson and officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the moon program would push forward with renewed dedication and purpose — do the three men would have wanted it.

"If we're," Grissom once said, "we want people to accept it."

"We are in a risky business, and we hope that if anything happens to us it will not delay the program. The conquest of space is worth the risk of life."

Minor Troubles Noted

The astronauts were in their space suits, in a pure oxygen environment, when the blaze flared up. During the countdown, some minor troubles had been reported with the communications and environmental control system, but it was not known whether the fire resulted from this.

Gordon Harris, chief of public affairs for NASA's Kennedy space centre, said the men probably died without any knowledge that there was serious trouble.

The spacecraft and rocket were not fue"ed.

Eight-inch Fall

Snow-clogged Roads Snarl Movement in District

Stalled autos and late running trains and buses were still the order of the day today as another four inches of snow was dumped on the Bay of Quinte district overnight.

Since the storm commenced early Friday morning about one third of an inch of rain and up to eight inches of snow had fallen in the Belleville area up to 8.30 this morning.

The duty forecaster at the Armed Forces Base at Trenton said probabilities were that the snowfall would ease off about noon.

However, there will be scattered snowflurries during the afternoon and northwest winds are expected to cause considerable drifting throughout the rural areas.

The CN railway reported an additional influx of weekend passengers as motorists apparently decided to leave their cars at home and travel by rail.

Station officials at Belleville said eastbound trains ran late yesterday and Friday night were still running about one-and-a-half hours behind schedule.

The 2:30 a.m. eastbound train didn't arrive in Belleville until 4:00 o'clock this morning.

On the other hand westbound trains were running almost on schedule. The morning Railiner to Toronto was only about 10 minutes late arriving from Brockville.

Buses yesterday ran approximately half an hour late and this morning's bus arriving in from Kingston was again late.

In the city, it was also tough slugging both for motorists and pedestrians.

Snow piled at curbsides and in driveways stalled many cars and taxi cabs were going all out in an almost impossible effort to keep up with calls. Calls generally were being lifted about half an hour late, meaning that some workers were at least a few minutes late for work.

Every available public works employee was on the job last night and this morning and every piece of city-owned snow removal equipment was in use as the works department tried vainly to keep ahead of the storm.

By 9:00 this morning most of the main arteries and bus routes were plowed but it was still heavy going on many of the side streets and on the sidewalks.

Hydro officials here reported little trouble, noting that the freezing rain was not great enough to cause damage.

"We had a few momentary trip - outs but nothing of a major nature," stated one local hydro official.

In the city, garage tow trucks were busy hauling cars out of driveways and coming to the rescue of cars stranded on highways.

Earl Marvin of Wellington said a total of about eight inches had fallen since Friday morning. However, there were no tie - ups on the highway and everything was reported moving.

In Toronto many motorists abandoned their cars, and airline services were also disrupted with Toronto International Airport reporting cancellation of all Air Canada long hall flights.

In other area drifting snow was a bigger problem. At Navan, 10 miles west of Ottawa a school bus carrying 50 students was bogged down along with the snowplow that tried to rescue it.

High winds and freezing rain brought down power lines in many areas. Ice laden branches added to the damage. Teletype communications were disrupted and a London radio station CJOE was knocked off the air — two days after it was opened.

In north Hastings County the Toronto Ottawa route along Highway 7 was reported almost deserted by weekend traffic this morning.

"There about one car an hour going by here," said an officer at the OPP Madoc detachment.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Generally cloudy conditions with some light snow or snowflurries are forecast throughout the province today and strong winds will cause snow to drift in most localities. Sunday should bring variable skies as slightly cooler air moves southward across the province. Snowflurries are likely in areas near Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

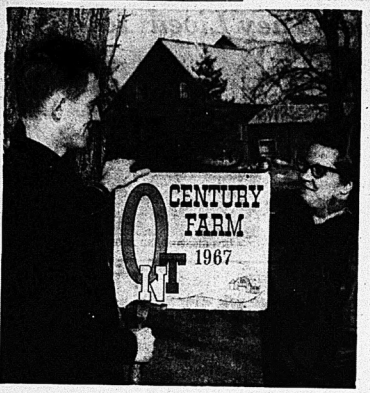
Quinte Area Century Farms Are Plentiful



Century Farm signs, marking rural homesteads in the same family for more than 100 years, are going up all over the Bay of Quinte district.

But none of them have been erected with a greater feeling of pride than at the Griffin Ketcheson farm on the 5th concession of Sidney township in Hastings county.

The Ketcheson farm has been in the family since just prior to the year 1800 when William Ketcheson moved his family from the Hay Bay area to take up a 600-acre free land grant in Sidney.

Since then seven generations of the Ketcheson family have lived on the 5th concession farm. And many hundred descendants of the original United Empire Loyalist settler and his family of 10 children still live in the Quinte area and throughout the county and province.

The Hastings county Junior Farmer organization has taken on the distribution of Century Farm signs as a centennial project.

But it has developed into a much bigger chore than was at first anticipated.

The original order was for 100 of the Century Farm signs. These were gone long before the end of December, and re-orders have been necessary to fill the demand.

It is now expected that there are close to 200 farms in Hastings county which have been in the same family for more than a century.

Most of the Century Farms are, of course, owned by descendants of the United Empire Loyalists who settled in the Quinte district in the last part of the 18th century.

In the Quinte area and in the south part of Hastings county, the Loyalist settlers came up the St. Lawrence River to settle along the shore of the Bay of Quinte.

But in the north part of Hastings the settlement was from the Ottawa River area with the early settler coming inland from the Renfrew district.

The Junior Farmer organization has found that there are many Century farms in the Monteagle Valley area northwest of Bancroft.

Not all of today's owners have the same family name as that of the original settlers. In many cases the farms have been handed down through daughters instead of sons.

This, however, doesn't apply in the case of the Ketcheson's where always there have been sons to carry on.

Take for instance the case of the original William Ketcheson who moved in the Quinte district from the Hay Bay area.

He and his wife had seven sons and three daughters, all three of the girls having been born after the family took up residence in Sidney.

Three eldest son, known as Col. William Ketcheson, had 15 children, again with plenty of sons to carry on the family name.

The lineage down to the present farm owners were Col. William Ketcheson, George McAulay Ketcheson, Col. William Ketcheson, Laurence Ketcheson, Griffin Ketcheson (the present owner) and his family of three, Diana Marie, Ritchie and Robert.

Griffin has an older brother Douglas who owns part of the original 600 acre Ketcheson homestead. From a business standpoint the brothers run their own farms, but the actual farm work is a co-operative effort. Another brother Jack is a member of the faculty at Guelph University.

The Bay of Quinte Ketchesons had their origin in Yorkshire county England with the original Sidney township settler coming to America in 1773. He and his sister Nancy settled at Norfolk, Virginia, later moving to Fredericksburg.

With the outbreak of the Revolutionary War in 1776, William enlisted in the British Legion and served as a dragoon in the Queens Rangers.

Family records indicate that he was wounded and taken prisoner but managed to escape and make his way to New York where he met and married a Loyalist girl, Mary Hull of Bedford, N. Y.

After the Revolutionary War and the evacuation of New York by the Loyalists the family moved to Nova Scotia where they received a land grant of 200 acres.

But devastating bush fires swept their settlement and the Ketcheson family moved with other Loyalists to the Hay Bay area in what is now Lennox and Addington county.

There they contributed to the erection of the old Hay Bay church built in 1792 and with seven growing sons and no free land left in that area the Ketcheson family moved on to Sidney township where they home-steaded the 600 acres in the 5th concession.

William Ketcheson's sons carried on in the family military tradition. Three of his sons, William, Thomas and Elijah became colonels and saw service with British forces in the wars of 1812-14 with the Americans.

Another son James was a Lieut.-Col. and Benjamin became a captain.

Many of the Ketcheson family are buried in the family cemetery on a knoll overlooking the old homestead. However, the grave of the original William Ketcheson is not known. When he died in 1818 he was buried in the early Belleville cemetery but the grave was later moved, presumably to the present Belleville Cemetery on No. 2 highway.

Farming operations on the Ketcheson homestead changed with the years. The family was always among the first to acquire new labor saving machinery.

Instead of the large herd of dairy cattle which congrated the Ketcheson acres, the boys now specialize in hogs and beef cattle.

Century Farm Marker Goes Up

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin Ketcheson team up to erect Century Farm plaque indicating farm has been in same family for at least 100 years. United Empire Loyalist Ketcheson family homesteaded farm in 1800.

Accreditation Award Withdrawn From Belleville General Hospital

Belleville General Hospital has lost its accreditation award, mainly because of overcrowded conditions.

The award is granted by the Canadian Council on Hospital Accreditation on the basis of hospital standards.

The hospital's board of governors yesterday confirmed the Council had withdrawn its accreditation after examining hospital conditions late last year.

The board announcement said the Council report reiterated some of the problems brought to light by Ontario Hospital Services Commission consultants after an administration dispute at the hospital last Fall.

"Particular concern was expressed by the Council over the crowded conditions, a situation which will be relieved when the new addition is completed later this year," the board said.

(Lack of patient-care space has been a chronic problem at the hospital for some years and construction of the new wing was begun in late 1965.)

Steps are being taken to correct other organization and problems cited by the Council and a re-survey will be requested "as soon as possible next year" to seek return of the accreditation," board chairman Harley Hamilton said.

"The report commented favorably on the organization of the medical staff . . . and paid special tribute to the manner in which the nursing staff is providing care during a period of very trying circumstances," added the chairman.

The board announcement was issued at the end of a regular monthly meeting.

The meeting also recognized the new Belleville and District Hospital Nurses' Association as agent for the nursing staff.

The association was formed during the administrative controversy at the hospital late last year.

Among other conditions of recognition approved by the governors was negotiation of a contract for "progressively better conditions of employment."

NORTH BAY (CP)—Mayors and reeves in Ontario are in danger of becoming "no more than chairmen of collection agencies," Mayor Lex Cook of North Bay president of the Ontario Mayors and Reeves Association, said Friday. He said there is growing awareness of an "erosion of local governments" and blamed it on legislation controlling operation of various departments through regional governments.

Mental Aid Program Welcomed

TORONTO (CP)—An Ontario government program announced Friday to aid emotionally disturbed children has been welcomed by child welfare leaders but some questioned whether proposed financing will be adequate.

Health Minister Matthew Dymond introduced the program in the legislature, giving a $10,000,000 estimate for a five-year building plan and $50,000,000 for operating expenses.

The program calls for finding and treating emotionally disturbed children at regional clinics to be located in Kingston, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, London, Windsor, Sudbury and Port Arthur.

Lloyd Richardson, executive director of the Metropolitan Toronto Children's Aid Society, said the program is "what we have been after for the last five years."

Stephen Lewis, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Scarborough West, said the government should be commended for its action but, "if there is the slightest pause, or faltering, we will again mount the public barricade until the pressure forces a response."

John Brown, director of Brown Camps Ltd. and former director of Warrendale Centre for Emotionally Disturbed Children, said the figures quoted by the minister seem inadequate to cover the program.

Don Hurley, president of the Ontario Association for Emotionally disturbed Children, said that to meet the figures presented the centres would have to be run for less than Brown Camps Ltd., which has the lowest per capita cost in North America.

Red Cross Society Members Had Busy and Active Year

The Belleville and District branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society last year distributed services and assistance to the amount of $21,000, and in addition, remitted $6,000 to division headquarters.

In the annual branch report, submitted by president Archie S. Lewis various committee chairmen outlined their 1966 activity.

The well-known Red Cross homemaker service worked 2811 days in 217 cases, including 24 welfare cases for which the city of Belleville paid $1,468.

Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, supervisor of the local homemaker program for the past 18 years, announced her retirement during the year.

Again last year, extensive use was made of the branch's loan cupboard, whereby hospital beds, wheel chairs and other equipment are available for loan to invalids or in emergency cases.

In 1966, more than 30 families received emergency aid in the form of food, clothing or bedding.

The 41 senior citizens on the branch records were treated to 14 different "outings", through-out Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Some 400 finished articles of clothing made by the women's work room committees were sent to needy children abroad in June of last year. The Red Cross ladies not only met their quota, but several times sent to division headquarters requesting more supplies.

In six blood donor clinics held during the year, a total of 1,542 bottles were collected, an increase of 107 over 1965's total.

The Red Cross water safety service was again an overwhelming success this past year, with more than 500 awards being won by children for achievement in their swimming activity. In October, winter classes in swimming and water safety instruction were resumed at the Tops Motel pool, and included in the registrants were 30 adults in the learn-to-swim class.

The branch disaster committee assisted 16 families during 1966 who had lost all their belongings by fire and were uninsured. Such items as bedding, clothing, and other emergency needs proved invaluable. Twenty-four students enrolled in the home nursing course, received 32 hours of instruction in nursing procedures, as well as such emergency measures as artificial respiration. The 13 students who completed the course received Canadian Red Cross pins and achievement cards at a social evening held last May. Course instruction took place in Belleville General Hospital's Education Hall.

A. S. "Archie" Lewis has been re - elected as president of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society. The branch announced the names of its officers for the coming year at last night's annual meeting in St. Thomas' Parish Hall.

Great Demand for Blood Red Cross Meeting Told

If you required a blood transfusion and you lived in New York City, the cost could be as high as $200 per pint. Anyone who requires blood in Canada receives it free of charge.

At last evening's annual meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society, R. B. Newham, director of the blood transfusion service for Ontario, brought home some of the more pertinent facts about the necessity of maintaining adequate stores of blood.

"Although it might seem quite an accomplishment to the average citizen that there were more than 1,500 pints of blood collected in Belleville last year, people don't realize that the Toronto depot issued 2,500 pints of blood to Belleville General Hospital during 1966, and requires a similar number of bottles each week to keep all hospitals in its area supplied.

Outlining the elaborate precautions that are routine in the handling of blood supplies in Red Cross laboratories, Mr. Newham reminded his listeners that the blood does not outlive its usefulness after a short period of time.

"Blood intended for transfusions may be stored at a temperature of 38 to 42 degrees for a period of 21 days, after which it is converted into a variety of by - products, invaluable in the treatment of special physical defects.

REASONS FOR DEMAND

Mr. Newham noted that people often wonder why so much blood is requested by the Red Cross from volunteer donors. "It must be remembered," he said, "that some cancer patients require eight to ten bottles weekly, an open heart surgery case involves at least six bottles, and haemophiliacs ("bleeders") need an average of four bottles per day while haemorrhaging.

Added Mr. Newman, "People look on the blood to the Red Cross. We are only a collecting and processing agent performing a service for the community."

Mr. Newham also presented a film, short on nonsense, on the technique of open heart surgery. He was introduced by branch president A. S. Lewis and thanked by Robert Porter.

Curlers Take Time Out For Banquet

Curlers in the Quinte mixed spiel will get down to the serious business of winning trophies and after enjoying the delightful banquet and dance at the Airmen's Mess at the Air Station last night, Howard Aziz, general chairman of the spiel, and his energetic committee can look back on a job well done in keeping the members of 85 rinks in the spiel in a happy mood. It was necessary to play 21 preliminary games before the draw could be evened out on the first night and only a couple of draws were played previous to the banquet and therefore it would be hard to separate the rinks.

Play will continue all day and early Sunday and by nightfall the finalists in all events will have been decided and the play playoffs will open at the CFB rink on Sunday evening at seven. Some excellent games have been played so far and all usual some upsets have occurred.

The general chairman presided at the banquet held at the airport last evening and he was surrounded by a number of dignitaries at the head table. The banquet as usual was of high calibre and the hungry curlers made good their claim to appear rapidly. The tables were cleared and Doug Asselstine and his eight-piece orchestra took over and a good time was had until the wee hours of the morning. All the modern dance music was played and danced to but the square dance brought many of the oldtimers to the floor in a hurry.

The public is cordially invited to witness any of the games at the three rinks where the games are being played.

The Educational Scene

There is a strong tendency in our burgeoning industrial economy, and with the evolution of a society geared increasingly to technical and scientific achievement, to regard the schools as little more than factories (and impersonal establishments at that) for the manufacture of individuals skilled in the industrial and technical arts but with little appreciation of anything else.

They will have learned a little history and geography, a smattering of foreign languages, absorbed a few poems and dabbled a bit in Shakespeare. But the way things are going such knowledge ultimately will play a secondary role to the more specific one of creating an industrial and economic giant.

Ontario Education Minister William Davis said as much in his address to the Chamber of Commerce the other night. He suggested that industrialists cannot divorce themselves from education," he said. "It is their duty to make sure our schools produce the kind of people they need."

Later he said: "If youngsters are better prepared to enter society as productive persons, then the economic return will more than pay for the investment."

But education is more than just "beer and bacon," as a British critic of "modern economic man" once termed it.

There is"too much stress on the "system," and too little on the fact we are dealing with human beings, who are young and sensitive and represent tomorrow's world. Are we going to allow them to remain human beings or must they become automatons?

Mr. Davis hit the nail on the head. What he said of its need for co-ordination between the provinces could apply in part to the students. He said: "I'm not suggesting centralization, just a co-operative approach so one province will know what the other is doing: A free exchange of information and a sharing of progress and experience between our sister provinces."

It is this "free exchange of information and sharing of progress and experience" that seems to be lacking in our schools today. There is insufficient rapport between students and teachers, there is an unwillingness among many students (the troublemakers and eventual dropouts) to take their studies seriously, and often the quality of teaching is suspect.

There are suggestions that a considerable number of teachers, being subject to the very real pressures of a difficult and exacting profession, suffer from psychological and emotional problems that cause classroom tension and certainly do not help to promote that free exchange of information and sharing progress and experience mentioned by Mr. Davis.

The Star Weekly, in an article by Sidney Katz, refers to a study by the Mayo Clinic in the United States showing that of all patients turned away for distribution by professions and occupations was as follows: Railway employees 9 per cent, physicians 16 per cent, lawyers 36 per cent, clergymen 39 per cent, nuns 42 per cent — and, in the highest category, teachers 55 per cent.

Writer Katz says the total number of teachers in this category is unknown, but suggests they are "numerous enough to cause concern and to spark the recent proposal that all future applicants for the teaching profession be given a mental health screening."

But that is only one problem of the educational scene in Canada — and it is one that is shared by other countries. But it does relate to a vital aspect of upbringing and education which the Education Minister touched on.

"We must treat youngsters as individuals and rely less and less on straight factual information because no one will be able to assimilate all the factual information available in some areas." He reminded his listeners that each child has specific interests and abilities and it was important to develop their capacity to think for themselves. He also stressed the need for more highly qualified teachers in the public schools.

Education has many facets, and the ideal should be to strike a balance . . . a balance between the industrial and economic and the sphere of the humanities, between making a dollar and lifting one's eyes to the hills and to the outside world. Above all it should be seen as a creation of mind and heart, rather than a faceless, automated "system."

A Challenge

With more teachers going out on strike in Quebec, students in that province are faced with the situation Swedish high school pupils experienced recently.

And the Quebeckers will do well if they follow the example of the Swedish teenagers. They took the walkout of their teachers as a challenge, continued studies as before — In the schools and at home — and the "leadership material" among them took charge in the classrooms, making sure that the students kept their nose to the grindstone.

Ottawa Offbeat

Homespun Harry Hays Dubs Anti-Expo Complaints 'Horse-hair'

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Dig that Harry Hays.

The "Barefoot Boy," as he called himself when he blew in from Calgary to be Prime Minister Pearson's first Agriculture Minister, still hasn't found his shoes.

"Elevation" — as those lucky enough to hit the political jackpot like to call it — to the Senate hasn't changed Harry by so much as a hair of his baldish head.

To hear Harry carry on, you would never guess he was the big-Beef - and - Real - Estate-Man from the rich oil and cattle country working on his second, or maybe it is his third or fourth million.

Some of the dons of the Senate cringe when Harry bustles onto the platform and pretends they don't know him.

He tends to defend from the dignity of the august Red Chamber.

And he certainly disturbs its peaceful quiet.

But the peasants over in the Commons love it.

And the new Agriculture Minister, Joe - Joe (The Joker) Greene, is forever trying to make like an effete eastern Harry Hays, cracking country folk - funnies, drawling "gee whizzes" and "by crackies" like a hired hand and looking a little like a scarecrow.

Both Harry and Joe-Joe had the same speech-writer, a rural phrase-maker of great talent who made them sound like they were born out of "Grand Ol' Opery," and now works as one of Prime Minister Pearson's word-smiths.

Just give a listen to h'l ol' Harry, a-talkin' 'bout culture.

Only culture he knew about before he fetched up in Ottawa, he allows, was agriculture.

For back in his Calgary days, say other brand of the stuff for Harry meant "just high-falutin' osprey-singing and sexy programs on the CBC with a lot of fancy-sounding language in them that I didn't understand."

But now in the Senate, with "plenty of time for sober second thought and meditation and study," Harry's been discovering that culture has been "the main problem of mankind ever since Adam and Eve and the apple, causing a lot more trouble than even sex."

And while being a Senator was "a sedentary kind of a life in some ways, it sure gives a fellow a lot more freedom of speech than being a Cabinet Minister — and am I going to use it."

Now about Harry Hays and culture.

"In some ways," he guesses, "every one of us is a separate little culture all of his own, walking around and worrying about how to survive without being crushed by all the other little individual cultures charging around that we have to learn to live with."

Looking around, Harry finds there are three, maybe four different cultures in Quebec, "a whole batch of 'em" in the Maritimes, and "out in Newfoundland, boy, why Joey Smallwood a culture all to himself, and a damned lively one at that, and all the rest of Newfie another."

Additionally, he has found a "Toronto culture" (hieh), and individual cultures in Ontario, Stratford, Victoria and a score of other places.

Indeed, such a wildly infinite number of cultures, frets Senator Harry, that if it weren't for the common bond of Canada's unique — and exciting — culture he couldn't afford the luxury of "cultural conference."

Good thing we can, adds Harry, because just look at "all the ruckus and excitement and government work all these cultures generate to keep the poor politicians in decent jobs and the rest of our wonderfully tolerant nation entertained, if nearly broke."

Behind all the folksy chatter, Harry, though, had what the speechifyin' trade calls "the message."

For he then took a final fling for national unity, cautioning what he termed "the ignorance" of the Yankees, the West Coast and "some of the other more remote sections of the country," the Ottawa Valley, the Trois Rivieres de Quebec and Expo '67 as "special deals cooked up here in Ottawa as the exclusive benefit of French-Canadians."

Quebec and Expo were for the many, he boomed, "not French-Canada," he counselled, addressing himself directly to the West and those "other remote sections," and to argue otherwise was, as Harry put it, "just a lot of horse-hair."

Yep, "horse-hair's" Harry's very own word for it, and the way he sometimes acted on, when he is sounding off, you're lucky he didn't say precisely what he meant.

Continental Drift Theory

Kingston Whig-Standard

It was interesting to read from recent news reports that there is a resurgence of respectability for the continental drift theory in geological circles. There has been an increase in scientific data which is favorable to the theory.

The continental drift theory is that present-day Africa, Australia, Antarctica and South America were one continent centred over the Indian Ocean. This was given the name of Gondwanaland. Another continent, Laurasia, comprised Europe, Asia and North America.

The theory has been argued for some time but first gained serious attention when two geologists, Taylor and Wegener, published hypotheses on the subject in the 1900's. The matter had first been raised by an Austrian, Antonio Snider, in 1858. Both of the hypotheses were received with skepticism and were only treated with academic interest.

However, geologists (mostly geophysicists) have been giving the theory serious thought and research. A British scientist recently was able to fit Africa and South America together quite accurately. He used a computer and off-shore contours. South African geologists have considered the theory seriously for some time. For a long time the majority of support for the theory came from schools based in the Southern Hemisphere and there generally pooh-poohed elsewhere. Today with the more advanced technology in North America more interest has been shown. No doubt the Gondwanaland theory will cause more debate amongst the world's geological researchers.

Women Want Equal Rights

Hamilton Spectator

It seems today that any pressure group, if it feels so inclined, will shake an imaginary fist at the government and issue an "ultimatum". The latest to adopt a tough line with Ottawa is the Committee for Equality for Women.

According to Mrs. Michael Sabia, its head, this committee represents two million Canadian women.

It has issued its ultimatum: Either the government appoints a Royal Commission to inquire into women's rights or it must face the prospect of those two million women descending on Ottawa to protest.

One of the grievances, apparently, is the old one on the score of equal pay for equal work. There is a point here; frequently a bright and efficient woman does the same work much better than a dim-witted or clownish man who bumbles on in the same place of business and ostensibly doing the same work, though much better paid than the woman. It is a galling situation and to say a person will deny that it merits correction.

But this is only part of the story. Many of our laws have not kept up with the changes in our society. In this respect men have as much to be fearful about as women. Time and the pressure of society will cause much to be adjusted and rewritten

To Your Good Health

Cooked Ham Has More Calories Than Same Cut of Porterhouse

Dear Dr. Molner: We are a group of junior High school teachers engaged in verbal battle over the calorie content of ham vs beefsteak.

One faction insists that a 4-oz. serving of lean ham has fewer calories than a 4-oz. serving of sirloin steak. The other says the opposite. Please settle it for us.

I might add that each group has a book that proves it is right. For the most recent (1962) copyright, 1962, is winning. — M. H. and R. M.

There are several important variables, a very important one being the fat, which increases the calories greatly. A marbelized steak (meaning a lot of fat between the fibres), will be far higher in calories than beef from a lean steer.

Latest reference I find is dated 1961. It says to give data on sirloin, but rates 3-oz. of porterhouse at 292 calories, and 3-oz. cured cooked ham at 340 calories.

Thus I would say that the ham lovers lose — but that unusually fat beef could come close to or exceed ham.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am on a low-salt diet due to a weak heart and kidney condition, so of course I don't even drink ginger ale and other soft drinks.

However, trying to drink and cook with fluoridated water is quite a worry because of wanderful what the sodium fluoride will do to me. — A.A.

I shall in this instance make no remarks at all about the dispute of fluoridated water and persons on the sodium.

The amount (one part per million) is so small that you may disregard it. It is too small to have any effect on your sodium intake.

There is no such thing as a "no-salt" diet. Many foods contain a little natural salt. You get vastly more of it in meat, and I mean completely fresh meat with no salt added, than you do in the one part per million in water.

We all must have a little salt. A low-salt diet means avoiding anything to which salt has been added, in cooking or otherwise.

Dear Dr. Molner: Some mornings when I get up I feel sick to my stomach, as though I hadn't eaten for days. The only solution is to eat something right away. Do you think it possible that a slight meal at bedtime would solve this? — R. B.

This sometimes bothers people who are troubled with periods of low blood sugar. It may seem odd to you, but the answer to low blood sugar is not to eat more sugar, because the pancreas is stimulated to produce more insulin, the sugar burns up rapidly, and one gets into an alternating high-low cycle.

The better answer is to eat protein food instead, since it releases its sugar more slowly, and maintains a moderate sugar level over a longer time. A small meal high in protein at bedtime might help — a meat sandwich, a hard boiled egg, a cheese snack, a bit of fish or seafood. A glass of milk with it might help.

Note to F.M.A.: That "article" you quote was an advertisement and you can forget about the man's supposed "discovery" of how to grow hair. You note that the article says he refuses to tell what is in his concoction other than "herbs, lotions and drops." This it is futile to ask whether "anything has been done to test this preparation in the United States." It's typical of some patient medicine people to claim to have a wonderful discovery but refuse to tell what it is.

Winter Snow Is an Asset

Windsor Star

Ontario has neglected one of its greatest assets. It hasn't made enough use of the abundance of snow which falls annually over much of the province.

This comes to mind with reports from Owen Sound that students of the secondary schools there, as a centennial project, are sponsoring a park at the southerly entrance to the city. One unit to which it could be put would be a toboggan slide.

The Owen Sound area, with its snow and hilly terrain, is ideal for a winter playground. But so is much of the rest of Central, Eastern and Northern Ontario.

There has been a great interest in skiing in the past year period. There now are several ski areas developed, especially in the district north of Toronto.

But we are far behind many parts of the United States and even Quebec and British Columbia. Quebec, especially north of Montreal and Ottawa, has many fine ski areas.

Skiing, however, isn't the only winter sport. Others provide healthy fun, such as tobogganing, sledding and, latterly, use of the motor driven snow scooters. We even could promote tee-fishing in our multitude of lakes.

All this requires some imagination and initiative. But it can and should be done. We should make use of our natural advantages, not just in Ontario but all Canada.

One has but to see Switzerland as an example. But, really, what has Switzerland got that Canada hasn't in even greater abundance?

Automation For Sport?

Christian Science Monitor

The new genie is the systems engineer who, with aid of computers, helps people figure out how to make their industrial social problems, such as sending a man to the moon.

Now these systems engineers are exploring ways to bring their skills to bear upon problems far removed from those of outer space. Like organizing and managing a professional football team, for example.

A high-up space engineer discussed this possibility at a recent meeting of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics in Boston. We were impressed. Through systems analysis of the qualifications of players and of the "functional" flow and impact of their game, decisions could be reached, he said, as to tradeoffs, system redesign, the diet and training of the team, and so on.

No doubt systems analysis would cut out a lot of guesswork. But we think there is much to be considered in the comment of Elroy (Crazy Legs) Hersh of the Los Angeles Rams, quoted by the space engineer at the meeting:

"This could lead to systems engineers playing through machines against each other while the players act like puppets."

Doesn't sound much like sport to us.

Keep Away From Tracks

Montreal Gazette

Canadian National has issued a warning about the dangers of snowmobiles operating near railway tracks. It notes after two accidents recently in which snowmobile drivers have been killed.

The railway points out that it is not only a danger to snowmobile enthusiasts themselves but the noise of snowmobile motors can prevent car drivers from hearing approaching trains.

It is a warning which should be heeded. And it also can provide a reminder to the lawmakers and law officers.

A Lift for Living

Removal of Handicap Not Always God's Way

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

Dear Marilyn:

Thank you for writing me concerning your profound frustration. In essence, you feel terribly limited by total deafness and cannot understand why God does not remove your handicap when you have prayed so often for a cure and "believe in miracles too."

You "yearn to be a nurse's aide, helping the sick and unfortunate souls in a hospital," but your deafness, which came upon you several years ago, prevents this. You now fear you "must settle for a cheap substitute" and "hate the work" you "must do for a living. . . as a hotel maid." You request an answer to this perplexing problem that troubles me day by day with an endless 'Why? Why won't God give me back my hearing so I can live the life I so dearly yearn for and do the work I want to do as a nurse's aide?"

Be assured, Marilyn, that my own prayers are with you, and I trust your future will be far brighter than the present.

My first suggestion is simple and practical: see that human agencies of God's help are used to relieve your condition. Get the best possible medical attention from specialists in treatment of ear ailments.

DO NOT DICTATE

You say, "I pray for a miracle . . . That is good. But do not dictate to God how and precisely when He must perform His wonders. Do not insist that the cure be instantaneous, or that it take place while you are on your knees in prayer, or while you implore God's help at some shrine.

It is hardly devout or trustful of us to pray, "Heal my deafness," and then to add, "But no doctors, please, and no medicine," or "You must spare me from surgery!" No, always, but usually, God chooses some human agent to work His miracles. By forbidding human help, we defy God to perform the very miracle we have prayed for!

Second, take stock of your abilities. Ask yourself, and others who might give you wise advice, where your skills can best serve human need. It is our abilities rather than our disabilities that count. What matters most is not what we have lost, but what we have left.

Third, keep your perspective. See the sense of hearing in relation to other abilities. Do not overestimate the happiness that good hearing would bring to you. There are many people with excellent hearing who are exceedingly miserable. Some of the world's happiest and most useful people have suffered severe handicaps like your own.

Read the life of Helen Keller, and see how — although she was deaf and blind from early childhood, and mute, too, for a time — she became one of the most radiant personalities of all time. Beethoven produced his greatest musical compositions after deafness had descended upon him. Thomas Edison fought deafness most of his life. Happiness is the art of being useful in spite of undesirable circumstances.

HELP THOSE NEAR

Fourth, as important as it may seem to you to be relieved of your limitation so that you would qualify as a nurse's aide, help people where you are. It is easy to be so eager for opportunities to do good elsewhere, that we neglect opportunities that are near us.

Finally, if a cure does not come exactly when you want it, or ever, it may be because God has something better in store for you.

Saint Paul told the Christians at Corinth about his aggravating affliction that he described as "a thorn in the flesh": "Three times I besought the Lord about this, that it should leave me; but He said to me, 'My grace is sufficient for you, and my power is made perfect in weakness . . .'" (2 Corinthians 12:9) We do not know what Paul's affliction was. Some Biblical scholars believe his "thorn in the flesh" was failing eyesight. Some say it was epilepsy, and others that perhaps it was recurrent malarial fever. Whatever the case, his precise prayer was not answered, and yet his need was met. While the ailment remained, Paul was given an abundance of grace to bear his burden joyfully.

Do not be too surprised if, while asking God for one thing, you receive a blessing far better than you dare to guess. You may have healing of your affliction, or something better than healing — the capacity to live usefully and even joyfully with your handicap.

Either is equally a miracle.

PATIENCE REWARDS US

In Winter Park, Florida, Gordon Hall walked into the office of the Automobile Bureau, to pick up auto tags for his family and business. There were long line-ups at each wicket, and it was obvious to Hall that the office employees were working under pressure. But in spite of this, Hall was impressed by the calm and friendly dispositions of this group, as they attempted to meet the varied demands of people.

Hall collected his tags and went away. Twenty minutes later he returned loaded with buckets of fried chicken and all the trimmings. The owner of a chicken restaurant, he said he wanted to express his appreciation by treating the staff to lunch.

Patience never fails to produce some positive goodness, even though it may only be the development of still greater patience. That is a reward in itself. Nothing that is truly great in this world was ever achieved without patience. When we think of the patience God has with us, we should be inspired to exercise greater patience with others, and with ourselves.

TEXT FOR TODAY: "Let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, lacking nothing." — (St. James 1:4).

Lines on Life

Not All Truth Rational

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

When parents or councillors suggest to the young college student that not everything can be reduced to a rational formula, they are often looked upon as if they were Neanderthals.

Young, screened, intellectuals tend to rule out of most discussions of "truth" anything that smacks of emotionalism, value-judgment, or intuitive understanding. They have been brainwashed by some of their positivistic teachers into believing that reality is only what can be sampled, screened, condensed, compiled, coded — and fed into computers!

But is the world of reality — and this includes the world of human reality — susceptible to understanding only on the basis of what can be expressed in words or in numbers? Are things that represent truth true only if they can be compressed into formulas? For some time now, it would seem that our young people have been taught that the only reality worth knowing is "processed reality" — the "truths" that emerge from the IBM machines.

It is interesting that a small counter-revolution seems now to be in progress — and the revolts are the very people who once believed solely in, but have found themselves fooled by the computers. The picture of reality that was sifting to the top of the processing system and landing on the desks of the "truth-sayers," the analysts, the managers, and other assisted wise men, was often a dangerous mismatch with the real world.

As a result, generals are now advised to go to the frontlines themselves, and not rely on the picture drawn by the computer; sales managers are told to take out their samples and call on customers, themselves; politicians are urged to get out, on their own, and ring doorbells!

Why the turnabout? What has happened to "realest real" the most objective, empirical, positive truth of the push-cards? It has since been discovered that much data "don't" suffer from its benefits: it can not be concerned with human emotions; their ouch, moan, intuitions or habits. It succeeds in filtering out all sensory impressions that cannot be punched on a card. For this success, however, a price has been paid, the distortion of reality in the very definition in the vain belief that the nuances of the senses are not real.

Pity the poor planners who once thought otherwise! They based their plans on an assured prediction that people would react one way. But people were people — not "organized data" — and they proceeded to react in diametrically opposite ways.

All objective reality has subjectivity in it. Even the philosopher who prides himself on search for truth is stuck with his emotions. He may not be a data-machine, but surely, he's a man.

SELECTING CHAIRS FOR YOUR LIVING ROOM

TOMSETT

Many people select chairs because they are lovely to look at. Others select chairs strictly for comfort. The smart buyer buys chairs that combine both beauty and comfort.

This is not always as simple as it sounds. Generally, the wife will select chairs for design, color and co-ordination with everything else in the room. The husband will want chairs that he can sink into, stretch his legs out on.

Fortunately, the average living room has room for several chairs that can please all parties concerned. Just like a suit of clothes or a dress, a chair can "fit" the person who is going to use it. That's a good thing to keep in mind when you buy chairs.

Very often chairs are nice when used in matching sets. This is not only a matter of attractive decor, but has its practical side, too, in making conversation groups. Many people are more at ease talking to each other while sitting in separate chairs than they are when sitting together on a sofa.

One of the attractive ways to group a pair of chairs is to use a wedge or pie-shaped table between them. This makes for a curved grouping instead of lining up the two chairs and the table straight against the wall.

We invite you to see our latest selections of living room chairs, and talk over with us decorating ideas on using chairs in your living room to get both beauty and comfort.

Paid Fine For Worrying Livestock

BRACKNELL, England (CP) — The case of the donkeys who talked back began in a beautiful Berkshire meadow.

It ended in court when Peggy Galvin paid two £1 fines for being the owner of two dogs which worried livestock.

Magistrate Leonard Hackett listened sympathetically as Mrs. Galvin told how each day she took her boxer dogs on a walk along a public footpath through a meadow where donkeys grazed.

"Every time we passed the donkeys before, I said 'Good morning, boys.' They snuffled at the dogs and the dogs sniffed back."

But on a certain Tuesday, one of the dogs, a bitch, barked at the donkeys. The other dog chased the donkeys, then did a rapid turnabout and the donkeys chased him.

"I thought they were having a jolly game," said Mrs. Calvin, who later learned for certain that one of the dogs had been kicked and the donkeys also had been hurt.

"It is a problem," said the magistrate when Mrs. Calvin paused in her testimony.

"One never knows what animals say to each other. Perhaps the donkeys said something rude. In the circumstances there will be a nominal fine in each case. . . ."

Congregational Meeting

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST CHURCH

MADOC — The 102nd annual vestry meeting of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church was held on Monday in the parish hall when 28 members were in attendance.

Rev. H. H. Thomas was chairman of the meeting.

Mrs. Irene Ross was appointed as vestry clerk. Mrs. Alf. Lavender read the minutes of the 1966 meeting. The treasurer, Miss Hattie Phillips, presented the financial statement which showed an increase over the past year. Receipts in the general church account showed $7,346 and expenses, $7,115. Envelope contributions were now from 42 parishioners who gave over $4,000. The parish loan has been reduced to $250.

Mrs. Mary Barton, president of the Women's Auxiliary gave a detailed description of the year's activities and financial achievements. Receipts again showed that over $1,200 had been raised to assist in parish expenses and other commitments. Mrs. Gwen Dunford, president of St. John's Guild, presented her report and financial statement which showed another profitable year. Receipts $600 with expenses $450. Guild meetings are held every Tuesday in the Parish Hall with nine members present.

SUNDAY SCHOOL REPORT

Mrs. Joan Reynolds, superintendent of the church school gave an encouraging report on the state of the Sunday School and said how much different it was now having separate education for all classes including a nursery. Since the purchase of a new nursery the old nursery has been converted into classroom for all ages. Teaching staff numbered five.

The attendance each Sunday has now risen to 50 pupils. Receipts show $179.90 with no expenses amounting to $161.60. A donation was given to missions during the Lenten season.

Mrs. Kathleen Thompson, the Sunday school leader gave her report on the activities of the year and various projects that Sunday Services made up the Branch. Over $50 was raised in the making and selling of poppies.

Mr. William Hart, treasurer of the new Rectory fund reported that $20,000 had been collected to the fund during the year of 1966. The first $1,000 had been paid back to Synod on this loan.

RECTOR'S REPORT

In the rector's report on the condition of the Church, he remarked on the 'aliveness' of all organizations and the progress and increase of public worship attendance.

The main burden on the parish at the present was the yearly payment on the rectory fund this now being a part of the parish budget and not necessary on a donation giving. This year marked the beginning of a change policy. Each year the responsibility to pay monthly the Rector and not from Synod. This meant that every parishioner would be asked to support the church on a weekly basis, as the money was to be channelled on the 25th of each month.

Mr. Thompson reported he had made 478 visits throughout the parish in the past year, conducted 82 services, 4 christenisms, nine weddings, five burials, 30 Sunday services, several functions, Mrs. Grant Kerr; stewardship and recruiting, Mrs. Ray Sullivan; supply and welfare, Mrs. Horace Palmer; literature and communications, Mrs. Freeman Bowers; press and publicity, Mrs. Earl Mitchell's nominations, Mrs. Percy Ray. The World Day of Prayer will be held at Roslin Feb. 10.

and mimeographing, to the auditors and sidesmen.

The rector announced that June 25th would be the celebration of the Centennial service and at the request to invite old members of the parish to attend. In the afternoon a parish picnic would be held. As Centennial projects, the Church would be re-painted along with the old hymn-gate renovated and re-roofed.

1967 OFFICERS

The following officers for 1967 were elected: Mr. Anton Delange, People's Warden; assistant warden, Mr. Charles Warren; secretaries, Mrs. Irene Ross and Mrs. Norma Beavon; treasurer and organist, appointed by the rector and wardens, Miss Lou Phillips and Miss Joan Brownson.

Delegate to Synod is Mr. Eric Omerod and Mr. Jack Reynolds property committee, wardens, presidents of the Guild and WA along with Mrs. Roy Brownson Mr. Archie Pitt, Mr. Harry Tufts and Mr. Jack Reynolds. Sidesmen Chairman is Mr. Eric Omerod and Auditors Mr. Chuck Wood and Mr. Anton Delange.

The 1967 budget was presented and after discussion by the appropriation for the parish would require $7,500 to meet all Diocesan and parish commitments.

The Anglican World Mission project for Ontario Diocese was again to be the sponsor of Trinity College, Nairobi, Africa, $10,000 was set by the Diocesan objective in which our own parish would be asked to give generously, along with the Primate's Relief Fund.

A letter from the Bishop of Ontario was read to the representatives of Madoc for the generous gift of $1,000 last year in support of the tragic disaster at Aberfan, Wales. Correspondence from Mr. Good and Mr. St. Pauli, Kingston junior choir for Easter Sunday evening;

SOCIAL and PERSONALS

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Evan Lasser of Belleville announce the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Ann, to Robert Gary Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Arthur Davis of Belleville. The marriage will take place on Saturday, February 25, 1967, at Bridge Street United Church.

Club Activities

BETA SIGMA PHI GAMMA MU CHAPTER

The traditional Beta Sigma Phi Ritual of Jewels was the highlight of a recent meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter, held at the home of Mrs. Murray Mowat.

The candlelight ceremony was conducted by the president, Mrs. Ross Burtt and all members joined in welcoming Mrs. Glenn Saline, Mrs. Ronald Fox, Mrs. Charles Lundy, Mrs. Lorne Schnell, Mrs. John Sherry, Mrs. Ray Stickle and Mrs. Andrew Robb.

Following the ritual ceremony, the new members were welcomed and toasted by a past director of Gamma Mu and honorary members, Mrs. Donald MacKinnon.

A business meeting followed with enthusiastic plans being discussed for a mixed party to be held this Saturday and an auction sale scheduled for February.

Mrs. James Cleary, chairman of the by-laws committee presented a slate of new by-laws for the approval of the members.

The cultured program for the evening was given by Mrs. Robert Ord entitled "Literature." Mrs. Ord said that, "poetry is a condensation of the diseased art that if contemporary art needs to be taught it must be dead or."

Statistically she quoted "people who write do so for many reasons. 55 per cent of the writers write for money and these people rarely have any talent. For those who write for fame, 15 per cent for fun, most of the best sellers come from this group. 7 per cent write to escape society. 4 per cent write because of a need and one per cent have miscellaneous reasons."

The program was concluded with the following thought: "Books are tasks that instruct us without the rod, with words of anger, without bread or money. If you approach them they are not asleep, if you seek them they do not hide, if you blunder they do not scold, if you are ignorant they do not laugh at you."

The evening concluded with refreshments served by Mrs. Murray Mowat and Mrs. Donald Deacon.

200 Women On Hand for Sewing Bee

WELLAND, Ont. (CP)—The Centennial has everyone in stitches, getting ready for plays, parades and summer celebrations.

When four enterprising women from nearby Fenwick offered an evening's instruction on how to make centennial costumes, they expected about 20 takers. Spokesman Shirley Lacey says they were flabbergasted when nearly 200 women turned up.

The evening developed into such fantastic fashion shows that Welland Little Theatre Players is awash in material and patterns to outfit a cast large enough to form Mavor Moore's The Ottawa Man, set in the 1870s.

Mrs. Lacey, owner-operator made a special trip to Montreal to buy 1,000 yards of brocade and damask ends. Advertising them at a dollar a yard and gingham and muslins at 50 cents, she sold half his stock in one day.

FORT CHURCHILL
(Conclusion)

* * *

". . . . knowledge has to turn into wisdom before it humanizes." — Bernard Berenson (1865-1959).

* * *

"However, the rigors of winter forge enduring links of warm friendships as the community joins in an effort to make its own fun, its own entertainment," Kay Manderville says as she reminisces over the two-year period spent in Fort Churchill where her husband, Dr. E. A. Manderville served part of his military training as a doctor.

"The long snowy months are shortened by lively games of bridge, curling bonspiels and skating at the rink where hockey games are played by teams of youngsters and men alike. There are church affairs and school functions. And while there is no TV there is a nightly movie.

"Everyone has a telephone and one is in constant communication with the world by radio. At certain times messages to loved ones living in far-flung, outlying regions are sent. Especially at Christmas time.

"Parties held at the Officers' Mess (also a club to which others than just the military might come) afford much enjoyment. Such as a "Back to School" party and all the guest come dressed in school clothes. A Hawaiian party is next for corresponding food and games. The girls created charming leis out of pastel-colored tissue.

"Now have I ever attended more beautifully festive and gay formal dances. For these, the orchestra is sometimes flown in from Edmonton. The officers of the then military personnel are resplendent in their dress uniforms; the women love it in the course of the latest fashion, made possible by Eaton's Order House previously mentioned.

"And everyone enjoys and appreciates the fact in order to attain it is necessary to dress in ski-pants and knee-high elk-skin "mukluks" made by the Eskimos. These are warm and colorfully, trimmed and embroidered with beads. These are marvellous for warmth and walking along snow-covered streets.

"Food is always a subject of conversational interest especially among housewives. Milk (30 cents a quart) is delivered just once a week by Thursday's "refrigerator" train. Fortunately, powdered milk and eggs can be relied upon. Fresh vegetables, of course, have to be imported. And one paid 35 cents for a cauliflower!

"But if food is the housewife's concern, heat is ours. All apartments and buildings are warm as toast, heated by a central oil-heating plant. And winters are secure against winter cold by one but three sets of storm windows.

"On July 18, 1963, we were blessed with the arrival of our third child, Richard. Nursing care was of the best given by nurses of the military service. I even had a private room with bath in the hospital and the food was excellent.

"I'm told, at first most of the Indian and Eskimo women resented the hospital for their confinement. Gradually, more and more are beginning to avail themselves of this service. While I was there, an Eskimo baby was born, and named Graham. (I'm not outside of my own, of course!) that I had never seen a dearer infant.

"The Eskimos are a loving people. Their family life is exemplary. Civilization has effected them a clash in moral standards, which time perhaps will adjust and right. But the government is endeavoring to preserve the Indian and Eskimo through their medical assistance and by providing land for the Indians are in dire need. Some live in tents, others in igloos like because of fire from kerosene stoves. Both are compact. Children suffer from TB and meningitis, and while many are sent to La Pas Sanitorium, many die. There are many problems, and much has yet to be accomplished.

"Upon our departure, we were amazed at the number of Indian and Eskimo who came to see us off, to show their appreciation for all my husband had done for them. Many could not speak English. It was most touching.

"I came away with a better appreciation and understanding of these people and their hardships.

"Their problems will always be of keen interest to me — at least of which is — the vast loneliness of a vast land."

C.A.R.S. Women's Group Names Officers for 1967

The January meeting of the Belleville Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society was held at the home of Mrs. D. A. McKinnon with 15 members present.

Miss Gladys H. MacDonald president was returned to this office for her second year and the following slate of officers were named for 1967: vice presidents, Mrs. E. David; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. E. Vermilyea; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. H. Campbell; telephoning committee, Mrs. Arthur Wynne and Mrs. Frances Bennett; driving convener, Mrs. H. McCabe; Conveners for volunteer recruitment centre, Mrs. D. A. McKinney and Mrs. A. W. Hume; social committee, Mrs. A. D. Campbell and Mrs. D. A. McKinney; membership convener, Miss Hilda Collier.

Reports from the various conveners gave an interesting review of the activities of the work of the Auxiliary in the past year.

There had been two social events for the patients, a drive in the country and afternoon tea served by Mrs. Lawson Markle at Lake Shore Hotel Sandbanks. The annual Christmas party at Christ Church was a happy event.

Mrs. A. Wo-Hume visited all the patients during the holiday season and distributed small gifts to those unable to attend the Christmas party. Cake and a basket of groceries was sent to a needy person.

The president expressed the appreciation on behalf of the local board for the assistance given the staff physiotherapist Mrs. D. C. Brown at the treatment centre held at the Belleville General Hospital Tuesday and Thursday evening each week by the volunteers from the Auxiliary under the convenership of Mrs. A. W. Hume and Mrs. D. A. McKinney.

Volunteers included: Mrs. Sabra Arnott, Mrs. F. M. Shier, Mrs. H. McCabe, Mrs. J. Burnett, Mrs. Frank Clarke, Mrs. C. Both, Mrs. C. A. Campbell and also members of the St. John Ambulance Corps.

The money making project of the year was a "Bring and Buy" sale at the home of Mrs. C. A. Campbell in November.

The educational program of the auxiliary for this year was, financial assistance to the Belleville Branch of the Society for annual dinner meeting when vice president of the Ontario Division Dr. Frank S. Brien addressed an audience of 140 guests.

"Chop, chop" meant this knife to the housewife of the past. The sheet iron blade was held in a wooden handle. The curved knife chopped easily in a rounded wooden bowl.

Bowl, Knife Were Favored Kitchen Tools Century Ago

By RALPH and TERRY HOVEL

A round wooden bowl and a curved chopping knife were the favored tools in the kitchen a century ago. Apples, cabbage, onions, and other fruits and vegetables were prepared using the chopping knife. Many of the knives were hand made from "left over" bits of metal such as a broken ax head, or a part of a scythe. Handles were formed of wood or bone.

Q. What should we put on a desk in a home furnished with antiques?

A. The quill pen was used for centuries and the bronze pen was known as early as the days of the Romans. The fountain pen was invented in 1886. The pencil was not discovered until about 1600. Erasers were found by Columbus in North America. They were not used in Europe until the 18th century.

The blotter was necessary until the fountain pen became a common item. Other items found on desks are older than most people realize. The large paper clips that hold papers on a desk was a 13th century invention. Stamp boxes were made in the 1840's.

Q. Could you tell me about Quetzal glass? I understand the formula for the glass was lost. It is a lovely iridescent gold color.

A. Quetzal glass was made by Martin Bach, an ex-employee of the Tiffany Glass Factory, in Brooklyn, N.Y. The name Quetzal was registered as a trade mark in 1902. It covered many kinds of fancy glassware. The most common of the Quetzal glasswares found today are the gold colors. It was made by an intricate process that is no longer used but the process is not lost.

Q. Tell me about two very large books that picture the Gibson girls of Charles Dana Gibson. The book was published by Charles Scribners Sons.

A. The Gibson girl was the pin-up girl of the early 1900's. Charles Dana Gibson illustrated scenes of books and magazine articles from 1894 to about 1910. He did little work after that date although he lived until 1944. He still low in price. Any original Gibson drawing would be valuable.

Successful Living

Religious Father Curtails Many of Son's Activities

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a 16-year-old boy, the youngest in a family of five, and have been babied. The others are girls. My father is taken up in spiritual things and I have been brought up accordingly. I have never been allowed to do the following:

(1) Go to shows, see television or listen to radio, (2) join any clubs, (3) go to other churches to find out other ideas, (4) have friends outside the church, (5) dance, (6) eat with people not in the church, (7) go on hike rides or hikes without my dad or an elder of the church.

When about 14 I asked my father for a woodworking bench, but he said no, I had no time for these things. Later about 15, I asked him for an old car, about $20, so I could tinker around with it in my spare time. He reminded me that I should be getting into the religion of the church and had no time for this. I can't understand my father sometimes. He just seems unreasonable.

I have nothing to do in my spare time and I get depressed once in a while. Also, this problem has an effect on my school marks. — Counting On You

Dear Counting: I'm truly sorry. Doubtless your father thinks he is right in trying to squeeze a square peg into a round hole, but I have news for him: God gave human beings different talents, and it is a great sin to ignore individual aptitudes and interests.

Naturally you need your own outlets, and some boy-type challenges and fun. Not everyone can be as taken up with spiritual matters as your father is. If there is an uncle or family friend who is more flexible and could explain you to your parents, open up to him. It is not healthy to bottle it all up.

I'm with you, Counting; respect your father's right to his beliefs, but hold on to your right to become a thinking, functioning person on your own.

Dear Doris: How can I go about getting my girls interested in reading? Right now, at eight and 10, they are mesmerized by the TV screen. — Just Mummy

Dear Mummy: First of all, limit to one favorite program the TV watching time. Then link up with what they find the most fun in. Mother Goose? Superman? Science fiction? Cooking? Start a bookshelf which belongs to them; an orange crate, some book ends on their dresser, or a piece of plywood fastened to the wall will do.

Let them help make it. Let them help choose the books. If they read slowly, read to them for a while. Discuss what you read and get them wanting to get on with the stories. They can take a turn at reading to you.

You couldn't find a better way of helping your child develop into a mature, thinking person than by turning him into a bookworm. Your librarian can help you with book choices; and there is also a very fine little folder about it produced by The Canadian Home and School and Parent Teacher Federation as a Centennial project.

Ask your local association for a copy.

Confidential to Common Law Wife: Since you have taken him on his own terms, and have stayed with him in spite of at least two-timing affairs, why give up now?

He knows you don't want him to drive this woman student back and forth to the class they both attend. If he thinks enough of you he will tell her himself that the deal is off.

Without a wedding ring you can claim very little from him in the way of fidelity.

There are Canadian resources to help solve your problem. Write to Doris for direction, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MADOC W.I.

MADOC — The Madoc Branch of the Women's Institute held its first meeting of the Centennial Year at the home of Mrs. Harold Brintnell with Mrs. Irene Gordon presiding, and 16 members and five visitors present.

The December minutes and the treasurer's report were read with the sale of centennial spoons gave the bank balance an increase, so it was decided to order more.

The theme for the January meeting was on Citizenship, and Rev. J. H. Thompson was the main speaker. In his address, he quoted by saying each generation adds to our progress in citizenship and to the world's history. Through the media of communication and travel this generation is in constant touch with the whole world. We become world-minded and learn and appreciate what other people are doing. Comparing ourselves to other nations we should be proud of our own country and heritage.

Mr. Thompson spoke on the three development ages, ancient history, medieval and modern. In the present era, the ultra modern age, has been created with the advancement in the arts, sciences and culture in comparison with other periods of history.

On a local level a community of all levels, from all walks of life and background and working together can create a happy atmosphere. New families moving in can also be welcomed and feel that they can contribute to the life of the community. Citizenship is not only upholding the rights of man, voting, taking interest in public affairs, but also reaching out to the needs of our fellow man.

The speaker suggested the need of a welfare centre to be established in the village where good warm used clothing and food can be distributed free to welfare and needy wage persons.

In conclusion, Mr. Thompson spoke on immigration and remarked that 40,000 British people emigrated to Canada last year and that possibly 60,000 would be coming this year. Once again Canada could help a great deal in the friendly welcome.

Mrs. H. Brintnell gave a short talk on the motto "How am I remembered" with the admonition to meet people with a smile and to be known for kindness and friendliness.

Mrs. T. C. Fawcett spoke on the various ways people are received as they move from one community to another.

It was apparent that in some localities people of different race and culture lived in racial groups. In urban areas it was difficult to make friends. In smaller villages and towns, everyone knew everyone which made it easier to make friends.

The group was asked, "What do we look like in other people's eyes?" Mrs. Ted Hailstone, a native of Belgium said that she could remember the celebration of Centennial in her old country and was looking forward to the Centennial of her new country. In details she compared the countries, weather, population and language.

Mrs. Norma Beavon, a newcomer within the village, gave an interesting account of her early life in Wales, its culture, language and habits. She was joined with her husband and family enjoying the friendly atmosphere of this community.

All speakers were thanked by Mrs. Gordon for most interesting thoughts on "Citizenship."

Mrs. A. Empey was appointed delegate to the Guelph Conference. Mrs. Vera Hill substituted for Mrs. Moore as leader of the course in "Block Printing" along with Mrs. Brintnell. Mrs. A. Empey dealt briefly with current events. A committee was formed to plan a centennial tea for March.

The meeting concluded and Centennial birthday cake was brought in by Mrs. Hill with 13 numbers present singing "Happy Birthday Dear Canada." Mrs. Tanner as the oldest institute member in attendance had the honor of blowing out the candles.

Ann Landers

Boy Is Embarrassed With Mom's Reminders

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a 13-year-old boy who has an embarrassing mother. She has put up 24 signs around the house (counted them) and keeps adding more to make a person sick. These signs are not little reminders, they are great big slogans painted on shirt cardboard.

One sign says, "Turn Out the Lights." Another sign says, "Keep Your Feet Off the Furniture." The sign on my bedroom door says, "Don't Throw It On the Floor. Hang It Up." The sign I hate most is the one over the bathtub. It says, "Clean the Tub and Hang Up the Towels."

ANN LANDERS

I am ashamed to have guys over to my house because they'd die laughing at me from room to room looking for more signs. They wouldn't think it was so funny if they had to look at these dumb things day and night like I do.

Please tell me what to do. — S.O.S. (SICK OF SIGNS)

* * *

DEAR S.O.S.: Apparently your mother put the signs up after she had talked herself hoarse and didn't get any place.

Ask her to please remove the signs and you will prove to her that you don't need them. Then prove it, Buddy Boy.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I hope every girl who is footing the bill for her boyfriend in the service will cut it out after she reads your wire, down-to-earth answer to "Willing to Pay."

I was one of those nutty girls who thought she was in love with the most wonderful guy in the world. He enlisted in the Army and was stationed two hours from town. Every weekend I took my dad's car (often without permission) and drove to see him. I paid for our movie tickets, meals, gas and I bought him cigarettes. Now that I think back I can't recall that he ever spent two cents on me. I even put money in the parking meters.

When he was transferred I sent him air fare and pocket money so he could come to see me. This went on for over a year. Then I received a "Dear Jane" letter. He had met his dream girl and they were getting married. He hoped I would understand.

What a bitter pill to swallow. But swallow it I did, and now I am a lot wiser. I wouldn't give Rock Hudson a dime to call me on the phone. — WOKE UP.

DEAR WOKE: Thanks for a good letter. Take that, and that, and that, you free-loaders.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please keep telling teen-age girls to forget about marriage. I know they hate to hear it, but maybe if they hear it often enough it will soak in.

I wouldn't listen either. I was 18 when I married. At age 20 I had two children and a third one at 25. We soon will celebrate our 15th anniversary and I shudder to think how close we came to calling it quits.

The first three years were terrible. Every week one of us would threaten to call a divorce lawyer. Although we are happy now, I would never recommend marriage as an 18-year-old girl. There are so many disappointments and let downs. A girl should be at least 22 before she can absorb the shock of finding out what married life is really like. — BATTLE WEARY BUT VICTORIOUS.

DEAR VIC: I know they hate to hear it but I'm going to continue to print letters like yours as long as my typewriter holds together. Thanks for writing.

Truscott's Account Branded 'Lie' By Crown

OTTAWA (CP)—Steven Truscott's account of the events surrounding the 1959 murder of Lynne Harper was described in the Supreme Court of Canada Friday as a package of lies, falsehoods and complete fabrications.

William Bowman, chief of prosecutions for the Ontario attorney-general's office, also pictured Truscott, then 14, as a cunning slayer who told police a false story to send them off on a wild goose chase and divert them from the spot where he raped and strangled the 12-year-old girl.

A different version of the girl's death in a wooded area of Clinton, Ont., was supplied by G. Arthur Martin, Truscott's lawyer in the government-ordered review of his conviction.

Mr. Martin said evidence at the high court hearings bear out the defence theory that the girl was murdered after Truscott saw her got into a grey Chevrolet car about 7:30 p.m. on the night of June 9, 1959.

Mr. Martin concluded his final argument before the nine Supreme Court justices Friday and Mr. Bowman had just launched into his when the court adjourned until Monday.

Three alternatives are open to the court: They can uphold or wipe out the verdict, or order a new trial.

Mr. Bowman said a basic contention of the Crown is that Truscott left a Clinton schoolyard with Lynne Harper and drove her on the handlebars of his racer bike along a county road leading to a highway. Before they got to the highway, said Mr. Bowman, they turned into a lane leading to the wooded spot where Truscott killed her.

"His story of taking her to the highway was a complete fabrication," said Mr. Bowman.

Mr. Martin, who spoke for more than 11 hours after the final phase of the reference resumed Wednesday, said Truscott's story of taking the girl to the highway "was never shaken."

He said the defence theory is that someone in the car or someone she met later, killed her. The killer then drove back to the wooded area and climbed through a wire fence, carrying his victim and most of her clothing.

Mr. Martin said the consensus of the medical evidence was that the girl died between 8 p.m.—the time Truscott was back at the schoolyard—and 11 p.m.

Mr. Bowman said she probably died at 7:45 p.m., two hours after her last meal. Replying to Mr. Justice J. R. Cartwright, he said the latest possible time, and that was taking in many possibilities, was before 11 p.m.

Mr. Bowman said Truscott made up the story about taking Lynne to the highway and watching her get into car for two reasons. He wanted to spark a police hunt for a car and keep any search away from the woods.

"A pretty clever fellow for a 14-year-old," commented Mr. Justice Wishart Spence.

"Truscott well knew what could be found in the woods," said Mr. Bowman.

Nap in Dull Afternoon Hours Gives Retired Free Time Later

By THOMAS COLLINS

George J. Cooper, a retired man, has come out in favor of what he calls "The Social Security Snooze."

He thinks it a shame that while we are stealing all the civilized customs of Europe we failed to pick up the siesta . . . or the afternoon nap. "I also think it's a shame that the labor leaders keep running around demanding such things as more pay and security and never once bring up the matter of a nap-break."

Mr. Cooper is kidding, of course. But only partly. He has built his retirement on a conviction that retired men and women should break the chain of a 9-to-5 pattern of living and remodel their daily lives into a pattern that capitalizes on their freedom. The afternoon nap is part of this new pattern.

"You hear retired people glory in the fact they can now sleep late in the morning," he says. "That's silly. Retired people don't want to sleep late . . . most of them naturally wake up early. The new pattern of living must be broader . . ."

With his wife's agreement, Mr. Cooper rearranged his daily life after he retired, and made an afternoon nap the key to the plan. Nap time was set at 2 to 4 p.m., with an hour and 15 minutes for sleeping and 45 minutes for a shower, shave, and dressing.

"From 2 to 4 every day is the dullest time of the year," he says, "except for a few heathens who want to phone you at that time. Television is at its lowest point. The mail has already come. Why not swap these two hours for two hours later at night, when you've got things to read, places to go, and watching?"

The Coopers usually go to bed every night at 1 a.m. He arises, naturally, around 7 a.m., Mrs. Cooper about 8:30. "This gives me a chance to read the morning paper while it's fresh, just as I can read the afternoon paper fresh when I emerge from my nap . . ."

Mr. Cooper plans, cooks, and serves breakfast, having it ready when Mrs. Cooper appears about 9 a.m. Mrs. Cooper does the same on dinner, serving it at 7 p.m. There is no lunch, except for a glass of milk Mr. Cooper takes before the nap.

"We change these mealtimes when we want to because we believe we can spoil retirement if we become slaves to any schedule," Mr. Cooper continues. "But the hours of 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. fall naturally for us."

"By 10 a.m. we have cleaned the dishes and straightened the house, which is not much of a job for two people. Then, weather permitting, we get out of the house . . . and always together. We do shopping, call on friends, take care of errands, drive out in the country, or go for a walk. Whatever strikes our fancy. But getting out is important, if only to see people.

"At 1 o'clock, everything being equal, I go to a desk I have set up in our spare bedroom, while my wife pursues whatever personal interest she has. I handle bills, fuss with income tax or the small investments we have, and write one letter. Always one . . . to the children, distant relatives, sick friends, or maybe to the mayor to thank him for the garbage service. I have a fixation that every day somebody is going to hear from me . . . and in some pleasant way."

From 4 to 7 p.m. Mr. Cooper is a free agent, reading his paper, working in the yard or at his tool bench. "Mostly working in the yard, if I can," he says, "because late afternoon is the time to talk to all your neighbors as they're coming home from work."

By 8:30 p.m. the Coopers are settled in their living room. At 9:30, when there's no danger of callers, they don pajamas and sit in comfort until bedtime.

"An evening of quiet and comfort with your wife at home," Mr. Cooper concludes, "is a little more satisfying than the parties retired people go to. As most of them are beginning to realize."

Your new tax form, explained.

For another, we printed the return in two colours, buff and white, so you can't lose your place. We ask the questions on the buff part. You answer on the white.

We've expanded the Simplified Tax Table so 9 out of 10 of you can use it.

And we've attempted to make our questions easier to understand.

Then to make everything thoroughly clear, we've worked out a Tax Guide that explains it all, detail by detail, including any special problems you might have.

If that still doesn't untangle all the knots, we have an understanding tax man at your local District Taxation Office.

Call him if you need him.

Be careful not to lose it before you use it. It's your Personalized Form.

Or you are a new taxpayer.

Or we don't know your latest address.

You can pick up a new tax form at the post office this year. Fill it out and send it in.

And next year, we'll send a Personalized Tax Form to your home. Everything clear?

The understandable tax form.

SPORTS SLICES

By Geo. H. Carver

The shortish stockily-built blonde-haired chap, a shy smile spreading over his face hesitated before entering the ball room of the Royal York Thursday night.

Then one of the greatest names in baseball stepped forward to be engulfed by a wave of frantic autograph-seeking "fanatics" Mickey Mantle received one of the greatest ovations ever given a world sports figure at the Annual Ontario Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association dinner.

This came after Mickey had made one of the shortest speeches on record. It took approximately 90 seconds to express his appreciation at being invited, wish the best to the sponsors and tell one story. That was that the 1966 Yankees were the strongest team in the American League because "it carried nine other clubs on its back."

Afterwards the Mick admitted that if he played baseball like he made speeches he wouldn't make the grade as a water-boy on a girls team.

Some 1,140 writers, casters and guests at $25 per plate added $25,000 to the $135,000 raised in the past fifteen dinners. It all goes to the support of crippled children work.

Jimmy Sanders, 12, the "Timmy" of the dinner expressed it beautifully. "I wish the other 16,000 crippled children could be here seeing how you have helped them get better. . ."

But mainly it was a night for laughs. Everybody was in good humor and the stories came thick and fast. Wayne and Shuster, Canada's clown princes of comedy kept the show in high gear as masters-of-ceremony.

Cracked Wayne, "The only athlete not represented here tonight is Gerda Munsinger. She is in Germany awaiting reinstatement as an amateur."

About the famous auto racing ace John Surtees, he said, "He's some kind of a nut. In a motion picture film that's so realistic there were eight injuries in the theatre alone."

Of Elaine Tanner who with Jane Hughes, Marion Lay and other Empire Games gold medallists, he said, "Huh, 15 years old eh. I've got ties older than you."

Besides Mantle, Claude Raymond and Jim Kaat represented major baseball. Raymond expressed the hope Toronto would become a major league city but Wayne shook the house with, "Things don't look too promising for Toronto. They've just asked Coroner Mort Shulman to be the club physician."

The Twins Kaat who has faced Mantle many times in diamond combat said the only way to pitch to Mickey was "Over and behind him."

Ottawa Rough Riders Whit Tucker said he brought a message from the capital city's mayor that when the Grey Cup is held in Ottawa this year "our riots will better than Vancouver's."

Baba Partill, the quarterback of the Boston Patriots quoted the Kansas City Chief's Len Dawson as saying, "We were ready to surrender at half-time but didn't know the Packers were not taking prisoners."

Golden Gaels coach, Frank Tindell agreed with the theory of Duffy Daugherty, "If you can't learn anything by losing, why lose?"

Aveleno Gomez, the famous jockey was there, ' Of him Shuster quipped, "he was once told to win in a driving finish — and bring the horse with you."

He said, "I wouldn't call Jim Coleman the dean of losers, I don't know that once he stopped a runaway horse by betting on him."

Danny Blanchflower, famous British soccer star was in rare form. He told many yarns among them the one of the American counterfeiting ring that in error printed $18.00 bills instead of "20's". So they'l sent some to Ireland for disposal.

One of the gang approached an old Irish innkeeper in a small village and proffered the bill with "Will you change this please."

The innkeeper looked at the phony, wrinkled a craggy face and asked, "Sure sir. And how would yez loike it — three 'sixes or two nines?"

Other brilliant young gold medallists of the Empire Games present, besides the three mentioned were Sandy Gilchrist, Ralph Hutten, Abby Hoffman, Pierre St. Jean and Bob Chamberot.

Ontario's top athlete of the year Gary Cowan was there and said he had realized a life ambition to be a guest at the dinner.

In serious note Gary Dineen, star of Canada's Nationals hockey team said the team had changed from a repository for junior graduates to one where a player can get an education and a feeling for his country. "I believe in this hockey club and when I heard 11,000 people in Winnipeg sing 'O Canada' I knew they believed in us too."

Mo-Hawks Snatch Last-Second Tie

GARY DRESDAHL

★ ★ ★

Removing the goaltender for a sixth attacker backfires more often than it pays off in the hockey wars but the move helped the Belleville Mo-Hawks snap a three-game losing streak here last night.

Gary Gresdahl's perfect deflection of Eddie Marineau's point drive at 19.55 of the third period gave the Mo-Hawks a 2-2 tie with the Woodstock Athletes before a storm-lowered crowd of about 1,000.

And lightning almost struck twice in the same place when Minnie Menard barely missed deflecting "Weiner" Brown's shot under goalie Ray Reeson with two seconds left in the ten-minute overtime.

The single point was Belleville's first victory in 13 and gave the club a bit more breathing room in the OHA Senior "A" loop's sixth position.

Orillia Pepsi's supply the next opposition next Friday night.

Woodstock played better positional hockey, checked well and took advantage of Mo-Hawk miscues while outshooting the homesters 35-25 on the night.

Both goalies, Steve Rexe and Ray Reeson, were at their best but the Mo-Hawks helped Reeson's effort by failing to capitalize on numerous scoring opportunities. And a solid Athletics' defence that blocked shot after shot sided the visitors' cause as well.

The Mo-Hawks appeared overanxious on at least a half dozen chances but they never quit digging and the effort paid off when Rexe headed for the bench at 19.15 of the third.

Marineau took Menard's pass and blasted a low bullet netward as the clock ticked away the final seconds. Gresdahl, stationed at the corner of the net, didn't have to move his stick. The shot deflected past Reeson before he could move.

Belleville failed to score in the overtime desite Woodstock drawing the only two penalties. On the game, the Athletics took eight of ten minors.

EDDIE MARINEAU

One of the visitors' penalties led to the opening goal at 17.03 of the first. Bob McGregor cleared from a power-play in the centre zone and Art Sullivan slipped up the boards to beat Rexe from a tough angle.

The Mo-Hawks got it back seconds later when Eddie Marineau tapped a rebound into the empty side of the net on a gagging play with Bob Taylor and Menard. It was the Mo-Hawks' first goal in their last 82 minutes and eight seconds of play.

For a while it appeared they would go as long again without scoring until Gresdahl's deflection.

The club skated strongly, with McAlpine, Brown and Plane twice on consecutive break-ins, failing to beat Reesor in the early going.

They slipped midway through the second and clearing problems set up Woodstock's lead marker. Gerry Shingle stole the puck from Rick Bradford after several clearing attempts failed and Dino Leggio suprised Rexe with a low shot for the 2-1 score.

Time and again the Mo-Hawks jammed around the Athletics' net without hitting paydirt as just about every member of the club had at least one great scoring chance. Several two-on-one chances went astray while Reesor and Rexe kicked out other labelled shots. Gresdahl and Taylor beat Reeson but bounced the disc off a goalpost on both occasions, with Taylor's coming in overtime off a two-on-one break with Menard.

Rexe's big saves, two in quick succession, came when Woodstock held a 3-4 manpower advantage in the 14th minute of the third period. At the other end, Menard, Brown, Darling, Marineau and Taylor did everything but score.

Defenceman Lionel Boily played with his injured foot frozen. It affected his skating.

Barrie Ties Galt

Barrie Flyers got a goal ahead five times in an Ontario Hockey Association senior game Friday night, but five times Galt Hornets found the back, finally forcing Barrie to settle for a 5-5 overtime tie.

In other games Friday, Woodstock Athletics and Belleville Mo-Hawks fought to a 2-2 overtime tie and Dave McComb scored three times in the third period to hand Collingwood Collingwood Georgians a 5-2 victory over Guelph Regals.

Ron Hergott's unassisted goal with less than three minutes remaining in regulation time set up a scoreless overtime session at Barrie.

Earl Balfour, Bert Brown, Ivan Tennant and John Beesley got the other Galt goals. For Barrie, John Weeks and Bob Delcourt each had two goals Knowles one.

Gary Gresdahl sent Woodstock and Belleville into overtime with a goal against the Athletics at 19:55 of the third period.

Rochester Routs Bisons 7-1

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goaltender Gary Smith is a travelling man, both on and off the ice.

Smith, who has played in three hockey leagues this season, stunned National Hockey League fans while playing with Toronto Maple Leafs last month by skating to centre ice before passing the puck.

He returned to the American Hockey League Friday night after more than a month with Victoria Maple Leafs of the Western Hockey League and led Rochester Americans to a 7-1 rout over Buffalo Bisons.

Booster Club To Be Organized

Mo-Hawk manager Ron Fralick announced Friday that a meeting to organize a Booster Club will be held Sunday.

The meeting is slated for Memorial Arena, at 2:00 p.m., and anyone interested is invited to attend.

Several of the old Mac Booster Club members have voiced interest so we thought we had better call a meeting," Fralick said.

Massengale Tops Palmer!

LOS ANGELES (CP) — The life and experiences of a professional golfer can be subject to change by the day and week, as Don Massengale can attest.

Massengale, a graduate of the sand greens of his native Jacksboro, Tex., and a former star golfer at Texas Christian University before he turned professional in 1960, was the leading man today going into the third round of the $100,000 Los Angeles Open.

Massengale now has his two best ever back-to-back rounds of 67-65 for a 36-hole score of 132, tying the tournament record set in 1956 by Lloyd Mangrum for the Rancho Golf Club course.

And he held a lead of two strokes over Arnold Palmer, 10 over National Open champion Billy Casper, and 11 over Jack Nicklaus.

This may seem heady stuff for the tall Texan, the defending Canadian Open champion, but he seemed unawed.

Palmer blasted out a 70 under par 65 Friday. He finished ahead of Massengale, and it appeared the round would belong to Arnie and his army.

SHOOTS 65

But Massengale began to make noises with a 32 at the turn, and he came home in 33 for 65.

Five shots back of Massengale were the first round leader, Jacky Cupit, with 66-71; Bill Martindale and Gay Brewer, each 67-70, and Bert Yancey, 67-70.

Among those who failed to qualify for the final rounds—145 was the cut off score—were two past winners here, Dow Finsterwald and Ken Venturi, as well as New Zealand's Bob Charles and George Knudson of Toronto.

Knudson shot 72 Friday but his 75 Thursday gave him a two-round total of 147.

NY Index; Don't Sell Blues Short

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

So New York Rangers got walloped two games in a row. Don't sell 'em for 50 bucks like the Brooklyn Bridge.

When they came back to beat the toothless but tryling Boston Bruins 2-1 Wednesday night, they emphasized that nobody is yet threatening them for second place in the National Hockey League standings.

Those losses-6-2 to the Bruins last Saturday night and 7-2 to Detroit Red Wings Sunday night -constituted the Rangers' first slump of the season.

The Rangers move into Montreal tonight for a game with the Canadiens, and the way the Canadiens have been playing so far this season, New York could win.

The Rangers have been the biggest surprise of the current NHL season. The goaltending has been about the best in the league, the defence has been consistent and the forwards are scoring and backchecking.

Ed Giacomin, the Rangers' lanky goaltender, leads the league in shutouts with six and his goals - against average is 2:32. The defence is led by Harry Howell, the veteran defenceman who was honored in New York Wednesday after having played his 1,000th NHL game—all with New York.

The forwards are paced by Rod Gilbert, Bob Nevin, Don Marshall and Phil Goyette. Giacomin, Howell and Gilbert also made the first all - star team in the voting for the first half of the current season, and Marshall was named to the second team.

The Rangers have two wins in four games against the Canadiens in Montreal this season. They also led the Canadiens 4-3 in seven meetings.

The Maple Leafs are third, seven points behind the Rangers.

The Canadiens' problems arise from the fact that they haven't been able to put two good games together. In 40 games, they have posted only three back - to - back wins and have enjoyed only one winning streak of four games.

This time last year, they held down second spot in the standings with 47 points. This year they have 39.

Canadiens expect to have Yvan Cournoyer back in action against the Rangers at Montreal tonight. He missed Thursday's 4-1 loss to Boston with a knee injury, suffered against the Maple Leafs Wednesday night.

The Leafs also appear to be in trouble, having lost five straight. They've sputtered since veteran Red Kelly suffered a knee injury a few weeks ago.

The Leafs appeared to be without a leader, which was the role Kelly assumed almost at the start of the season.

But the Leafs will be without left winger Frank Mahovlich when they take on the high-flying Hawks. Mahovlich suffered a severe charley horse against Montreal Wednesday night and is expected to miss Sunday's game in Chicago.

Bob Pulford, normally a centre, is expected to play left wing in Mahovlich's spot.

Oshawa Splurge Defeats Macs!

Oshawa Crushmen erupted for three second - period goals on their way to a close 4-2 OHA Eastern Junior "B" League triumph over the Quinte McFarlands, in Oshawa, last night.

The loss, combined with a lop - sided victory for Kingston over Trenton Aiple Kings, left the Macs a slim point up on the Frontenacs in the fight for the fourth and final playoff berth. And Kingston plays in Trenton tomorrow (Sunday) night.

Belleville's next start is also against Trenton, in Memorial Arena Tuesday night. That game will be part of a special double - header featuring two OHA teams. Tuesday's action starts at 8:00.

The Macs scored the only goal of the first period and tied it 2-2 at 8.58 of the second but couldn't contain the Crushmen in the hard - fought action. Oshawa clinched the nod with the lone third period tally and regained sole possession of first place with the decision.

Ernie Sharpe, returning to the Mac lineup after missing two games because of grade 13 exams, opened the scoring at 2.45 of the game. He combined with Doug Potts and Steve White for the marker.

Potts, still travelling at a goals-a-game pace of late for Quinte, knotted the score at 8.58. Sharpe and White gained assists on that one but the lie was short-lived.

Bradley ripped back for the winning goal, on a three-ply play with Jerry Welsh and Don Bowen, at 10.32.

Goalies Bob Forrester of the Macs and Larry Giggure traded excellent saves as the clubs went all out without success for the next ten minutes.

It was the same in the third heat until Knowles combined with Ron Webb and John Clayton midway through the third. Torrid all-out attacks at both ends failed to result in further scoring.

In the penalty department, Quinte drew four minors and the Crushmen took three. However, the type of scoresheet used in Oshawa does not disclose in which periods the penalties were assessed nor were shots-on-goal listed.

Lineups And Summary

QUINTE — Forrester, Neil, Townsend, Calver, Thompson, Summers, Potts, Fleming, Sharpe, Stewart, Ingles, Rockett, White.

OSHAWA — Giggure, Clayton, Brown, Binning, Whitely, Laframboise, Welsh, Solomon, Bradley, Bowen, Hearns, Xavier, Walmsley, Hicks.

The second race will be held with the winner determined on combined times.

Seniors, Bantams Win

BCI Juniors Edge Quinte

By ROBT. SNEFJELLA

A pair of baskets in the final seconds of play snapped a tie and gave B.C.I. juniors a 52-50 victory over Quinte in a basketball cliffhanger at Quinte last night. In senior, B.C.I.'s powerhouse amassed Quinte 73-36, while in bantam, the visitors tramped the home team 47-27.

The victories kept all three of B.C.I.'s teams in first place with identical unmarred 7-0 records.

Quinte started the junior game with a roar, as they drove through the B.C.I. defence to grab an early lead. The losers held a 20-14 margin after the first quarter.

In the second period, B.C.I. stormed back to tie the game at 29-29. Superior height under the basket gave B.C.I. a big edge in rebounding.

Three B.C.I. first stringers fouled out in the third quarter to help the Quinte cause. Quinte led by a point at the beginning of the fourth quarter.

In the final stretch the game was tied many times, with Paul Goodfellow leading Quinte's effort. Ted Shore of B.C.I. grabbed a loose ball and drove in for a layup and two points with less than 15 seconds left, and Quinte threw the ball away to B.C.I. defenders in their effort to tie the score again, to hand BCI the win.

Dave Cass of B.C.I. potted 26 points and was best player of the floor until he fouled out in the third quarter. Shea hooped 12, Drumm had eight, and Riddell and Shaw six each.

Paul Goodfellow led the losers with a 24 point performance. Glen Easton hooped 13 and Bob Brownlee 12, while John Mywaart contributed six.

In the senior game, BCI dominated all phases of play, and the outcome was never in doubt. Their deadly accuracy in shooting and dare in rebounding assured them of victory.

Tom Lounie led the winners with a fine 25 point performance, while team-mates John Chalmers had 19 and Thibeau 15. Ross McDougal had seven points.

No member of the Quinte squad hit double figures. Mike Reddick had eight points, Paul Duncan seven, Terry Wellesley 5, while the rest of others followed with three.

B.C.I.'s bantams showed plenty of future senior talent as they whipped Quinte. The winners displayed good shooting and battle, and led throughout.

Wright led BCI with 18 points, while Calpue and Gill hooped nine and eight respectively.

Pete Middleton had 16 points for Quinte, and Hugh Von Allen added six.

Take Three From Napanee

Moira SS Sweeps Slate

By DAVE BRAMMER

All three Moira basketball teams chalked up easy victories over their Napanee counterparts in games played at Moira last night. Moira bantams won 45-20, the Moira juniors won 50-40 and the Moira seniors triumphed, 58-27.

In the bantam game Paul Hayes scored 22 points to lead Moira to their victory. The leading Napanee scorer was Cunningham, with 6 points.

The junior game was won by Moira's second and third string players who played most of the game. Mick Chalmers and Bill Trenbert led Moira with 12 points each, while Bruce Larsen had 10 points, and Rob Rolston had 8 points. For Napanee Froud had 20 points and Legere netted 15.

The senior game was a runaway from the start as Moira's fine ballhandling and great outside shooting were too much for the Napanee team.

In the second quarter Moira built up a substantial lead and led at half - time by 34-14. This was mainly due to Moira players stealing the ball and scoring.

The third quarter followed the same pattern as Napanee couldn't seem to do anything right. Moira, on the other hand, took advantage of any breaks that came their way, and led 44-19 at the end of the third quarter.

The fourth quarter was fairly even as Napanee seemed to come to life. However, this was a case of too little and too late, and Moira won 58-27

The scorers in the senior game were: Moira: Hayman 16, Paul Loder 10, Dobie 8, Banting 7, Detenbeck 4, Dave Loder 4, Findlay 3, Creitney 2, Longstaff 2, Brammell 1. Napanee: Boone 11, Smith 6, Cechetto 4, Lea 4, Lessard 2.

'Cookie' To Sue Dolphins

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Star fullback "Cookie" Gilchrist is preparing to sue Miami Dolphins for breach of contract, the Miami Herald reported today.

The Herald quoted Joh Robbie, the Dolphins' managing partner, as saying the big fullback is running up a blind alley.

Gilchrist was reported to have claimed Friday from his home in Toronto that he has not received "one dime" from the fringe benefit clause tract calling for a $200 weekly "personal service income" in the off-season.

The Herald said the 31-year-old Gilchrist added that he took his case to president Milt Woodard of the American Football League and expressed his "disappointment in Mr. Robbie's way of doing things."

The amount at issue was $5,200 for 26 weeks. Robbie said he felt Gilchrist is "compelled in good faith" to accept any off - season employment, then submit an affidavit of earnings, The Herald reported. He would be paid any difference between what Gilchrist earned and the $5,200, Robbie said.

Emerson, Junior Champion

Vienna Looms For Junior Skaters

TORONTO (CP)—Joni Graham and Don Phillips know it's a long way to Vienna from Vancouver, but they'd like to find out the exact distance.

"I wonder what Vienna is like?" Joni asked herself Friday night after she and Don won the initial round of the senior dance competition at the Canadian figure skating championships.

Two dance teams will be picked at the close of competition Sunday to represent Canada at the world figure skating championships Feb. 28-March 5 at Vienna.

But Joni and Don have to compete in the freestyle dance final Sunday before they start packing their bags for the world finals. The initial round of four compulsory dances is worth 60 per cent of a dance team's final mark and the freestyle 40 per cent.

Joni and Don, 22, had four firsts in total ordinals and 142.0 points. Judy Henderson, 20, and John Baily, 22, both of Toronto, were right behind them with three firsts and 141.4 points.

Maureen Peever of nearby Newmarket and Wayne Palmer of Toronto were third with 133.3 points. Each of the four teams had to perform the Viennese waltz, paso doble, Argentine tango and 14-step.

Bob Emerson, 18, of Toronto came from behind to win it with a brilliant freestyle solo. He was in second place going into the final round, but the leader, David Coffin, 17, of Vancouver fell twice during his solo.

Emerson, who has been skating for five years, was awarded four out of five firsts and 766.7 points while Coffin received 760.9 points. John McWilliams, 15, of Toronto was third with with 732.6.

Earlier, Betty and John McKilligan won the initial round in the senior pairs competition with seven out of seven first and 70.9 points.

In the morning round, Valerie Jones, 18, of Toronto scored seven firsts in the compulsory figures to take the lead in the senior women's competition. The freestyle final will be skated Sunday.

Miss Jones, who finished second in women's national competition last year to Petra Burka of Toronto, was awarded 1041.1 points after the gruelling, six-figure competition.

Karen Magnussen,14, of Vancouver finished second with 976.2 points. Roberta Laurent, 17, of Toronto had 962.4 points, but was placed third because Miss Magnussen had fewer points in total ordinals.

Snow Poses Ski Problem

By WALTER HAYES

GARIBALDI, B.C. (CP) Heavy snowfalls shaped up as a formidable problem for the opening today of the international ski meet at Whistler Mountain, 70 miles north of Vancouver.

Officials and volunteers spent Friday packing the women's slalom and men's giant slalom courses but were fighting a losing battle.

They worked through a steady day of snow and when they left the mountain at dusk, it was still snowing heavily. More snow was forecast for the race day.

Both courses were in good condition, but an official of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association said continued snow will slow the skiers. It has been snowing at the rate of a foot a day.

A heavy overcast also blanketed the mountain Friday, cutting visibility to a few feet. A repetition of these conditions today would not only hamper skiers but play havoc with the thousands of spectators expected.

The cream of the world's skiing elite, representing 10 countries including Canada, has been practising on the slopes for the last two days.

Georges Mauduit of France, the world's top - ranked giant slalom specialist, is favored to win the event. Mauduit has drawn 10th starting position in a field of 47.

Ludwig Leitner, 26, an Olympic combined champion from Mittelberg, Germany, has drawn the favored first starting position.

Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., is considered a good bet to win the slalom, her best event. She is leading the World Cup competition for the best woman skier with four wins in seven European races this year.

Miss Greene, 22, has drawn fourth position among 48 women in the slalom, which starts at 12:30 p.m.

Two members of the U.S. women's ski team, Rosie Frolna and Cathy Nagel, are first and second starters.

Christine Goitschel-Beranger, one of the famed Goitschel sisters of France, is expected to give Miss Green a run in the slalom and Sunday's giant slalom.

Also highly rated among the women are Ruth Adolf and Edith Hitbrand of Switzerland.

Outdoor Tips And Tricks

BY BOB BLAIND

Ice fishermen, take note of the ice conditions on the lakes or rivers this week. The warm balmy weather last weekend has played havoc with what little ice we had and in some places has made it unsafe to travel.

Most of the rivers and streams in the area are at spring flood conditions and therefore any place on a lake near the entrance or exit of a stream or river would be unsafe to travel upon.

The ice along the shorelines of most lakes is very thin and great caution should be taken if travelling on a skidoo or auto.

At Consecon Lake on Thursday morning, the ice on the north side of the lake had become weakened to such an extent that planks were used as a bridge from the shoreline to the thicker ice six or eight feet out. This is risky fishing.

Shakespeare of Canada has a new spincast ready to hit the market in the near future, a new trophy-winning design made especially as a centennial model.

I took a long drive around the country the other day to look over the condition of our local trout streams and was very much surprised at some of the winter pollution going on at some of these streams.

Garbage and tin cans had been dumped by several people along a high bank at one of these spots. Most of this hakkoil cans and all — had rolled down the bank into a nice deep pool which in the spring holds some fine speckled trout. A film of oil showed up on the surface and around the shoreline while cans and bottles littered the bottom.

In another good spot a huge roll of old fence could be seen just under the surface; while at still another stream which was just coming into its own, some woodsmen had dropped the tops from large trees into the creek, along with all the branches they had taken off these trees. This is the second winter this crew has done this and where there was some very good fishing a couple of years ago, now, with the silt backing up in these spots the trout have moved out.

It is time we realized we are polluting our waters, even at this time of the year.

Stop and think before it is too late.

Food For Thought: We have in our immediate area such sporting clubs as an archery club, a trap club, a pistol club and a fish and game association.

It would seem a good idea if all these fellows and girls could form one organization under one heading. They could talk their with the "powers that be," with lots of power. What do you think?

Quebec Bonspiel

Ontario Rinks Win 5 Awards

QUEBEC (CP) — Two top prizes in the week-long 56th annual Quebec international bonspiel remain to be claimed at today's windup—the Grand Agfa Award and the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy.

But if Friday night's final rounds are any indication of the trend, there won't be much bonspiel silverware remaining in Quebec for the coming year.

Led by veteran Nels Findlay of Toronto's Royal Canadian Curling Club, Ontario rinks won five of the six awards.

Findlay, of Preston, Ont., but curling this year for the Toronto club, won the Chateau Frontenac Trophy and is given a good chance to end up with the Lieutenant-Governor's and aggregate awards for a grand slam.

This feat has been accomplished only twice since 1953. The Campbells of Avonlea, Sask., led by skip Garnet Campbell, won it in 1957.

The Francois Jobin Gold Cup winner is Allan Thorpe of Burlington, Ont., who led his rink to a narrow 10-9 win over Guy Germain of Quebec Cambrai.

A newcomer from Leaside, Ont., George Brisbois, made his international debut a winning one and picked up the Dow Gold Bowl of polishing off Bruce Crutchfield of Cambrai by an 11-3 score.

The Wakham Watch Award was won by another freshman skip, Cam Guyatt of Hamilton's Glendord curling club, who downed Bogie Bollauzer of Burlington 11-6.

Jim Campbell of Toronto Cricket and Curling Club piloted his foursome to the Holt-Renfrew Award with a 9-4 win over newcomer Dave Nicol of Toronto's Board of Trade Club.

If you're looking for a place to start on home improvements, consider these facts about electric wiring.

To most people, home improvements mean a panelled recreation room or a shiny new set of kitchen cupboards. But there's a way to improve the improvements: modernize your home wiring first.

Up-to-date wiring lets you make the most of the new room you're building, or the old one you're re-styling. It lets you place your lighting wherever you like, have as many electrical outlets as you choose, and use as many appliances as you need without popping fuses.

In fact, you'll notice pleasant changes all through your home. Modern wiring can improve the efficiency of your lighting and the performance of your appliances. It puts such comforts as electric heating and air conditioning well within your reach. It can also make a big difference to the safety and re-sale value of your home. Before you reach for your toolbox, reach for your telephone. Call a qualified electrical contractor, or your Hydro.

Up-to-date wiring costs less than you may think. Yet it could be your most important home improvement of all.

Prices on Canadian Exchange End Week With Small Losses

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Despite some discouraging news for Canada's stock exchanges this week, investors maintained their composure and prices closed with only moderate losses.

The decline snapped a three-week rally and the Toronto exchange's industrial index, key indicator of the market's performance, dropped 1.37 to 157.51. It fell 1.19 to 159.04 at Montreal.

At mid-week the U.S. treasury asked Congress to double the interest - equalization tax. The effect would be that U.S. purchases of most Canadian stocks would have to pay a 30-per-cent tax instead of 15.

The immediate reaction was a heavy sell-off which resulted in the Toronto index suffering its biggest loss since Oct. 1. But by Friday the market began to trim its losses.

Exports and imports have little effect because there has been no anti-U.S. participation in Canadian markets since the 15-per-cent tax was first imposed in 1963.

However, investors received some encouraging news when Prime Minister Pearson announced it was cutting its prime interest rate on business loans to 6½ per cent from six.

The Bank of Canada announced Friday night it would buy $100,000 treasury bills at a per-cent from 5¼ effective Monday.

At Toronto, International Minerals rose 3¼ to 43¼ and Harding Carpets A 2½ to 29 after the company said it doesn't expect its 1967 profit to be any less than it was in 1966. Algoma Steel dropped 1½ to 24.

Market-leader gained 4 to 88. B.C. Forest 2 to 23½, Avco 2½ to 20 and General Develop-replied. "I'm sure everyone would be very happy if our show does as well as Death of a Salesman, which made a very good rating although it didn't beat Bonanza.

"The aim seems to be not to win viewers away from Bonanza, but to attract new viewers who seldom watch television. There is an enormous minority of non-viewers who don't want arty shows or ballets, but are only seeking some originality in their entertainment. So when find it, they don't watch TV."

Series of Special Dramas For CBS Playhouse Ready

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Most critics and many viewers consider the 1950s to have been television's Elizabethan era, when live television produced great drama that hasn't been matched since.

CBS is making what appears to be a brave attempt to bring back at least a semblance of that era. The network has contracted for a series of special dramas for CBS Playhouse. The first is a story of the Vietnam war, The Final Year of Olly Winter, which will appear Sunday.

Significantly, the producer is Fred Coe, a name revered for his association with such early stars as Television Playhouse, Philco-Goodyear Television Playwrights 56 and Playhouse 90.

Coe, who turned in recent years to producing plays (The Miracle Worker) and films (A Thousand Clowns), seemed delighted to be back in the medium in which he began 20 years ago.

"We're doing the show at Television City in much the same way we did plays in the early days," he said. "It's not live, but it is live-on-tape, which allows for sustained scenes rather than cut performances, as in film. Tape gives us the chance to make inserts if needed, but I prefer to use it as little as possible."

Coe's drama will be opposite NBC's top-ranked Bonanza. He has asked if CBS wouldn't be accused of cowardice in not scheduling Playhouse in a spot where it would have a better chance to gain a rating.

"I don't think CBS is presenting this series as a popularity contest," the producer

"If women are smarter than men, how come we have to support you when we grow up?"

Employment News

With the first month of Canada's Centennial year nearly over, we become aware that economically speaking, the health of the community has improved over the same period a year ago. The local employment opportunities as represented by labor requirements listed by employers with the Canada Manpower Centre during the month showed an increased number of job vacancies in comparison to January 1966.

In the agricultural field, although there is little additional labor required at this time of year, something quite unique is taking place. That is, each evening throughout the work week, some 167 farmers are going to school again at the Centre in Quinte Secondary School where, under the Ontario manpower training program, courses are being conducted with the objective of turning present day agricultural farming into profitable businesses.

A number of local farmers possessing mature woodlots are finding a ready market for their cut logs, either at the local sawmills or for veneer production. In addition, soil moisture conditions are satisfactory which augurs well for the coming planting and growing season.

The community's industrial picture is also maintaining a very peak labor forces and in some cases are planning to hire additional workers.

There is an increasing awareness by management of the benefits to be derived from and the necessity for more participation by industry in the apprenticeship and on-the-job training programs. The diversity of the community's industry both primary and secondary makes a varied occupational labor force.

Recently those persons concerned in the tourist trade have held seminars to discuss the ways to expand the co-ordination of this tourist business during centennial year.

The nature of work now being done during the winter months is evidence that the Belleville and area winter unemployment campaign whose banner slogan is — "Keep People Working" — "Do It Now" has been acted upon in recognition of the fact that the alleviation of winter unemployment benefits everyone.

These are some of the aspects in which the community's economy is endeavoring to adapt itself in order to succeed all the more with the accelerating pace of technological change.

In the female division locally, a telephone switchboard, operator is required for work which is on a shift basis. There are requirements for reliable women to care for children, a counter girl for a cafeteria and chambermaids.

In a neighboring city, a dictaphone operator clerk is required for hospital work. The successful person must be an accurate typist and have a knowledge of medical terminology for the transcription of medical notes.

In Northern Manitoba a private secretary is required by the president and mine manager of a mining company. The work will be of a confidential nature and the successful person must possess good judgment and be able to accept responsibility. Good shorthand and typing skills are demanded with at least a Grade XI education.

A travel service is seeking a lady ticket agent who likes to interview the public personally and by telephone, concerning rail, air line and steamship travel. Typing is necessary and she will arrange reservations, deal with schedules and tariffs. There is an excellent position available for a court reporter at Whitehorse, Yukon Territory. The requirement calls for the ability to take either legal evidence or technical and medical evidence at a speed of at least 200 words per minute. An attractive salary and other benefits go with this position.

In the male division locally, there are numerous employment opportunities such as: experienced sheet metal worker, an electrical wireman, tailor and stock clerk, a motel desk clerk, an automotive parts and office clerk, a maintenance man for factory work, a bookkeeper, finance manager, a hotel/motel manager, a machine salesman and service repairman, telegraph operator trainees and experienced cement finishers. In addition to these positions there are varied numbers of unfilled positions elsewhere in Canada.

If you are interested in any of these positions, seeking either employment or thinking of reentering the labor market, you are invited to contact the Canada Manpower Centre at 324 Church Street, Belleville, or telephone 962-8681.

Unification OK for Canada But Not Britain: Mayhew

LONDON (CP) — Unification of army, navy and air force into a single defence system in Britain would have formidable drawbacks, says a former Labor government minister who has studied Canadian defence reorganization.

Christopher Mayhew, who resigned 11 months ago as navy minister and returned to the Labor back benches in protest against government policy, says in a new book, Britain's Role Tomorrow (Hutchinson), to be released simultaneously next week in Britain, Canada and elsewhere.

"It seemed clear to me, and Mr. Hellyer readily agreed, that the degree of dislocation which he had cheerfully and deliberately created in Canada would be too much for a country like Britain, with a larger and more complex defence organization, and with immediate, widespread operational responsibilities,"—Mayhew writes.

He says Hellyer had dismantled and rebuilt the defence forces on functional lines.

"He has built an effective machine for allocating scarce resources on rational principles and for steam-rollering interservice differences."

In the short run, Mayhew writes, the reforms mean increased demand on money and manpower instead of economies, with the centralized department supplementing rather than replacing the three service departments.

"A member of the department commented sardonically that he doubted whether Canada could find the money needed to finance Mr. Hellyer's economies."

Mayhew regards the greatest danger in unification as a weakening of the links between different functions inside a particular service—such as between those who deploy aircraft and those who fly them.

"In any defence organization, . . . the relationship between the 'user' and the 'producer' in a particular service is more important than the relationship between 'users' in different services and 'producers' in different services. This will remain as long as servicemen still have to specialize in order to fight in three different elements — sea, land and air."

And although loyalty to a single service might be "outdated, irrational and inconvenient," Mayhew writes, such loyalty exists and, "unlike computers, can create courage and devotion to duty."

Most of Mayhew's book is devoted, however, to an account of the quarrel over limiting defence expenditures, which led to his own resignation.

Fuel Woes Can Be Frustrating

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

Ignition troubles which hurt engine starting, smoothness and speed may be more common, but those fixed by the fuel system can be much harder to pinpoint.

Often, it's a case of too little (or no) fuel reaching the engine. When this is known, a clogged fuel line or failing pump is usually suspected. But in fact, the carburetor — whether due to dirt, gum, wear or maladjustment — is a more likely cause of fuel starvation.

If either the carburetor or manifold mountings are loose, or gaskets defective; air can leak in to lean out the fuel mixture and make the engine gasp for gas.

"No fuel" is sometimes the result of a clogged gas cap vent, or a defective fuel gauge that fails to warn when the tank is going dry.

Your engine can also bog down if too much fuel tends to drown it. One of the most frequent causes of flooding is a faulty choke. When the carburetor is to blame, it's usually because of over-rich adjustment, high float level or a sticking needle valve. Excessive fuel pump pressure is also a possibility, although not very common.

From P. H.: "Every one seems to think gas mileage should be beat at thruway speeds. Why not set the record straight?"

What you probably mean — and you're right — is that very high speeds can consume as much as 20 per cent more gas than 40-45 mph speeds.

N. O.: asks: "There's a rubbing noise coming from the left front wheel of my car. Would this be due to wheel-bearing trouble?"

It could — but a dragging brake shoe is also a strong possibility.

B. G. writes: "We took our new '67 on a long trip and it developed an engine knock. It isn't constant, but if it does occur, it's usually when I accelerate quickly. Would this be a main bearing knock?"

It's doubtful. Loose engine mounts are more likely. But why the delay in taking it back to your dealer?

From N.P.: "Water keeps going out the radiator overflow pipe on my '59 sedan. The radiator was flushed, boiled and rodded. I've also tried a new thermostat, pressure cap and hoses." This could be due to a faulty head gasket which is allowing exhaust gases to get into the cooling system.

TORONTO (CP) — Silverman Mining Ltd. announced Friday that inconsistencies have been found in the original assaying of the west sector of the company's Elliot Lake property. First check assays indicate a lower over-all grade, President A. D. Hollens said. The inconsistencies were found during a recent check of drillcore assay grade calculations. Shareholders were promised a detailed report when all check assays have been received.

Two Houses Show Rare Solidarity

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Opposition and government MLAs got together in two legislatures Friday in a rare show of solidarity.

In Newfoundland, both sides of the house demanded respect for Newfoundland law as the legislature outlawed hospital strikes and warned a defiant union local.

In Quebec, the Liberal opposition offered to drop a motion of non-confidence if the government would accept opposition suggestions for settlement of the current teachers' strike.

Legislatures also sat in Ontario, Manitoba and British Columbia.

The Newfoundland house gave final approval to a measure that authorizes decertification of any union and threatens fines up to $5,000 daily for violations.

This means 135 non-professional workers, members of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, have 72 hours to get back on the job at a Grand Falls hospital.

In Quebec, Premier Daniel Johnson said the cabinet will consider during the weekend opposition suggestions to settle the teachers' strike and will make its decision known to the house Tuesday.

Opposition Leader Jean Lesage suggested establishment of a government - named mediation commission to conduct contract negotiations between individual school boards and their teachers.

More than 200,000 children are having forced holidays because of the strike.

In the Ontario legislature, Health Minister Matthew Dymond tabled a white paper outlining a five-year program to identify and treat emotionally disturbed and retarded children.

Cost of the program will be $10,000,000 in buildings and some $50,000,000 in operating expenses over the five years.

Dr. Dymond said the program will involve free treatment for all emotionally - disturbed children at regional clinics.

In Winnipeg, Ben Hanuschak (NDP—Burrows) suggested a continuous program of instruction on government should be established in Manitoba elementary and secondary schools.

He entered a debate on a resolution calling on the government to lower the voting age in provincial elections to 18 from 21.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia and two of his cabinet ministers were exiled "three blind mice" and "slum landlords" in a continuing debate over low-cost housing in Victoria.

Attorney - General Robert Bonner said federal tight money was the cause of a housing crisis.

"The tightest money is the money held in the premier's fist," said Patrick McGeer (L—Vancouver-Point Grey).

"The attorney - general, the premier and the minister of municipal affairs Dan Campbell are the three blind mice . . . the slum landlords of British Columbia."

HOPE TO STOP SNIFFERS

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities are working on plans to provide local controls on such hazardous pastimes as glue-sniffing, reliable sources said Friday. If the government gives the go-ahead, Parliament probably will be asked later this year to pass a Hazardous Substances Act.

National Transport Bill Now Law

OTTAWA (CP)—After more than 1,000,000 words of debate —and prayers from Transport Minister Pickersgill — the government's transport bill finally was given third reading in the Commons Friday.

The legislation that sets up a national transportation policy had been debated vigorously for 16 sitting days since the Commons resumed discussion of it before Christmas. It passed second reading, approval in principle, last fall.

Final passage came on a 70-to-33 vote in which an independent and two Social Credit members joined the minority Liberal government. Against passage were 36 Conservatives, 13 NDP members and four Creditistes.

Committee study — the stage between second and third reading—was marked by lively debate, appeals to the Speaker and criticism of press gallery reporters for skimpy coverage of the proceedings.

Mr. Pickersgill was assailed continuously but even during the heat of argument he remained composed, rising to opposition barbs with humorous replies.

Jack Horner (PC — Acadia), an active critic at every stage of the debate, described gallery reporters as sultans interested only in sensational news. The gallery immediately took the name for its hockey team which will meet MPs in a match next month.

Both Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) and Thomas M. Bell (PC — Saint John-Albert) said coverage of debate on the bill had been inadequate and that its importance had not been reflected in news stories.

The legislation sets up a 17-man commission to deal with Canada's transportation problems and removes, over an eight - year period, federal rail subsidies which now amount to more than $110,000,000 annually.

It also eliminates a mass of regulatory control over railways and sets them free to set rates and abandon uneconomic services.

The opposition caught the government napping during the debate last week and, by a 59-to-58 vote, eliminated a clause in the bill that would have required a review within three years of the Crowsnest freight rates for western grain.

Mr. Pickersgill said the eliminated clause also knocked out the definition of grain required in the legislation.

He presented an amendment that would have allowed continuing reviews of freight rates, if requested by the railways, but it was ruled invalid by Speaker Lucien Lamoureux after the Conservatives appealed a ruling by committee Chairman Herman M. Batten (L—Humber-St. George's).

Mr. Horner called Mr. Batten's decision shameful but he later apologized, saying the remark had been made in the heat of the debate.

On Friday the NDP lost a bid to include in the bill a provision to compensate railway employees hurt by rail abandonment.

Conservatives said they feared the great powers of the new transportation commission, but were not successful in a bid to have a watchdog committee of the Commons set up.

With the transport bill on its way to the Senate, the Commons turned to a bill setting up a Canadian Film Development Corp. with a $10,000,000 fund to encourage a domestic feature-film industry.

Yugoslavs Bombed in Six Cities

Four Missions In U.S. Attacked

WASHINGTON (CP - AP) — U.S. and Canadian officials formally apologized in complaining Yugoslav envoys and pledged an intensive investigation of coordinated terrorist attacks that rocked six of the Communist state's diplomatic missions in North America within an hour.

The bombings struck at every Yugoslav diplomatic premise in the United States and Canada except the consulate in Pittsburgh.

But there was no announced indication today of arrests or leads into the explosions that shattered pre-dawn stillness Sunday as embassies in Washington and Ottawa, and at consulates in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Toronto.

Yugoslav Ambassador Veljko Micunovic lodged a strong protest in Washington and received a promise that the U.S. will expend all effort to capture and punish the bombers.

Dean Rusk, U.S. secretary of state, who was in Williamsburg, Va., when told of the attacks, expressed "official and personal" regrets at the "outrageous and senseless acts of terrorism and vandalism."

Martin said: "I'm sure we all regret this bombing and I have given instructions to convey our regrets to the charge d'affaires of the Yugoslavian embassy."

The Federal Bureau of Investigation launched an immediate inquiry in collaboration with other law enforcement authorities in the U.S. and Canada.

The Yugoslav press vehemently demanded greater protection for its missions in the two Western nations and hinted of government collusion with the terrorists.

One newspaper, the government's Politika, said the bombings were "retaliation" by "American and Canadian official circles, or perhaps only one of them," to Yugoslavia's opposition to the Vietnam war.

Borba, the government's official spokesman's newspaper, blamed the attacks on "Fascist emigree organizations which are well known to police in the United States and Canada."

No one was hurt by the powful bombs, although a New York fireman died of a heart attack after being called to the consulate.

It was noted that the attacks came on the 23rd anniversary of the virtual abandonment of his throne by King Peter II of Yugoslavia.

The bombings occurred within 55 minutes. Chronologically:

—A blast ripped the front of the three-storey Yugoslav Embassy in Washington, shattering windows in the front of the structure and gouging a hole in the wall. The time was 4:05 a.m. EST.

—At 4 a.m., a bomb tore a hole in the foundation of the embassy in Ottawa. Ottawa police said it appeared the explosive device contained about five or six sticks of dynamite. Damage was expected to run into thousands of dollars. Windows were shattered in the embassy, the building next door and a house across the street.

—At 4:08, a blast caved in the front door of the Toronto consulate. Toronto police said the bomb probably was made of six sticks of dynamite wired together and thrown from a moving car. Windows within a block of the consulate were shattered and police estimated the damage at about $5,000.

—At virtually the same time, blasts rocked consulates in San Francisco and Chicago. The San Francisco explosion went off in a narrow alleyway between the consulate and a neighboring residence, blowing holes in both structures. The Chicago blast left a crater in the consulate's backyard and knocked out a few windows.

The consulate in New York was the last hit, at 4:40 a.m. The bomb, believed to have been pushed under a locked door, still work fierce, exploded on a stairway.

Porch at Yugoslav Embassy in Ottawa

Ottawa Embassy Hit, Also Toronto Consulate

TORONTO (CP) — Security precautions have been tightened at the Yugoslavian Embassy in Ottawa and its consulate in Toronto following pre-dawn Terrorist explosions Sunday in Canada and four United States cities.

RCMP have joined with city police and the U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation to determine responsibility for the bomb blasts, which caused heavy damage but only minor injuries.

The Ottawa explosion occurred at 4 a.m., ripping a foot-square hole in the basement. Part of the basement interior collapsed and a back porch was knocked from the foundation.

The Toronto blast came shortly after 4 a.m., gouging a hole three feet wide in the sidewalk and rocking buildings a block away.

Hundreds of panes of glass in 15 houses, about 35 apartments and six stores were smashed and more than a dozen persons were showered with glass as they slept.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, who returned to Ottawa late Sunday afternoon from a speaking engagement in Saskatchewan, termed the bombings "senseless."

"I'm sure we all regret this bombing and I have given instructions to convey our regrets to the charge d'affaire of the Yugoslavian Embassy."

The charge d'affaire, Branko Miljanovic, said the bombs were probably the work of a Yugoslav terrorist - Fascist organization.

Ottawa police said the explosive device, probably containing five or six sticks of dynamite, exploded in a driveway near the rear of the building.

No one was injured in the blast, but damage is expected to run into thousands of dollars.

Cedo Keempa, caretaker of his wife and two children were the only occupants of the building at the time. Police said the embassy had received no warnings or threats prior to the bombing.

The Toronto blast, the second at the consulate in 18 months, wakened about 1,000 persons.

Police said the explosive was big, and might have been thrown in a passing car.

Consul Bozidar Stanic and his wife, Bepa, sleeping on the second floor, were tossed from their beds. A junior consular officer and his wife and son were also in the building at the time.

Residents in the district started circulating a petition Sunday asking Toronto council to compel the consulate to move from the area. Similar damage was done in the first bombing incident Nov. 27, 1965.

The residents claim the explosions and other disturbances near the consulate are ruining property values.

Several hundred members of a group called the National Creation Committee picketed the building last Nov. 29, the 23rd anniversary of the founding of the provisional government of Marshal Tito.

They carried signs attacking Marshal Tito.

Army Units Are Squabbling Around China's Nuclear Bases

TOKYO (AP)—Units of China's army loyal to Mao Tse-tung claim to have "completely surrounded rebel army units" in rebellious Sinkiang province in the far west, Japanese reports said today.

The claim of Maoist gains in Sinkiang, published in Peking wall newspapers, coincided with other reports that shooting was continuing in the vast, autonomous region bordering the Soviet Union.

Local army units were said to have defied Premier Chou En-lai's orders to the armed forces to side with Mao in his struggle against President Liu Shao-chi and his followers.

Nationalist China's official Central Daily News in Taipei suggested that the Russians might enter the China strife on behalf of anti-Mao generals.

It said the Sinkiang commander, Gen. Wang En-mao, had warned Mao against trying to use the nuclear installations there as a threat to his enemies, China's five atomic explosions took place in Sinkiang.

More than 100 persons were reported killed last week in Sinkiang. Wall newspapers said Sunday that 12 of 68 persons treated in an army hospital also had died.

Kyodo news agency told of wall newspapers saying that this situation in Shihezie, forces of the trouble last week, still was fluid Saturday. The clashes were said to have involved the Aug. 1 Field Army, loyal to Lin, and the pro-Mao 2nd Motorized Battalion. Truce negotiations were suspended Friday, the wall reports said.

The pro-Mao troops demanded that both sides turn in their arms, that "murderers" be turned over and prisoners released. Members of the Aug. 1 Field Army vanished after this and had not returned for talks, the papers said.

"I'm sure we all regret this bombing and I have given instructions to convey our regrets to the charge d'affaire of the Yugoslavian Embassy."

The charge d'affaire, Branko Miljanovic, said the bombs were probably the work of a Yugoslav terrorist - Fascist organization.

PC Executive Fails to Set Meeting Date

TORONTO (CP) — The Progressive Conservative party's executive committee Sunday backed off from a final decision on the timing and site of a leadership convention, but agreed on who would attend. The convention will be any time where from late spring to early fall.

E. A. Goodman, the Toronto lawyer who was chairman of the weekend session, said there was not enough information on accommodation and availability of a site for the meeting to reach a decision.

It may come Feb. 12 when the 25-member committee, made up of the party's inner hierarchy, meets again in Toronto.

The meeting did decide that constituency delegates would be selected on the basis of provincial boundaries under the redistribution process, as advocated by a national association president, Dalton Camp.

The decision was seen as a victory for Camp's supporters who dominate the committee. All but one showed up.

Party Leader John Diefenbaker favored delegate selection based on the old boundaries because they give his rural strength more prominence.

Mr. Goodman said all decisions of the committee were unanimous after all points of view were expressed.

Both Camp and Diefenbaker supporters said they were satisfied with the results of the meeting.

There was no public sign of the internal strife over Mr. Diefenbaker's tenure which has led to the ouster of Mr. Camp's successful campaign last year for a leadership convention.

The committee also agreed on the number of delegates-at-large, a point of strong debate between the groups.

Mr. Diefenbaker objects to delegates-at-large as appointed by provincial officials, but the meeting agreed to have 356 of them with 82 each from Ontario and Quebec, where Mr. Camp draws much of his support.

The Prairie provinces get 25 each, British Columbia 20, Prince Edward Island 10, Newfoundland 11, Nova Scotia and

Belgrade Prevents Reprisals

BELGRADE (CP) — Embassies of Canada and the United States in this capital of Yugoslavia were under special police protection today to guard against attacks resulting from Sunday's bombing of six Yugoslav diplomatic missions in the U.S. and Canada.

Policemen were posted near the embassies and police cars frequently patrolled streets near the two buildings.

The two leading Belgrade newspapers Borba and Politika today carried front-page editorials protesting the bombings.

The official newspaper Borba, in an editorial headed "fruits of tolerance," says the incidents were "without precedence in the chronicle of diplomatic representations in the civilized world."

Borba says the explosions "put special responsibilities before the Canadian and American authorities . . . all the more so as the explosions come after a surprising tolerance of the activity of war criminals and Quislings and their organizations on the territory of the two countries."

Ottawa Asked To Name Women to UN Positions

OTTAWA (CP)—A request for Canadian women to be nominated to senior posts with the United Nations secretariat was included in a brief submitted to the prime minister today by the National Council of Women of Canada.

The 70,000-member organization said in its brief that the UN member states "hardly ever present women candidates for senior posts on the secretariat."

The brief suggested that women be specifically nominated to a section which would deal with education of women and girls.

Another of the 12 resolutions asked that working women employing full-time household help be allowed the same income tax deduction as for a full-time servant living-in.

The council, composed of 1,800 federated women's organizations from coast to coast, asked that the government do everything it can to stop the spread of nuclear weapons and conclude a nuclear test-ban treaty.

The organization, which will present a brief to the parliamentary divorce committee, Tuesday, asked in its submission to the prime minister that federal divorce laws be widened to include insanity, cruelty and desertion as well as adultery. The brief suggested these amendments could then be accepted or rejected by the provinces individually.

A review of abortion laws, clearer labelling of drugs and poisons, and inclusion of mentally-ill and tubercular patients under the federal hospital services and diagnostic services act were also requested.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Mainly sunny conditions are forecast today. A storm moving eastward is expected to reach Lake Superior Tuesday spreading cloud into all regions during the day. Pope Receives Soviet President

VATICAN CITY (Reuters) — Pope Paul today received Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny in a private audience here, the first meeting between a Pope and a Communist head of state.

They were expected to discuss the Pope's peace probes on Vietnam.

Pope Paul, actively engaged for the last year in diplomatic efforts to end the fighting in Vietnam, recently heard American views on the conflict from the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, Henry Cabot Lodge.

The previous highest-level audience granted by Pope Paul to a Communist was that to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last spring.

Podgorny flies back to Moscow Tuesday.

Moscow's determination to continue backing the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese was strongly underlined by Podgorny in various speeches here in Russian help would continue in proportion to American "aggression," he told one public gathering.

There was speculation here, however, the President might use this afternoon's strictly-private meeting with Pope Paul to express himself more freely about how Russia feels the fighting could be stopped.

The fifth bombing of Podgorny's visit occurred Sunday night at a Roman Catholic church, not a Communist party headquarters.

The bomb damaged the Church of St. Pius X in Monte Mario, a middle-class section on a hill overlooking the city. The other four blasts damaged Communist party offices in Rome and Milan.

Israeli Girl Soldiers Add to Perils for UN

JERUSALEM (AP) — The United Nations has two safety valves for keeping Israeli-Arab hatred from blowing the lid in the Middle East.

Israeli - Syrian border strife has turned the spotlight most recently on UNTSO, the UN Truce Supervisory Organization that made up of 133 military men and 280 civilians which operates on all the borders of Jordan, Syria, Lebanon and Egypt, with Israel. Canada contributes men to this force.

It is an observer operation and not a peacekeeping force like UNEF, the United Nations Force of about 3,700 men acting as a buffer along the Israeli-Egyptian armistice demarcation line, in the Gaza Strip and at Sharm el Sheikh at the Gulf of Aquaba. Canada has about 800 men in UNEF.

Maj.-Gen. Carl C. von Horn, a Swede who served as an UNTSO commander in 1958-60, said in his book Soldiering for Peace last October that some UN personnel were engaged in smuggling and black-market operations. He was sharply critical of high UN officials in New York.

He said Israel released girls and military service to entertain UN personnel, but that "enlistment for Israel's cause was used as a cover between the sheets are second to systematic, organized corruption."

UNEF forces operate entirely on the Egyptian side and have no contact with Israeli military patrols, but observers say the Israelis sometimes employ all-girl patrols clad in shorts in an effort to break a ruse forbidding across-the-border talk.

A Yugoslav officer says one of his patrols along the frontier between the Sinai and the Negev came on a patrol of four Israeli girls basking naked in the sun.

"It was disconcerting," the officer said, "but orders are orders.

"We continued on patrol."

Winter Takes Hold

Skiers across the Quinte district are grasping the opportunity to indulge in the sport to the full, as a cold spell combines with recent snows for ideal conditions. The weekend saw many enthusiasts out — like these from a Belleville YMCA group taking a tow at Mountain View Saturday.

Quinte Club Wins Three Of Four Events Contested

The fifth annual Quinte Mixed bonspiel is a matter of record and the competition charge and the curlers participating, all 85 rinks of them, voted the affair the very best. The finals in the fourt events were played at the CFB rink on Sunday night but for three days previously there was considerable shotmaking and ooo record was established. Dave Brown of Quinte with his wife, Kathy and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Henderson scored an 18 shoooter on Saturday night at the local rink and there was great jubilation.

The primary event this year was the Haggarty Transport trophy and a Quinte rink of Marabelle Clare, Bill Clare, Helen McCorquodale and "Corky" McCorquodale as skip won over Hec McIntosh of CFB. The Alexander Vending Machine trophy was won by another Quinte rink of Marlene Henderson, Bill Henderson, Kathy Brown with Dave Brown as skip. This trophy was presented by Bob Alexander, representative of the trophy. "Skit" Skuce of Trenton was runner-up. The Carling trophy representative of the third event was wonq by another Quinte rink of Ruth Crowley, Dr. Frank McCue, Jennie McCue with Dan Cowley as skip. This trophy was presented by Jim Lawson, representative of the Company. Bates of Oshawa was the runner-up.

The fourth and last event in the spiel was won by a rink from the CFB rink skipped by Jim Stewart with Jean Lawson, Frank Heard and Lil Piercy. This trophy was presented by the Fes Cartage Company and was presented by Bill Pallidwar. Bill Burns of Napanee was runner-up.

Howard Aziz, who presented thetrophy to the McCorquodale rink thanked his committee for their time and effort put into the spiel to make it such a success and also the curlers for their patronage.

In the evening at the Memorial Hall, the rafters rang with the laughter and songs, with the tickling strains of the Troubadors to make them forget the discomfort and, scarcely, of their journey here.

Cdr. William Salter entertained with song and story and during the dancing the floor was something to see with women in the flounces and frills of the 1860s swirling around with their escorts.

Operating Costs of CAS Will Be Higher Directors Are Told

OPERATING take 1,2,3,4 ma

Due to expansion of the Society's services and the inclusion of the family counselling staff service in the budget, operation costs of Children's Aid Society will be substantially higher this year than in 1966.

This was stated at the monthly meeting of the Society board of directors held last Thursday in Belleville. Society president Bernard Morley welcomed Councillor J. D. Kinney of Trenton who will represent Trenton council on the board.

Bruce Kerr, CAS director, reported there were 132 children in ward care at the end of December. He said this was a reduction of more than 200 children in the past 3 years.

In reply to an enquiry from Belleville Alderman Doug Leavens, Mr. Kerr said the increase for this fiscal drop Mr. Kerr said in his opinion it was a combination of four things: 1. The county and the city is enjoying unprecedented prosperity 2. The Ontario government is now assuming 80 per cent of relief costs; 3. a marked difference in most areas in the attitude of persons in authority towards people in need of financial help, and 4. a greatly stepped up prevention program.

UNDERSTAFFED IN CITY

Mr. Kerr said that in almost all the area for which the Society was responsible, reasonably adequate protection was now being given. A possible exception was in Belleville where the CAS is understaffed.

This had come about through added responsibilities being assumed without the numerical staff of the Society being increased. This will be corrected as soon as suitable personnel becomes available.

Mr. Kerr said that more emphasis was being given in recent years to protection and prevention but he added that we still more emphasis on the phase of Society work.

"This is the way it should be" Mr. Kerr said. "Why spend thousands of dollars to care for children after they have already been neglected and penalties to prevent further neglect?"

MAY ESTABLISH COURSE

Continuing his report, the director told the meeting that discussions were being held between the CAS at Kingston and Queen's University around the establishment of an undergraduate course in preparation for social work and that the local society had been asked to participate in the planning.

Mr. Kerr recommended that the project be given "all out" support and stressed the importance of the Society assuming its responsibility in developing facilities for student supervision. The local society would have to be prepared to accept two or three students twice a year for field practice for periods of up to four months.

The board accepted the report of Mrs. W. J. Musgrove, chairman of the special committee established to review boarding home rates and children's spending allowances. The committee recommended that the society pay to foster parents $1.35 per day for children 6 years and under, $1.50 per day for older children 12 years and under, and $2.00 per day for children over 13. Children under 6 who receive a spending allowance will now get $1.00 a month; 7 to 12, $3.00 a month; 13 to 15, $4.00 a month and 16 and up, $5.00 a month. In every instance a portion of the allowance will be taken from the child's Family Allowance Account in trust.

The board also accepted the Committee's recommendation that in 1967 certain older children and foster parents be given a clothing allowance annually in lieu of authority to purchase clothing with a voucher issued by the child's caseworker.

Mrs. Musgrove said this was being done at the request of the Child Welfare Branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare.

A new salary schedule for Society workers was adopted by the board.

Mr. Linton Read, chairman of the personnel committee, said the new schedule would place the Society in competition with other CAA and welfare organizations without providing a "edge."

The salary range is now $5,500 for a newcomer with a BA degree but without formal training in social work, to $10,000 for an experienced case worker with a BA degree plus a Masters degree in social work.

Sky's the Limit!

Winging way up over Stirling area, aircraft from Oak Hills club puts civilian fliers in a new dimension of space. Club has 10 planes based in its hangars.

Up He Goes--Into the Wide, Blue Yonder

Members of the Oak Hills Flying Club lift into the wind with the biggest sports area in the world to indulge enthusiasm — the sky. Runway overlooks Trent Valley and northern townships of Quinte district — one of the most scenic airstrips in Ontario.

Flying Club at Stirling
One of Busiest in Province

In fact, the sky has never been as perky — particularly on weekends.

That's the time when members of the Oak Hills Flying Club climber aboard their lively little aircraft to disport themselves up over hill and dale — way up.

But their rate of climb is easily outpaced by that of the club itself, says president, Allen Lawes, of Stirling.

First established in 1964 with a beginner's roster of 10 members, and one aircraft, it now has 10 planes nestling in its hangars and a membership five times its founding number.

And there are three more craft belonging to club fliers based at Campbellford.

Allen, in common with his fellow fliers is proud at the way the fledgling club took wing is little more than two years after its location a few miles southwest of here.

Statistics underscore its growth.

"The aircraft we own have a value of about $50,000," notes Allen. "Add another $6,000 for hangars and $2,500 for the club house and you've some idea of the enthusiasm here.

"But we're only in it for the sport of the thing — so we don't risk ourselves or our aircraft."

Last year, Hadley was given an award for his services to local spare-time flying by the Prince Edward Flying Club — the biggest and oldest Quinte district air club.

Continuing maintenance — crucial to aircraft safety — is carried out by Ray Irwin, a qualified air engineer. Ray's enthusiasm for the sky dates back to the '20s and ranges through RCAF war service. He obtained his pilot's licence in 1948 and today flies one of the neatest craft aloft in Eastern Ontario.

It's a Bebe Jodel, home built by a Kingston flier and purchased by Ray last year. Its cruise-set 85-horsepower Volkswagen engine gives it a cruising speed of 93-miles-an hour, burning only 1½ gallons of fuel.

Club fliers clock between 25 and 30 hours flying time each weekend which is "better average than most clubs in size," comments president Allen.

However, while flying, the club isn't standing still.

Much of its progressiveness hinges on attracting new fliers and to encourage them the club now has an annual instruction course.

"We're hoping to get as many, if not more, this year," says Allen, "and anyone interested can contact the club members."

The government-approved course which begins in the spring, calls for 35 hours' flying and an additional 20-hour ground course.

CANADIANS BORING?

TORONTO (CP) — Prof. Robert McKenzie, who teaches political science at the London School of Economics, said Sunday night that Canada is in danger of becoming a boring visitor at international gatherings. In an interview on the CBC television program Sunday, Prof. McKenzie said: "This business of asking what is a Canadian, and what is the Canadian identity, has become terribly boring."

Ray Irwin in cockpit of home-built light craft waits for fellow club flier to give helping hand with a flying start. Ray also is engineer for club aircraft.

Great Weekend for Area Skiers

PICTON (Staff) — Shades of Lake Placid were evident throughout the island county this weekend as skiers young and old took to the hills to enjoy the good weather. Whalen's winter playground saw tgewds arriving by mid afternoon yesterday to toboggan and many brought skidoos. The hillsides were excellent for the many who took to the steep hill with their toboggans and many were the thrills and spills. The skidoo trails also were well used as families enjoyed their afternoon in the hush.

"Mountain view ski club operated by the Belleville YMCA near the Crofton corner) was also busy, the ski tow was operating and a good crowd was present. Just outside of Picton, on Lake Street, a large crowd attended the usual Sunday afternoon sleighriding at this popular local spot. Also the Sandbanks — in the past few years a favorite spot for many who enjoy the outdoors and the winter activities — had a large crowd of skiers and tobogganing was in full swing there all afternoon. The huge sandbanks have made good sleighing possible in this popular resort area. Near the outlet, a private firm, is renting "skidoos" and skidoo parties were the order of the weekend in the outlet area.

The Mountain View (YMCA) Ski club, one of the most popular Prince Edward Ski Clubs advertise that they are located in the Prince Edward County snow belt, any county resident could argue that, but it is indeed a good area for skiers. They have a wide ski area, five different trails of varying grades for the beginner or the experienced skier. A fine tow is available and a fully equipped Chalet, where sportsmen and women can have hot drinks and snacks. A ski safety patrol is also available at this club, and a regular bus service brings Belleville skiers to the hills. Skidoos were also operating here Sunday as well as the tobogan run.

Winter sports in Prince Edward County are certainly becoming more popular as family fun as many sore muscles and aching bones will indicate but it does shorten a winter.

The Rural Scene

PICTON — The banquet and annual meeting of the Prince Edward Farm Safety Council was held in the Bloomfield United Church Sunday School rooms on Wednesday, January 18th with a good attendance of farm people. The guest speaker was Mr. Bruce Eagleson, chairman, Farm Safety Council of Ontario. During his address he emphasized that human error is the greatest cause of accidents. He noted that many children are operating farm tractors and he stated that it was the parents' responsibility to see that a child was physically and mentally mature enough to operate such equipment. The speaker noted that most accidents occur in mid-morning and mid-afternoon and emphasized the need for a brief stop or coffee break at these times. Mr. Eagleson was introduced by George Emlaw, vice-president of the Prince Edward Farm Safety Council and thanked by Ken Wood.

Bob Boyce, Warden of Prince Edward County indicated his interest in farm groups and organizations. He also brought greetings from County Council and welcomed the guests from outside the County. Space Age Tragedy

The deaths of three more United States astronauts have brought sadness and shock to the men's families as well as to the nation.

Yet in this, as in any great enterprise, the task to which they were dedicated — space research and ultimately a manned landing of the moon — remains foremost.

Virgil Grissom, veteran of the Mercury and Gemini programs, Edward H. White, first U.S. astronaut to leave his space capsule and become a human satellite, and Roger B. Chaffee, on the verge of making his first mission, are dead, but three others, headed by Navy Capt. Walter M. Schirra, are ready to take their place in the Apollo moonship mission.

Grissom and his fellow astronauts died when fire swept through the Apollo craft during a launching pad practice session, in preparation for a two-week ride in space starting February 21.

Thus far, the U.S. program has been relatively accident-free and none has died while aloft. The other three fatalities occurred in flying accidents. However, the Cape Kennedy tragedy has more serious implications in terms of the actual launching procedure and space flights once they are under way. That such an accident has now occurred will at least serve to make even more stringent the painstaking precautions the U.S. space scientists take before sending men into the outer atmosphere.

Politics and All That

Ever wondered what is the difference between Nazism and Fascism?

They are both essentially the same. The term Nazi stems from the National Socialist German Workers' Party founded in 1919 and which under Hitler seized power in Germany in 1933. The Fascists originated with the Fascist movement in Italy, also founded in 1919, and which evolved into the dictatorship of Benito Mussolini.

Both Nazism and Fascism subscribe to the principles of dictatorship and consequently the elimination of all opposition. They also tend to favor the evils of racism, domination of others by means of war, and one-party control.

Recently we came upon some rather different definitions of these and other political affiliations. They are presented here for what they are worth — a chuckle or two at least:

Socialism — You have two cows and give one to your neighbor.

Communism — You have two cows. The government takes both and gives you the milk.

Fascism — You have two cows. The government takes both and sells you the milk.

Nazism — You have two cows. The government takes both and shoots you.

New Dealism — You have two cows. The government takes both, shoots one, milks one, and throws the milk away.

Capitalism — You have two cows. You sell one and buy a bull.

Skills Are Vital

Fortunate are the young people who acquire more than one marketable skill during their days at school, technical college, or university.

Bent Jensen is a Danish artist now living in Picton who took his father's advice and learned a trade he could fall back on if necessary.

Married with four children, Mr. Jensen at the age of 30 has reason to be glad of his proficiency as a machinist at the Picton plant where he is employed.

But Mr. Jensen hopes one day to return to art as a full time profession. His competence in this natural sphere is obvious, as anyone who has seen his many-faceted canvases, from portraits and sketches to abstracts, and his craft work fashioned from scrap metal, can testify. In fact he made a living for himself and his family through art for five years in Denmark before coming to Canada six months ago.

Mr. Jensen's interesting career has been described in The Picton Gazette. Some of his art work is eloquent of another valuable factor in any upbringing. And that is travel, the Danish newcomer having spent several years in Venezuela.

The moral is that the more skills a man has the better life can be for himself and his family. With all the varied facilities offered by schools today young people have every opportunity to become proficient in one or more spheres, either in a profession or craft or in both. And Canada needs more people of this calibre.

Winter Driving

Windsor Star

Many in this area have had difficulty getting their cars started these cold mornings. It is an aggravating experience when an engine refuses to turn over, or to catch on if it does.

Extremely cold weather is a time when it pays to have a strong battery in the car, to have it in perfect mechanical condition, with proper oil and gas. But even so some cars are inclined to be balky.

A citizen recalls one vehicle he had, purchased in the spring when it was less than a year old. It was a lively car, seemingly in fine condition and functioned smoothly. He wondered why he had got such a good deal on it.

Came the first really cold day of the early winter, and he knew. It just wouldn't start in zero weather. He had it in and out of various garages all winter, getting this or that replaced, but all to no avail. No mechanic ever did figure out what was wrong with that car. It of course ran like a top in a warm garage.

Most modern cars can be started on a cold day, providing the battery is strong. It was more difficult in the old days, especially when a crank had to be used to start the car. Then, before the time of anti-freeze, the water had to be drained out at night to prevent freezing.

It was common practice to take a kettle of hot water to pour in the radiator. And, of course, the hoods of the cars would be covered with rugs, if anything out very long, to help keep them warm.

Toward Equality

I don't see equality for women in the sense of racial equality but I see the ideal state as one in which individual differences are more important than sexual ones. I also see marriage as the best state for most people, but marrying too young is like picking a mate for a stranger.— Playboy editor Hugh Hefner, interviewed by Sylvia Fraser for The Star Weekly.

"Let's face it—as Centennial coin symbols we're just not Canadian enough!"

Erratic Light Patterns Are Sign That Eyes Need to Be Examined

Dear Dr. Molner: Twice in the last year something peculiar happened to my eyes. For about five minutes a pattern of light kept moving, zigzagging like lightning.

What could cause that and could it happen again? I am 52. — Mrs. D. L.

This can be due to glaucoma, or some disturbance in circulation in the arteries of the eyes.

It is possible that some temporary condition is responsible, but the more important causes are so significant that you must be examined by an eye specialist.

One of the important rules of good health (including eye health) is to heed signs that may be early warnings of serious trouble.

Yours is such a situation. Find out at once. If it proves to be a minor trouble, your mind can be at rest. If it turns out to be the start of something serious, early treatment may save your eyesight.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is the best treatment for hemorrhoids? I have been told that injections are just as effective as surgery and less painful. — M. N.

It's not as simple as that. Small hemorrhoids sometimes can be treated by injection; in the hands of an expert it can be very feasible method. The wisest course is to let your surgeon or proctologist decide. What you, as a patient, can do to help the healing process and prevent recurrence is outlined in my book let, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Send 20 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me, in care of the Chicago Sun-Times Syndicate, P. O. Box 128, Dundee, Ill., for a copy.

Dear Dr. Molner: A friend gave her 3-year-old child three baby aspirin. He had a spell in which he couldn't breathe and turned blue, but he was all right again by the time they reached hospital emergency room.

This child has taken aspirin before without side effects. How much is considered too much? —Mrs. P.

"Baby aspirin" are one grain per tablet, as compared to the five-grain adult size. A child of three can take three to five grains every four to six hours unless sensitive to the drug.

One can only speculate as to why he turned blue at this time. Did he "swallow a tablet the wrong way," and shut off his breathing until the tablet dissolved? If he had a period of choking and coughing, that might be a clue.

* * *

If he shows any sign of trouble the next time he has aspirin, inform the doctor.

Dear Dr. Molner: Please tell me a little about a retroverted uterus. How can it be corrected? — F. M.-W.

It is a uterus which is tipped backward, perhaps naturally, perhaps by injury or weakening or stretching of its supporting tissues.

The principle problem in cases of severe retroversion is difficulty in becoming pregnant.

It may not need to be corrected in many instances, but if this is necessary several methods are used: Exercises, pessaries, surgery. Your gynecologist would have to judge whether any measures are required, and if so which.

Is Man Really in Control?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

This is a radical, a revolutionary age. Not in the old-fashioned political sense, but in an entirely new way. For the first time in history, we have the power and the knowledge to decide how we are going to live.

In the past, man was at the mercy of events, the victim of natural circumstances. This is no longer true. Modern technology now permits us to set the rules of the game, to decide what our future will be like. Our new technological revolution is the most profound revolution of all.

Yet the paradox is this — at the same time we feel the most powerless of all, the most trapped by our techniques and processes, the most helpless in the face of overwhelming change at a speed we can hardly comprehend, much less control.

What is most desperately needed today is social invention. The great inventions of the past were mechanical—new machines and devices and instruments for altering (and sometimes betterling) our material way of life. But, as Thomas Huxley asked in the 19th century, "What are we going to do with all these things?" More to the point today — what are all these things going to do to us?

An automated, computerized, transistorized, cybernetic society — which ours will wholly be before the 20th century is over — is a different universe from that we have ever known before. Space and time are different, social relations are different, work and education are different, marriage and leisure are different, standards are different.

These vast differences call for social invention of the most drastic and imaginative order. Try to imagine flying a new jet plane with the instrument panel and fuselage of a 1920 bi-plane; it would be sheer disaster—for the engine would be flying the pilot, and not the other way around.

Our technology cannot be allowed to "fly" our social order; rather, we must devise adequate controls and navigational systems to tell it where we want it to go, and how we want it to get there. We need the sort of social invention that can cope with the new technical forms, in human terms, for the social processes of the past are hopelessly outmoded. War, for instance, is a fatal anachronism in the modern world.

How can we deal with the new conditions produced by our scientific genius? Almost no one of consequence is addressing himself to this basic problem; and to those few who are, no one is listening. As the plane gathers momentum, it gets more and more out of control — while the pilot is inviting the passengers to admire the scenery.

Note to Mrs. R. S.: I, too, am opposed to giving alcohol to children in any form, and if that is an "old-fashioned idea," let's stick to it.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jan. 20, 1967 . . .

England's first Parliament met 732 years ago today—in 1265—in answer to a summons by Simon de Montfort, brother-in-law of King Henry III and the leading reformer of his time. The King had had councils of moderation before but de Montfort called, for the first time, two knights from each county and two burgesses from each town, giving the urban middle class their first vote in government. Henry's son Edward (later Edward I) defeated and killed de Montfort in battle the same year.

. . . 1862—The first ironclad warship, USS Monitor, was launched.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1917 — Belgian troops refushed German surprise attacks south of Ypres in the Canadian and British units raided German trenches near Souchez and Butte de Warlencourt.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—Germany announced 1,500,000 prisoners of war and 2,140,000 foreign civilians were at work in Germany; London arranged for enlisted Americans to transfer to U.S. forces; the Japanese were 18 miles from the Johore Strait.

Gloomy View of Centennial

Hamilton Spectator

We must always remember that Canada is a young country, and has been well over 400 years. This explains our youthfulness while ignoring symptoms of second childhood. The opening salvos of Confederation's birthday in July, 1867, when French-Canadians, English-Canadians and others joined in reconciling their bitter differences, have been a little shaky. The Confederation trail didn't blot out a few episodes of our history and rather than rewrite them we think the present trend of acute Canadianitis — they have simply wiped them off the slate. The Battle of The Plains of Abraham is not mentioned. Evidently, there was some sort of scuffle among the inhabitants in 1759 and then all of a sudden everything was all right due to Confederation.

Nor are the United Empire Loyalists given any specific token, not even in the calendar. The explanation by the chief of the division is that the committee claims that exhibitions covering the early settlement and the War of 1812, have an "influence" of the role played by these ghostly and ghastly people, who, rather than live under the American flag, came up to settle in what was to be Canada.

As everybody has read our twisted history meticulously, perhaps the oversight is understandable. After all, we don't know how Canada's history books are going to be written from here in.

A lot of us in the WASP belt are loaded with misleading propaganda on our library shelves. Wherever you look you find reference to that 15-minute skirmish above Quebec (which took its name from Mr. Abraham, a Scottish farmer, of all people, who just happened to be one of the people who got mixed up in it). It was universally conceded to be one of the decisive battles of the World, and it settled for all foreseeable time the destiny of the North American continent.

The American Revolution, an embarrassing incident in that all our present determination to be free of the Yankee stigma, was indispensable to the creation of Canada on this continent. French Canadians stood with the U. E. Loyalists in defending the subsequent intrusions from the south and in 1812, the final blow to American designs for another foray over Canada was delivered by General Brock at Queenston Heights.

These are from here on, unmentionable in the Canadian glossary: A reminder maybe to the Americans who still talk quite freely about their Civil War, and name names. The epitaph could be that of Lloyd George's after the Armistice of 1918, that the war of the giants was over and the battles of the pigmies had begun.

The pigmies have taken a long time getting to where they are in Canada, but they have arrived.

Canadians are too small, too childish, by current political edict, to accept their history; too humorless to even worry about a Confederation train. We can just go on about winning our independence from Britain, the United States, Rhodesia, Cuba and bring on the pigmies.

The agony is that nobody beyond our borders really cares.

Columnist Thwarted

New York Times

Russell Baker, as any reader of his "Observer" column in the New York Times can tell you, is no friend of "progress." His favorite target of Baker's satirical shafts are the shadowy forces that are turning happy human chaos into joyless automated order.

As in any war, the enemy sometimes lets the guy at Baker in range. It fell to the diabolic Baker to bring down the enemy when he foolishly attempted to bypass the mechanized system existing right in his own camp, The New York Times.

From wherever in the country his work takes him, Baker general ly phones his copy straight to a recording machine in the New York office. A matter of less than 10 digits, then dictating.

But finding himself in New York, he decided to deliver the column to the office in person.

He went to the third floor newsroom. No one there could tell him the person to leave the copy with. Undaunted, he proceeded to the 10th floor editorial offices. There he found the receptionist's cubicle dark, and no human present who would accept his copy.

With no other course left, Baker capitulated. He strolled next door to Sardi's and telephoned the column in the usual way to that machine in the recording room.

Letter to Editor

The Agony of Viet Nam

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Dow Chemical Co. is said to fear that women will stop buying Saran and Handi - wrap if they learn that Dow is also making napalm for US bombs. The Dow management may under-estimate the intelligence of the average housewife. Many have already read the January Ramparts. Of the people living in the rural villages of Vietnam 70 per cent die when bombs are dropped. Of the survivors many wounded. This is not war, it is the deliberate massacre of civilians. The circumstance of war, but a direct and necessary result of the US policy of massive and unrestricted bombing.

Americans napalmed by mistake are given liberated treatment while being lifted out of the battlefield, and taken by plane to a Texas hospital; but wounded Vietnamese rarely reach hospital in time to be found alive by injury. Neil Sheehan, of N.Y. Times correspondent, says: "The grave gravely wounded might be saved by rapid evacuation, apparently die along the way."

We are told that "Napalm and the more horrible white phosphorus bombs are used to incinerate it into grotesque forms. Often the little figures are seemingly burned alive." Napalm tanks have 2 or 3 in a bed and lack ordinary supplies, while the US government refuses to permit its citizens to send even bandages. Amputations are common because infection sets in as soon as possible. The Swiss humanitarian organization, Aide aux Enfants Hommes, with men on the scene reports: "One finds children burned from head to foot who are treated only with vaselin because of lack of ointment, cotton, gauze and penicillin . . . places with the atmosphere of slaughter - houses where flies swarm." Many children whose eyes have been skinned alive . . ."

In '65 Terre arranged for 2 hospital beds in Europe and 2 surgeons to donate their services, But the White House refused the use of aircraft to get the children out. Terre then asked commercial airlines to use any empty space they might have on flights from Saigon to Europe. They refused. Later the US government ordered napalm of "improved" adhesiveness.

denied our own humanity and Says Ramparts, "we have descended to the depths of barbarism."

Is Canada any better? Dow is not alone. We are selling the U.S. $300 million worth of napalm bombing-instruments, explosives, and aircraft parts every year. Mr. Pearson has promised us "substantial" medical aid. May he make it, not to the arrogant invaders of a land of under 12. All victims, but to the victims of our ignorance and of our lust for blood money.

Scientific Confusion

Kingston Whig-Standard

It is heartening to read that the Governor-General of Australia, Lord Casey, gave a good-natured scolding to his audience when opening the conference of the Australian Society of the Advancement of Science in Melbourne.

Instead of making the usual pompous speech which one seems to expect on such occasions Lord Casey told his audience he would keep it short and simple and write more plainly. He told them that too many scientists of the day were using another rather than for the educated public. It has been Lord Casey's observation that the public could not read reports of distinguished scientists as there were too many unknown terms. As a result, he pointed out, "many of the best brains in the world seemed hand" from scientific interpreters.

The barrier of a specialized language is not restricted to the physical sciences and the laboratories. Economics, psychology, economics and political science are but a few of the fields in which too much technical language is appearing. Also, the average person finds that he is cut off when this language barrier is encountered in popular reading matter. It would be better for the writer, be he the specialist to write and speak a language that all can readily understand.

Nova Scotia Approaching 'Take-off' as Industrial Province

HALIFAX (CP)—Nova Scotia is rapidly approaching an industrial "take - off point," says Trade Minister W. S. K. Jones and he has impressive statistics to back him up.

The government's "hard sell" policy, carried out by the trade and industry department and Industrial Estates Ltd., continued to break new ground in 1966 as new capital investment reached nearly $400,000,000, up 20 per cent from 1965. New investment in manufacturing accounted for $100,000,000 of the total.

Industrial Estates, established in 1957 by the provincial government to encourage secondary manufacturing, has assisted 47 companies operating in 50 plants. In 1966, the corporation signed 10 agreements for five new manufacturing plants, the expansion of three existing plants and new plant facilities for two established companies.

Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. announced plans to build a $65,000,000 plant for production of heavy water in the Strait of Canso area of Cape Breton Island. Total investment in the project is expected to be $85,000,000, including a $17,000,000 thermal power plant to be built by the Nova Scotia Power Commission. It represents the largest single investment in the province in the last half century.

Deuterium of Canada Ltd. announced it would double the capacity of the heavy water plant being built near Glace Bay, increasing the cost of the development from $50,000,000 to $75,000,000.

Volvo (Canada) Ltd. is building a new plant in Halifax to replace its temporary facilities in Dartmouth. The Japanese-controlled Canadian Motor Industries Ltd. began converting a portion of the former Point Edward naval base near Sydney into an automobile assembly plant with production to start this year.

Clairtone Sound Corp., which began assembling television sets and record players in Stellarton in 1965, opened a new $3,500,000 plant.

Construction continued on the $50,000,000 pulp mill being built by Scott Maritime Pulp Ltd. near New Glasgow. The plant will begin production this year.

R. W. H. Mauger, vice-president and general manager of IEL, says the corporation's achievements in 1966 were accomplished despite "present monetary conditions which have caused many companies to curtail plans for plant expansion."

He says the corporation is optimistic about 1967.

"With an increasing demand for manufactured goods many companies in Canada are now faced with the necessity of expanding their existing facilities despite monetary restrictions."

The voluntary economic planning board, set up in 1963 to engage the entire province in economic discussion and planning, has given direction to the industrial expansion in the province.

Seven hundred members from virtually every sector of the community serve on the board. Its "first plan" published in March, 1966, covering the period to the end of 1968 gave the province some challenging targets.

The report says 3,400 new jobs must be created annually, compared with 2,100 in recent years. It says the bulk of these new jobs are "expected to emerge in secondary manufacturing, the service industries and the supporting sectors."

Bowater May Cut Production

LONDON (CP)—The Financial Times says Bowater Paper Corp. may lay off workers and reduce production at three British newsprint mills because of declining domestic demand.

Bowater, which operates subsidiaries in Canada, is expected to lay off about 250 manual workers and 80 administrative staff, the report says.

Orders for newsprint have diminished as some British newspapers continue in the face of falling advertising revenue.

A surcharge on imports, which had given British products an advantage over foreign goods, was removed Nov. 30.

Caouette Doubts Social Credit Rift Will Mend

By RENE D'ANJOU

QUEBEC (CP) — Creditiste leader Real Caouette said during the weekend he does not think a reunification of his Quebec-based group and the Social Credit party will be possible soon.

"When Robert Thompson is sufficiently developed to understand the position of French-Canadians, a reconciliation will be possible," Mr. Caouette said, referring to the Social Credit leader.

Mr. Thompson had developed to some extend in this respect, as had other national party leaders, but not enough for an agreement on ideology that would bring reunification.

Mr. Caouette also told a Saturday press conference that "Quebec is the separatist but it does want to be respected by the rest of Canada."

Grocery Store Beer

Cases of beer line the shelves of a grocery store in Quebec, the only province that allows such retail sales. All provinces except Prince Edward Island have taverns or parlors where beer may be bought by the glass, but the hours of sale vary widely. (CP Photo)

TORONTO STOCKS TODAY

TORONTO (CP) — Prices edged higher today in moderate morning trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange. The industrial index moved up 14 to 157.65. Brokers said the stronger market is in reaction to major banking institutions reducing their prime lending rates

The Bank of Canada also cut its bank rate to five per cent from 5¼.

Story Sukarno Arrested Denied

JAKARTA (Reuters) — An army spokesman today denied reports that Indonesian President Sukarno was arrested and said they were part of Communist psychological warfare to provoke armed clashes.

Thousands of students marched on Parliament this morning to demand the President's removal and trial. The students have vowed to continue demonstrations until the President is ousted.

Raid on Viet Cong Camp Rattles Saigon Windows

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. B-52 bombers staged their closest raid to Saigon of the Vietnam war today, dropping 30,000 pounds more American infantry arrived in the country to join the growing U.S. force in the Mekong Delta.

The B-52 Stratofort, unloaded their explosives on a base camp of the Viet Cong's 165-A regiment 16 miles west-southwest of Saigon. The attack was the closest to the capital than any previous raid by the eight-engined bombers and shook windows in Saigon.

In two clashes Jan. 21, South Vietnamese troops reported killing 117 men of the 165-A regiment.

The U.S. command continued an investigation of an attack by three U.S. helicopters on a fleet of 200 sampans in the Mekong Delta. A U.S. spokesman said 31 South Vietnamese civilians were killed and 38 wounded.

The spokesman said the sampan fleet was attacked Saturday night and early Sunday during the curfew hours after some of the sampans fired on the helicopters. He said the Americans told interrogators they were on the move in violation of the curfew because the Viet Cong was in the area and they anticipated U.S. and South Vietnamese attacks.

The latest American troops to arrive were the 2nd Brigade of the 9th Infantry Division and supporting troops.

The 3,000 men came ashore from a troopship at Vung Tau, 40 miles southeast of Saigon. They brought the division to its full strength, 15,000 men, and increased the total announced American strength in Vietnam to 404,000 men.

The troops eventually will join other 9th-Division units in the Mekong Delta, into which U.S. forces now are beginning to move in strength for the first time.

U.S. Scoffs At Red Claim To Ray Weapon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon officials, discounted today a magazine report that the Soviet Union has developed a missile defence system capable of neutralizing U.S. nuclear weapons.

U.S. News and World Report, in its Feb. 6 edition, says the Soviets have perfected an "x-ray effect" device to destroy incoming missiles "while they are hundreds of miles from their targets."

The article says shielding used on the warheads of U.S. missiles is unable to halt most of the x-rays.

A Pentagon source disputed the claim, saying the shielding on American missiles cannot be penetrated by x-rays.

Baker to Appeal Conviction

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bobby Baker plans to fight his convictions for tax evasion, conspiracy and stealing campaign funds to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary.

His hands trembling and his cheeks whitening, the former secretary to Senate Democrats and behind-the-scenes power on Capital Hill heard a federal court jury pronolnce him guilty Sunday.

But Baker, 38, a one-time Senate page who built a $2,000,000 fortune, stayed free on $5,000 bail.

Sentencing is expected in about two weeks. Penalties for the seven counts on which he was convicted could total 44 years in prison and $47,000 in fines.

"We, of course, are going to the United States Appeals Court and all the way to the Supreme Court if it's necessary," said Baker's lawyer, Edward Bennett Williams.

One justice department official speculated the appeal process could consume two years.

The trial lasted three weeks and centred around $99,600 in campaign funds contributed by California savings and loan executives.

REFER TO PRESIDENT

President Johnson was referred to in testimony by Baker—though not by name—and names of other political figures dotted the proceedings. Seven senators and a representative appeared as defence witnesses.

The verdict was delivered by six men and six women, all of whom refused to discuss it.

Seven hundred members from virtually every sector of the community serve on the board. Its "first plan" published in March, 1966, covering the period to the end of 1968 gave the province some challenging targets.

The report says 3,400 new jobs must be created annually, compared with 2,100 in recent years. It says the bulk of these new jobs are "expected to emerge in secondary manufacturing, the service industries and the supporting sectors."

New Brunswick 20 each. The Yukon and the Northwest Territories will have three each.

The smaller provinces will have a larger proportion of delegates - at - large than last November, making it less of a victory for Mr. Camp. He was reported to waft one such delegate for each federal riding. That would have given Ontario and Quebec more weight.

Mr. Goodman, the national party's Ontario vice-president, predicted the convention will be "the biggest Canadian history with 2,500 delegates.

Five cities—Calgary, Winnipeg, Ottawa, Montreal and Quebec City— are being considered as sites along with the University of New Brunswick in Fredericton and Queen's University at Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Goodman indicated the most likely dates for the convention are around June or or September.

Youth representation, where more Camp support lies, was strengthened with an estimated 450 persons under 30 expected to attend the convention.

REPRESENT YOUTH

Some 150 will be from the two national party youth organizations. There'll also be one each from each of the 264 ridings as part of the five allowed each constituency. One of the five must be a woman.

The five delegates from each constituency will be screened in three at the November annual meeting.

This is expected to work in Mr. Diefenbaker's favor, whether he runs or backs another candidate. He feels delegate-at-large representation at the November meeting, where he was booed and booed, was packed against him.

Mr. Goodman, a onetime anti-Diefenbaker rebel, will join Roger Regimbal, a Quebec MP and Diefenbaker supporter, as co-chairmen of the convention.

Both men will discuss the timing and other convention details with Mr. Diefenbaker when the leader returns from a Florida vacation next week.

Mr. Diefenbaker wants an early convention.

The leadership struggle has polarized around Mr. Diefenbaker and Mr. Camp, although Mr. Camp says he does not intend to be a leadership candidate.

Western Oil Industry Needs Pipeline Increase

CALGARY (CP) — A study says development of Canada's oil pipeline facilities is necessary for the expansion of the Western Canada oil industry.

A 200-page report was released today by W. J. Levy Industries Ltd., economic consultants, who were commissioned by the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada to investigate the outlook for Canadian crude production and markets.

Increased pipeline facilities will enable the Canadian oil industry to concentrate on the midwestern United States for expansion of export markets, the report said.

An alternative, although less attractive, was the Montreal market, now served by Venezuelan oil.

The report recommended development of low-cost facilities to deliver Canadian crude to the midwestern United States or Eastern Canada. Increasing Canadian markets was a matter of "top priority."

The ability to serve Chicago, Detroit-Toledo and Eastern Canada simultaneously should be a primary consideration in expansion, the report said. Maximum added capacity in West-to-East shipment should be provided for the addition of from Edmonton to Superior, Wis.

Interprovincial's main line from Superior to Sarnia probably will enable further expansion in shipments until Canadian oil officials determine whether the long-term role of export is likely to move to Chicago, Detroit-Toledo or Eastern Canada.

Age of 40 Critical One For Nurses

OTTAWA (CP)—The age of 40 is a critical one for nurses, says Mildred Walker, who has retired after 17 years as chief nursing consultant in the federal health department's occupational health division.

"If, however, she made a good decision for living she will hurdle the problems with ease."

A new fur coat, ear or house may give her more the lift she needs at this time, says Miss Walker.

"If she changes her job, it should be with the aim to improve her situation in life."

If planned ahead, retirement will be "worthwhile and fun—as it should be."

Miss Walker, who will spend the early part of her retirement in "pleasant coasting," is a native of Exeter, Ont., and a graduate of Victoria Hospital Nursing School, London, Ont., and Columbia University.

For 18 years from 1930 she headed the division of graduate nursing study at the University of Western Ontario. After a year in industrial nursing she went to the health department position where she has been in touch with nurses in employer health programs across Canada.

During the war years she was president of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario. She was awarded the George Medal and made a member of the Order of St. John. But the trifecta in values most is the Mildred I. Walker bursary for nursing education at Western, established by nurses she taught in her nine years there.

ANAF Ladies' Auxiliary Groups Enjoy Impromptu Social Event

The ladies let their hairdos down after a bustling day of business organization at the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Association in Belleville Saturday night.

The event was the quarterly meeting of the ANAF ladies' auxiliaries provincial command, with the Belleville unit playing hostess to 18 auxiliaries and nearly 150 delegates and guests.

The day-long assembly was the first of four meetings held throughout the province during the year to help organize the women's national convention.

Discussions were held through the morning and afternoon with delegates from as far away as London and Brockville.

Directing the talks was Ontario ANAF women's president Audrey Fenwick, of London.

However, the big highlight of the meet came Saturday night when the Belleville unit ran me into its organizational own.

Instead of the traditional sup-per-dance, the women harked back to the spirit of war days, when spontaneous entertainment was the most popular — and available — form of diversion for the troops, many now ANAF veterans.

Impromptu skits, sing-songs, comedy turns, glee club presentations and hula dances kept the evening running at an entertaining full-tilt for the delegates and guests.

The next meeting of the provincial command will be held in May at Ottawa.

Music Festivals Planned For Centennial Year

What will be the greatest event in centennial year for our young people? It will be the one in which they, personally, have had an active part.

What national amateur music event offers this opportunity to every child in Canada? The Centenary Festivals of Music.

Music and the performance of music will offer each one an opportunity to participate actively in centennial year celebrations — if the adults of Canada hand together to make this a truly exciting event for every child in their own area.

No child needs go farther than his own local festival in order to be a part of this national event. He needs only a centennial syllabus class as a soloist or member of a group at the local festival.

To make sure that every boy and girl will be entered in a music festival prepare to follow up the competitors from the local festival who may be recommended to the provincial final by the adjudicators and from there perhaps on to the national finals.

The Stirling Festival at Sacred Praise will be a parties pating festival and the 15 Centenary music classes will be in corporated in the Festival.

All Centenary Festival's competitions are open to amateurs only and to residents of Canada, whether the persons concerned are Canadian citizens or not.

Although every winner in each of the 15 Centenary classes will not necessarily proceed to the provincial finals, each will have the satisfaction of taking part and contributing to Canada's birthday celebrations. Indeed, the real success of this important undertaking is largely dependent on the measure of encouragement, enjoyment and benefit which can be generated throughout the country.

For further information you are invited to write or call either of the local Centenary representatives: Mrs. A. Reilly, Foxboro, Ontario, or Mrs. R. W. Glendinning, Stirling, Ontario.

Closing date for the Stirling Festival of Sacred Praise and for the Centenary Festival Classes is March 23.

Woman Blind Since Birth Says "Life Is Very Sweet"

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Take a woman who has been blind since birth and deprive her of her sense of touch, smell, taste and direction.

Then listen to her say "life is sweet" and you know what real courage is.

A pioneer in the establishment of the institute for the blind here more than 50 years ago, Alice Bailey has been confined to hospital in Montreal since 1937.

A short time ago her doctor ordered a visit to St. John's for her and she was taken through the new building housing what now are the Canadian National Institute for the Blind offices—a far cry from the old underpinning of barber used when she worked here.

"I have lost a lot but I have retained much," she said. "I don't found my real self, and life is sweet."

A native of Heart's Content, Miss Bailey was raised as a normal child—"I played with ordinary kids and I had my share bumps or bruises than the rest of them."

She moved to St. John's when her father died and, in 1922, went to Halifax to attend the school for the blind. During a midterm break she returned home to hear that a fire in nearby Belvedere had left her sight.

TAUGHT BRAILLE

"My parents lived in Bonavista so I went to St. Michael's School and taught Sister Agnes to read Braille."

The two then started their own setting up a branch of the institute for the blind.

Miss Bailey became Newfoundland's home teacher for the blind and travelled throughout the province—about 6,000 miles.

Her health began to fail and she is in bed and the doctors at a Montreal hospital.

"My affliction hasn't been much greater because I have a sense of direction, and that was my strong point."

It was there also that she lost her sense of touch, smell and taste.

The combination of afflictions might have soured another person on life but Miss Bailey remains philosophical.

"Even in sadness there is sunshine, and there is always a way out. I feel I managed it the short time I had to bring a little sunshine into people's lives."

Quinte Nurses List Officers

Wednesday night, Marion Gomme Argue, Reg. N. was elected president at the Bay of Quinte Chapter, Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario, at the annual meeting held in Education Hall, B.G.H.

Other executive officers elected are: Dorothy Taylor, first vice-president; Florine Dion, second vice-president; Judy Jeffrey, secretary; Ann Lee, treasurer. Some of the new by-laws and plans for committees were outlined by past president Helen McLachlan.

Following discussion it was felt that R.N.A.O. members should encourage the many unemployed nurses in the Quinte district to return to work and help relieve the present shortage of registered nurses.

Among those present were representatives of public health, V.O.N., office, school and hospital nurses.

The January meeting of the Vota Vita Mission Circle was held recently at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. The new president, Miss N. Hales, was in the chair. Other officers for 1967 are: Mrs. G. Woodcock, honorary president; Mrs. W. Soble, past president; Mrs. T. Sowell, vice-president; Mrs. B. Burr, secretary; Mrs. G. Pearson, treasurer; Mrs. K. Clayton, reporter.

During the business meeting an important letter was read from Mrs. W. Hendren, director, Trent Valley Association of B.W.M.S. concerning missions at home and abroad.

The Circle has been invited, as guests of the Senior Mission Circle, to hear Mrs. Lockyer, a missionary to Africa.

Members were reminded of the World Day of Prayer on February 10.

Mrs. Travis's presentation of "Lighthouse News" included items on an African student's ill reception at a segregated American church, and the work of a Chilean Christian among the mountain Indians of his own country.

Mrs. Wynne's group took charge of the meeting. Mrs. G. Grenke's devotional message pointed out the uncertainties and perils of the future, and the need for a strong Christian faith. Miss J. Dewart assisted and Mrs. C. Wilson sang a selection.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Charles Savage, wife of the newly-appointed minister of Emmanuel Baptist Church, Belleville. Mrs. Savage spoke on Baptist work in Newfoundland. She presented a picture of the geography of the island, developments in transportation and communications, its system of denominational schools, and the growth of these centres such as St. John's, Stephenville and Corner Brook.

The people of Newfoundland, especially the fishermen and others who live close to the land, are deeply religious and concerned about the church.

Prior to 1954, Baptists were unknown here, and the first meetings were held among the population associated with the U.S. Air Force Base at St. John's.

A church was built here and dedicated in 1957. Services began and work flourished at Stephenville and Placentia Bay, also American service base centres. Baptist churches were built at Stephenville and Corner Brook; the latter, consisting mainly of Newfoundlanders, has struggled over the years. Progress in recent years has been affected by a ceasing and reduction of activity at the defence bases.

There is some growth and building possibilities at Baie Verte and Gander. Interesting and unique methods of spreading the gospel are a "floating chapel" from Corner Brook which covers the coastal area.

Miss J. Thompson thanked Mrs. Savage for her informative address.

Singing at Own Nuptials Disapproved by Many

DEAR READER: Remember the coast-to-coast roasting I got from readers who were mad at me because I didn't approve of the bride and groom singing at their own wedding? Well, I have received over 600 letters from readers who are mad at them. Here is a sample of what my week has been like:

Hillsdale, Mich: I was absolutely flabbergasted at the number of assorted nuts who sang at their own weddings. If my husband had opened his mouth to sing "I Love You Truly" while walking down the aisle I would have cracked up.

Long Island, N.Y.: Where in the world were the clergymen when those balmy brides and goofy grooms sang during the wedding ceremony? Why did they permit the house of God to be used as a setting for a vaudeville act? If a couple is so happy they must give voice to their feelings, why can't they wait and sing at the reception?

Albuquerque, N.M.: We of the Congregational Church do not permit sanctuary theatrics. Such exhibitionism has no place in a religious ceremony.

Chicago: I thank God every day for the Canon Law of the Presbyterian Church which makes it mandatory for the minister to approve all music to be played at weddings and funerals. Since I have occupied this pulpit I have had some outrageous requests. Recently I had to say no to a woman who wanted the church organist to play "Casey Jones" at her husband's funeral. "It was his favorite song," she sighed. "He would have wanted it that way."

Columbus, Ohio: No Catholic ever sang at his own wedding. Our church does not tolerate such nonsense.

Davenport, Iowa: After reading your column about the musical weddings, I feel very left out. I was married two years ago and it was just an ordinary church wedding. My husband didn't burst out in a song, my father-in-law didn't play the trombone, my little sister didn't do a toe dance, and my mother (who used to be a famous stripper) didn't go into her act. The guests must have been disappointed.

Houston: Here's a suggestion for those singing brides and grooms: Why not run an ad and sell tickets? The proceeds could help defray the honeymoon expenses — two weeks in the mental hospital of their choice.

Marion, Ohio: That nut who sang, "Second Time Around" to her Number Two spouse probably sang at her first wedding, too. I suggest that she start rehearsing now for the next one. An appropriate selection: Number Three is Lucky for Me — Or better still, why doesn't she quite getting married and go into show business which is really what she wants anyway.

Hutchinson, Kansas: Why were you surprised, Ann Landers, to discover that people sometimes sing at their own nuptials? Every day a couple of screwballs get married on motorcycles, at home plate, on skates, atop a flag-pole, on horseback, in jail, underwater, and on a TV show to get free gifts. Recently I read where an English couple was married in the elevator where they first met. You, of all people, Ann, should know that there is nothing so zany, so ridiculous, so preposterous that somebody, somewhere won't do it. — MR. M.R.T.

DEAR M.R.T.: Amen, Brother. Amen.

If Dream Boat Sets Sail Set Sights on Another

Dear Doris: Our son is to be married soon, and I would like to know what is expected of us.

(1) Do we get an invitation, or are we just expected to be there?

(2) As the wedding will be in the city, and we live out in the country, and it is rather difficult to have some one come in and do chores, etc., my husband just may not have the opportunity to attend. Would it be right for me to attend with my brother and sister-in-law?

(3) The wedding is at four o'clock. What time should we enter the church?

(4) Where will we be seated? — Mom

Dear Mom:

(1) Yes, indeed. All guests get invitations, and you are very special ones.

(2) All right, yes; but a great pity for Pop to miss this Number One event in the life of his son. Who gives a hand when Pop gets sick?

(3) Just before the bride's mother, preferably.

(4) In the first pew on the right-hand side of the church.

Confidential to Just Mummy: When a boy as bright as Bobbie isn't working up to what he can do at school, it usually means there is something bothering him — either with the boys, the teacher, or at home.

Little pitchers have big ears and they also have nervous systems. You say you find that nagging at your husband about this and other things doesn't help; has it occurred to you that it might hinder? Consult with the teacher. If she can't pin down the reason, have her refer you to the child care counsellor for help in deciding just what is upsetting Bobbie's world.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Banana Roll Challenges Good Cooks

By MARY MOORE

A good cook reader, Mrs. Jim G., wrote thanking me for my "delicious recipe for Mikan Yule Log . . . received many compliments on it". Then came the poser: "I have purchased Banana Rolls from the baked goods counter of - - - many times. Do you have a banana roll recipe with a whipped cream filling?"

My next bus shopper was Herbie and he went to our branch of store mentioned, and bought a banana roll. It had a thick jelly-roll-like batter, a compact white (not whipped cream) filling and was very sweet.

After three laborious tests, the following is my answer to Mrs. Jim G. All seven testers nodded their approval and Herbie added "It looks like the sample but has a genuine banana flavor. I approve."

BANANA ROLL
(Jelly-roll-like)

NOTE: This cake must be made in a fellon 13 x 9 x 2" pan (not a standard 15 x 10 x ½" jelly roll pan.) For one test I used a buttered, paper-lined pan and the paper stuck to the baked cake and I nearly could not remove it and that is my reason for recommending fellon.

Batter:
6, large eggs
2 tsps. double-acting baking powder
1-3 tsp. salt
1 cup plus 2 tbsps. sugar
1 cup plus 2 tbsps sifted cake flour
1½ tsps. vanilla
3 med. -sized ripe bananas

Filling-Frosting:
¼ cup butter, room temperature
1 large egg yolk
½ med.-sized ripe banana
3 cups unsifted icing sugar
¼ tsp. salt

Break up bananas and beat until they are perfectly pureed and no lumps remain. Let these stand to darken a little to give the finished cake a dusky look.

Into your large beater bowl break the eggs and add the baking powder and salt and beat on high until very foamy. Now gradually add sugar while beating on high and continue beating for 10 min. until mixture triples in size and is very light and holds its shape. Add vanilla. Remove beaters. Measure sifted cake flour and fold in and the pureed bananas, 1-3 of each at a time, into egg mixture until perfectly blended. Have ready and buttered a 13 x 9 x 2" fellon pan. Pour in batter, smooth top and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 20 min. on centre rack at centre of oven. Carefully loose at edges with blunt-edged knife and turn cake out on generously icing - sugar - sprinkled tea towel. Let rest 5 min. then roll up, including towel in roll. Place on rack to cool.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Loaf; Tomato Sauce; Broccoli; Potatoes; Baked Greens; Cocoanut Baked Custards; Coffee.

To make Filling-Frosting: Measure all ingredients into beater bowl and beat on high until smoothly blended. Unroll cake, use a little more than half of frosting to spread on cake, roll up, frost top and sides with long back - like strokes. Transfer cake to oblong serving plate. Allow to cool, preferably in refrigerator, for an hour before slicing.

For me this is a brand new cake and highly recommended. My grateful thanks go to Mrs. Jim G. for asking me to work on it.

Note: The cake is a beauty even before it is rolled and filled and frosted. Grand banana flavor.

Copy Alice in Wonderland Pictures For Children's Centennial Dresses

Dresses were not so different!

The little girl of the late 1860's is a more familiar figure to most of us than we at first realize.

Tenniel's illustrations for "Alice in Wonderland" gives us an excellent picture of the girl of the period. Her long flowing hair, which has generously been crimped with curl papers is held back by a dark hair band. Her dress with its fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves, and knee length full skirt is the classic small girl's dress, worn many years before Alice's time and still with only minor variations quite wearable today.

Taffeta was widely used for party dresses, although many of our contemporary materials will substitute nicely. A suitable trimming was two bands of fulled tarlatan (a kind of thin open muslin) around the bottom of the skirt.

It is interesting at this period, when there are little frills on a skirt, how often they are held in at the bottom as well as the top, giving a very different effect from the loose spreading ones that are usually seen in reproductions of these styles today.

Pettiecats were worn to hold the skirts out fashionably and small girls at this time wore straight - legged drawers the same length as the skirt. Pinafores were popular and a stylish one would have frills and a bustle-bow at the back. For dress occasions low flat slippers were the order, with white or colored stockings or socks of cotton or knitted wool.

As for the boys — you may be able to get the youngest into tartans, frilly blouses and velvet jackets, or into knickerbockers. But don't try it for older ones.

One-time 'Prof' Now Liberal Workhorse

Now on an official tour of five French-speaking countries in Africa, Mr. Trudeau is handling several special projects for the government and figures in speculation about cabinet appointments expected in March.

Prime Minister Pearson confirmed in the Commons last week that his parliamentary secretary is acting as a consultant to a committee of deputy ministers preparing the federal approach to constitutional discussions.

The committee is expected to submit far-reaching recommendations to the cabinet in the next few months. They will deal with a full review of the British North America Act of 1867.

The proposals are expected to include a new formula to amend the constitution in Canada without resort to the British Parliament; possible amendments to widen the official status of French, now technically limited to Parliament and its journals, and to define the division of powers more clearly, and a general revision to update sections that have become obsolete.

The government will then announce its proposals, refer them to a parliamentary committee next fall for extensive hearings and follow up next year with detailed discussions with the provinces.

Mr. Trudeau brings impressive qualifications to this task. As a law professor at the University of Montreal from 1961 until his surprise plunge into politics in 1965, he specialized in constitutional law.

Now one of the best-known federal Liberals in Quebec, he argues strongly against French-Canadian demands for a completely new constitution based on the "two-nation" theory.

On his current three-week African tour, he is discussing proposals for the founding in April of a parliamentary association of French - speaking countries and increased Canadian aid for French-speaking emerging nations in Africa.

He will visit Tunisia, Togo, Cameroon, Senegal and the Ivory Coast before flying back to Canada Feb. 7.

Mr. Trudeau, MP for Montreal Mount Royal, graduated in law from the University of Montreal and took post-graduate studies in law, political science and economics at Harvard, the Sorbonne and the London School of Economics.

He served in the office of Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent from 1949 to 1951, then opened a law practice in Montreal, specializing in labor and civil liberties cases.

A bachelor with a preference for fast sports cars and decidedly casual clothes, he edited the left - wing magazine Cite Libre for 12 years.

A close friend of Manpower Minister Marchand, the new leader of the federal Liberals' Quebec caucus, he joined the Liberals just before the Nov. 8, 1965, federal election, along with Mr. Marchand and journalist Gerard Pelletier, now MP for Montreal Hochelaga.

The three intellectuals were widely credited with improving the Liberals' Quebec image at a time when scandal charges were flying thick and fast.

Marchand Says Winter Works Changes Needed

TORONTO (CP)—The federal winter works program must be rewritten and other manpower programs require drastic revision, says Jean Marchand, manpower and immigration minister.

He told a party constituency meeting Saturday that the winter works program, under which Ottawa pays 50 to 60 per cent of labor costs of municipal construction in winter, must be made more productive.

The plan is not used by many municipalities in need of this type of assistance in their unemployment problems, he said, because often they cannot afford to pay for construction materials. The scheme also is misused by municipalities doing unnecessary work.

Mr. Marchand said the federal manpower mobility program may be extended to cover workers about to become unemployed through planned layoffs in companies cutting back on or going out of production.

He believes the program can be made more realistic by removing the present four-month unemployment clause.

The mobility program, which went into effect a year ago provides grants or loans to unemployed workers to help them move to a place where they can get work.

One of the troubles with the program is that the scheme will only pay a grant to a displaced worker if he has been unemployed for four months. If he wants to move to another area before he has been out of work four months, the grant becomes a loan that he must repay.

"I don't like the measure and I don't think the workers like it either. We'll get rid of it."

Several other changes are being considered.

One would offer mobility benefits to workers who get low wages for a given job in one area. This would allow them to move to other locations "where they can get higher earnings for their talents."

"Further, the program should be changed to help persons move from regions that have chronic seasonal unemployment to others where work is steady."

The scheme has yet to be approved by the cabinet but Mr. Marchand said he foresaw a system there would remove all the financial obstacles that could prevent persons from moving.

The Intelligencer

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, MONDAY, JANUARY 30, 1967

Unheralded, unsung, unrecognized and "un-introduced" George Chuvalo, Canadian heavyweight champion sat with his entourage in a faraway corner of the Royal York ball room the other night.

At the head table of the Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association Celebrities dinner were some of the elite of the sports world acknowledging the acclaim and accolades of nearly 1,200 $25-a-plate paying guests.

It was vastly different to the last time I saw Chuvalo. At that time he entered the ring in Maple Leaf Gardens and received a standing ovation from thousands. It was the night he fought Cassius Clay and earned the reputation of being the only fighter to go the fifteen - round- limit with the world champion.

The other night I sat an arms-length away (at the next table) from the brawny-fighter. With him were his manager Irv Ungerman, not exactly the bashful type and the staff of the Chuvalo fighting menage.

While his table burned with conversation Chuvalo sat quietly throughout the dinner. From the corner of an eye I watched him enjoy the steak and the trimmings including the famous Alaska dessert. Seldom did he take part in the table talk. Ungerman sat next to him reilly to take on all conversational comers, this agent insisted.

I may be in error when I say Chuvalo was not introduced. If so I apologize to the powers-that-be. If so it seems passing strange that so few of the guests, the majority of them from Toronto, did not approach the table. I counted about four on the knifeside fingers.

If it did occur, I could have been talking with Miss Canada, shooting the stuff with Jack Dale and others of the press gang present or at a watering-place table trying to figure out how much water it takes to kill the bacteria in a blekhall glass which had scarcely enough "Mountain Dew" in it to cover the bottom.

Chuvalo did not impress me as being a homage-seeker. Occasionally he glanced up from his plate to look around him then turn quickly to his dinner. Six of the gentlemen seated at my table did not know he was there until their attention was drawn to the fact.

As was noted, Mr. Ungerman was reldy to take on all comers. I didn't have any trouble getting his ear. He held up a finger, smiled and said, "Hold it, I know what you're going to say."

He did. "Who will win the Clay-Terrell waltz of the century?"

Chuvalo did not look up as Ungerman said, "Clay will win by a knockout in the seventh round." He glanced about him as if to see how many heard the statement.

There was a round of applause at the time for Frank Shuster had just told the story of how a well-known member of the Argos football team had quit to take up theology.

"It is not a bad idea at that," quipped the comedian. "For only the powers above know what will happen to the Argos this year."

Later on I contacted Chuvalo. I found him to be a very pleasant young man, easy to talk to with no evidence of braggadocio in his bearing. Occasionally he would stop, remain quiet for a second or so, then resume the conversation. It looked like George had something on his mind.

He stroked his face and answered the question, "Yes, I think Clay will defeat Terrell by a knockout somewhere around the sixth or seventh rounds."

His main ambition is to fight Clay again for the championship of the world.

"I learned a lot from my first fight with Clay," he said. "This time I'll go in there ready for him. I am in training the first time, weigh 217 my fighting weight and this I think will give me a better chance to beat him than I had before."

"You remember," he said, "I was called in practically cold. I was not ready — and had only 17 training days before the fight. I have watched Clay's fights while I have kept fit with my own bouts."

He spoke in a low voice, not a Clayish howl from the housetops. Even Ungerman had to cup an ear to take in the conversation.

I think Chuvalo is sincere. I think he will go all-out to bring his best into the ring if and when he meets Clay. He has, I believe, the potential and if he develops it to the fullest he stands an excellent chance of being the next world champion.

I hope he is.

Hawks Soar Into Nine-Point Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Canadiens have jumped past Toronto Maple Leafs into third place in the National Hockey League with two weekend wins and some help from Chicago Black Hawks.

In adding Montreal by beating Toronto 5-2 and 5-1, the Black Hawks stretched their unbeaten streak to eight games and their first - place edge over the fading New York Rangers to nine points.

JEAN BELIVEAU

The Canadiens, stuck in fourth place for weeks, moved ahead of the Maple Leafs by defeating New York Rangers 3-2 at home Saturday night and downing Boston Bruins by the same score Sunday night in Boston. The second - place Rangers were beaten 4-2 by Detroit Red Wings Sunday.

At Montreal, Saturday, Giles Tremblay connected from 25 feet out late in the third period to give Canadiens their victory. John Ferguson and Jean Beliveau scored the other Montreal goals and helped pepper Ed Giacomin with a total of 36 shots. Bob Nevin and Harry Howell scored for New York, who had only 15 shots on goalie Charlie Hodge.

Beliveau scored again in Boston Sunday night and set up two others as Canadiens built up a 3-0 lead and then held on for the second win. Other Montreal scorers were John Ferguson and Yvan Cournoyer. Johnny Bucyk and Eddie Westfall scored Boston's goals.

The Black Hawks lead by nine points after beating the Maple Leafs in Toronto Saturday and Chicago Sunday.

STAN MIKITA

★ ★ ★

The Hawks built up a 3-1 lead in the first period and added two more in the third on a binge of power - play goals. Bob Pulford scored for Toronto in the first period and Walton in the third.

Chicago, with Glenn Hall playing goal, outshot the Leafs 35-32. Johnny Bower and Bruce Gamble shared goalie duties for Toronto.

Sunday night, the Hawks ran the Leafs losing streak to seven games.

Stan Mikita, the league's leading scorer, paced the Hawks with two goals and an assist to increase his count to 72 goals and 42 assists in 43 games.

Other Chicago scorers were Phil Esposito, Doug Mohns and Dennis Hull. Pete Semkowski scored for Toronto.

Toronto had 3 shots, most of them on Dennis DeJordy who replaced Glenn Hall midway in the second period. Hall suffered a skate cut two inches above his left knee during a pileup in the crease. The Hawks had 39 shots on Johnny Bower.

Paul Henderson led the Red Wings to their 4-2 win over New York, scoring two goals and assisting on a third. His second goal in the second period broke a 2-2 tie and he set up Norm Ullman's clincher with less than five minutes to play. The other Detroit marksman was Gary Bergman.

Goyette's goals, his sixth and seventh of the season, broke a 40-year club record, set in 1927 when Murray Murdoch scored two goals in 10 seconds.

The weekend action gave Chicago 58 points, nine more than New York and 15 more than third-place Canadiens. Toronto trails with 42, followed by Detroit with 37 and Boston with 31.

The action resumes Wednesday when the Canadiens play host to Toronto and the Bruins visit Chicago.

Trenton Rink Wins Tankard

HAMILTON (CP) — The Mel Sjostrom rink gave Trenton RCAF Curling Club its first Ontario Tankard victory Saturday.

Sjostrom came up with a 9-3 win over Bill Creber of Toronto Parkway after Bill Lewis dropped a 10-8 decision to Parkway's Alf Phillips Jr. in the first game of the double rink, single knockout competition. That gave Trenton the win 17-13 overall.

Trenton got by St. Thomas 19-11 in the semi-finals while Parkway defeated Port Carling 26-19.

Lewis skipped a team that included his two sons, Guy and Dale, and Bob MacInnes. Sjostrom had George Peters, Vince Gallipeau and Wayne Oates.

Unionville's Keith Jewett and Bob Harris, unable to defend the tankard title won last year by Murray Roberts and Bob Lawrie, captured the Burden Trophy as they crushed Oakville 23-7.

Jewett and Harris earlier eliminated Murray MacGregor and Doug Smart of Guelph 19-15. Oakville trimmed Fenelon Falls 20-8.

Oakville provided only token resistance as Harris whipped Kennedy 10-4 and Jewett took Johnson easily 13-7.

Brewer Five Strokes Back

Palmer Captures Third LA Open

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Arnold Palmer shot a final-round 68 for 269, 15 strokes under par, in winning the Los Angeles open golf championship for the second straight year Sunday.

Palmer, collected $20,000 for his third victory in the Los Angeles Open since 1963, took the lead in the third round Saturday by four strokes and saw it dwindle to two after 67 holes Sunday as Gay Brewer came on. But he reasserted himself and stormed in to win by five shots.

Brewer finished second with a 69 for 274, worth $12,000, while Julius Boros, with a 67 and Don Massengale, the second round leader, and young Jack Graham, each with a 69, tied for third at 274.

Billy Casper and Bruce Crampton tied for sixth with 275.

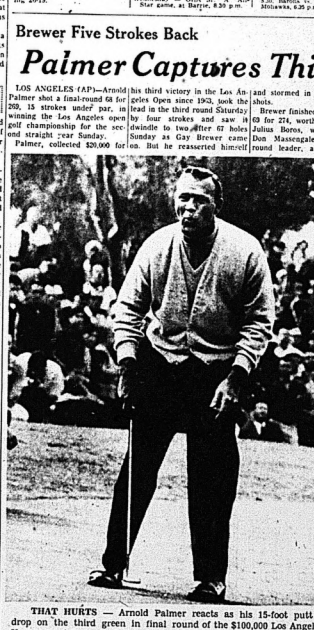
Bill Ezinicki, former National Hockey League player from Winnipeg, shot a 74 Sunday to finish with a 292 total, also out of the money.



THAT HURTS — Arnold Palmer reacts as his 15-foot putt fails to drop on the third green in final round of the $100,000 Los Angeles Open. He recovered for a par-3. Palmer entered the final day's play with a four-stroke lead. (AP Wirephoto)

Cobourg Nips Riteways In Tournament

The Riteways lost 6-5 to Cobourg after reaching the finals with a 3-0 victory over Napanee and a 3-2 squeaker over Gananoque.

Peter Crawford and B. Sutherland starred for Riteways against Cobourg in the finals but it was not enough to pull out the decision. They scored two goals and drew two assists each. S. James had the other goal and R. Chapman an assist. E. Clary and J. Buckley led the championship Cobourg team with two goals each. W. Smith and J. Dunn added singletons.

Steven Hale chalked up the opening-game shutout against Napanee while P. Crawford again led the attack. Crawford scored twice and assisted on the other marker by B. Sutherland, who also had an assist.

The tight win over the host Gananoque squad was an overtime affair with P. Crawford triggering the winning marker. He also had an assist on an earlier goal by M. Meeker. B. Sutherland scored Riteways other tally. R. Donald scored both Gananoque markers.

Knight, Jones Win National Titles

TORONTO (CP) — The centennial edition of Canada's national skating team is brimming with youth and confidence, packed with exciting free skaters and largely inexperienced.

And of the 11, only Donald Knight, 19, of Dundas, Ont., Valerie Jones, 18, of Toronto and Karen Magnussen, 14, of Vancouver are rated strong threats at the North American championships Feb. 9-11 at Montreal or the world finals Feb. 28 to March 5 in Vienna.

"Knight, if he skates the way he did Sunday, could conceivably upset the world competition and win the title," said Max Gould of the Canadian Figure Skating Association.

"Valerie finished fourth at the world finals last year and she has a chance this year. But our best bet now is young Karen, who could surprise the field in the women's free skating."

Knight, who finished seventh in the 1966 world final at Davos, Switzerland, won the national men's title Sunday after an almost faultless freestyle performance.

"It was the best I ever skated," he said. "The hardest part was having to skate first in the final. And I found the ice a little rough in spots."

Knight was awarded seven out of seven firsts and 1853.9 points. Jay Humphry, 17-year-old Vancouver skater who finished 12th in the 1966 world final, won second place and a berth on the national team with 1741.7 points.

In the senior women's final, Miss Jones won the title with seven out of seven firsts and 1827.1 points.

But Miss Magnussen was the most exciting performer in the women's freestyle final, skating brilliantly to finish second overall with 1786.2 points.

Three judges awarded her 5.9 points out of a possible six, highest of the competition, and her series of double axels and salchows drew cheers from the crowd of 6,000.

Roberta Laurent, 18, of Toronto, stumbled trying a double axel in her freestyle performance, but won third place and a trip to Vienna with 1733.4 points.

British Columbia skaters moved out of the shadow of Ontario during the 1967 finals and for the first time two B.C. teams won senior competitions.

Belty, 17, and John McKilligan, 18, of Vancouver's North Shore Winter Club, won the senior pairs competition Sunday and earned the right to represent Canada at the North American and world finals.

Frontenacs Defeat Trenton 6-2

Kingston Frontenacs used the last-place Trenton Aeros as a stepping stone into the Ont. Junior "B" Hockey League's fourth and final playoff spot on the weekend.

The Frontenacs followed up a 16-2 romp at home Friday by clipping the Aple Kings 6-4 in Trenton last night.

Kingston's victory boosted the club past the Oshawa Canadiens. Each club has played 42 of their 30 scheduled games. Kingston has 48 points and Quinte 22. Third-place Cobourg has 25. The top four clubs make the playoffs. Quinte, with 32 points, and Peterborough, with 30, are all but assured of playoff berths.

Trenton scored the first goal last night and played well in the first period despite falling behind 3-1 on a hattrick trio of Kingston goals. The Apple Kings also had their 22 in as many games this season.

The Macs' next start is tomorrow (Tuesday) when they play host to Trenton, in Belleville, at 9.00 p.m. This game follows the "Battle of the Beasties" grudge game, at Memorial Arena.

Kingston will be attempting to catch the Cougars when visiting Cobourg tonight.

Badminton Club Holds Tournament

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club used its midseason inter club mixed tournaments as a "sharpener-upper" for the Central Ontario "B" Tournament slated for the armouries here Feb. 11th.

The winners were Ted Melbourne and Kelly Bonnell; John Kaiser and Suzanne Smith; Ted Smith and Marion Smith and David Geen and Valerie Knight.

Breaks Own Pole Vault World Record

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (CP) Bob Seagren, warmed up for the take it easy after he vaulted a back muscle in New York Thursday, disregarded the advice Saturday and set a world pole vault record of 17 feet, two inches—one inch better than his previous mark.

Seagren, 19-year-old University of Southern California student, consulted a doctor before competing at the Albuquerque international indoor track and field meet.

"He didn't think I should do any serious jumping for a while and I should lay off," he said later.

But the back isn't what has Seagren worried. He wants an 18-foot vault.

"It's a little late in the season and if I'm going to make 18 feet, I've got to get going."

He cleared 17 on his first attempt Saturday and then missed in three quick tries at 17-3¼.

Warners Nip Belvedere, Pepsis Win

Perhaps 13-1 is a lucky combination for Pepsi's of the Commercial "B" Hockey League.

They won their second consecutive game by that score yesterday. American Optical was the victim this time.

Meanwhile, league - leading Stewart Warner was hard pressed to edge Belvedere Hotel 4-3. The Warnermen are undefeated.

Ray Mambert scored Stewart Warner's first and last goals, assisted by singles efforts by Gary Gow and Gord Erwin. Eric Maher had the only assist.

John Smith scored once and assisted on the other pair for the Hotelmen. Paul Smith had a goal and assist and Jerry St. Denis also scored.

Veteran Pat Marzelle spearheaded the Pepsi's attack. He scored four goals and assisted on another while Paul Ford and Doug Dickey were close behind with three goals and a helper each. Dave Muir had one goal and three assists, Ralph Bourhouse one of each and Duke Doran the other goal. Billy Hill and Mike Fahey each drew two assists.

Phillips was the lone Optical marksman.

Unbeaten, Sweeps Trophies

Toronto Rink Curling Perfection!

QUEBEC (CP) — Last year the Quebec Curling Association granted a life membership to Nels Findlay of Preston, Ont., for his avid participation in the international bonspiels held here annually.

This year Findlay showed his appreciation by returning for his 18th consecutive year and walking off with the three top trophies.

As skip of one of Toronto's two Royal Canadian Curling Club entries, Findlay compiled a perfect 11-0 record in the 128-rink, week-long spiel.

He won the Seagram's Grand Aggregate Silver Bowl with his perfect mark, the Lieutenant-Governor's and the Chateau Frontenac trophies for what is considered a grand slam in the international.

Findlay, who has won 20 awards in his years of participation, previously won the grand aggregate in 1952 and 1958 and the Chateau award in 1951 and 1958.

Findlay won both his Saturday matches, by wide margins, defeating a Port Alfred, Que., rink skipped by Gilles Marquis Saturday morning in the semi-final round 11-3 and taking the title Saturday afternoon from Speicher by the same margin 12-4.

Speicher's rink drew a bye into the final rounds when Lorne Mollot of the Cap de la Madeleine, Que., had two curlers stranded on the south shore of the St. Lawrence at Levis and was forced to default. Crossriver ferries were halted by a blizzard which reduced visibility to zero.

Findlay had earlier won the Strategy Trophy contest when his rink knocked off Jim O'Brien's Quebec Victoria Club 9-2.

With Findlay taking the top three prizes the next four also went to Ontario rinks, which won 10 of the 15 trophies in the bonspiel.

Kings Hand Glen Ross First Defeat

Two streaks came to an end in a keenly-played Centre Hastings Hockey League doubleheader at Stirling Sunday night.

Foxboro Lumber Kings nipped Glen Ross Rebels 4-3 to hand the leaders their first loss of the schedule.

Foxboro outplayed Glen Ross by a healthy margin but it took a big Jack Stewart at 18.58 of the third period to decide the issue. The Rebels had a record of 4 wins and two ties prior to the setback.

Stewart had two of the winners' goals. Dennis Ray and Ralph Sine one each and Barry Hutton three assists. Fred McAdam, Andy Faulkner and Gary Mason scored for the Rebels, who had 2-1 going into the final period.

John Dudgeon played well in goal for Wallbridge netting the shutout and keep the Warriors in a fourth place tie with Foxboro.

Tom Bennett sparked the victory with two first-period breakaway goals. Rod Geen added the other marker in the second period.

Following is the current points standing: Glen Ross 32, Ivanhoe 28, Frankford 17, Foxboro 14, Wallbridge 13, Thomasburg 11, Plainfield 10.

Indians Unbeaten In Six

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When Eddie Shore stepped down as manager, Springfield Indians settled down to playing hockey. They've now stretched an undefeated American Hockey League streak to six games, all since Shore turned over active running of the club to his son Ted and general manager Jack Butterfield.

The Indians battled from behind twice Sunday to get a 3-3 tie with Hershey Bears after taking a 7-3 triumph Saturday over Baltimore Clippers.

Hershey also coupled a victory with the tie in weekend games, a 6-1 win over Providence Reds, and—Rochester Americans made it three points in a 4-3 victory Saturday over Cleveland Barons and a 6-6 tie Sunday with Pittsburgh Hornets.

In other Sunday games, 36-year-old Larry Wilson fired four goals to pace Buffalo Bisons to a 7-3 win over Cleveland, and Providence edged Quebec Aces 4-3.

Quebec took a 3-1 win over Pittsburgh Saturday to slip into second place in the league's eastern division.

Arvida Peewees Win Pair

QUEBEC (CP)—A team from Quebec's Lake St. John region got off to a torrid start in the eighth international peewee hockey tournament here with two shutout victories in weekend games.

The Arvida team, playing in class B of the tournament, blanked suburban Laurentville 3-0 Sunday after trouncing Gatineau, Que., 10-0 Saturday.

The peewees are assigned to play in one of four classes—AA, A, B OR C—depending on the population of the communities they represent.

Meanwhile, suburban Ste. Foy upset LaSalle, Que., 2-0 Sunday and advanced to the semi-final round in class A. LaSalle was last year's class A champion.

In the other class A game Sunday, involving two Montreal suburbs, Pointe Claire downed Mount Royal 4-1 and advanced to the semi-finals.

Grads Split

Galt, Aces Close Gap

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Hornets and Kingston Aces made the most of an idle weekend spent by Collingwood Blues and Brockville Canadiens in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior series.

The Hornets downed North York Varsity Grads 7-4 Saturday and Kingston doubled Orillia 6-3. In Sunday's action, the Grads rebounded to edge Orillia 6-5 and Oakville squeezed past Oakville Oaks 4-3.

The Aces now trail the Georgians by five points and the Hornets by one, but Galt has three games in hand over both teams.

The Grads got another two goals from Thompson Sunday and one from Galand for their fifth victory. Larry Babcock, Carl Hymers and Grant Moore completed North York's scoring.

Keith Worral and Frank Hineks each scored twice for Guelph. Peter Bettiol, Bob Hawkins and Norm Sibbick scored for Oakville.

Nancy Builds Big Lead!

GARI BALDI, B.C. (CP)—Canadian Nancy Greene beat top skiers of two continents during the weekend to build up a commanding lead in the two-part Canadian international ski meet.

The 22 - year - old from Rossland, B.C., won both the slalom and the giant slalom in the western section of the meet, gaining a good chance for the over-all prize to be presented after the eastern section next weekend at Mount Orford, Que.

Jakob Tischhauser of Switzerland became the man to beat for top honors next week.

Miss Greene captured Saturday's slalom on nearly Whistler Mountain with margins of at least two seconds in each of two runs on able-as-side courses.

She took $ix of a giant slalom on the steep slopes about 70 miles northwest of Vancouver by two seconds over top European, Canadian and United States skiers.

Hasken Mjoen of Norway captured Sunday's men's slalom. After a disqualification in Saturday's giant slalom put him out of contention for an over-all award.

Werner Bleiner of Australia, winner of the giant slalom, was also knocked out of contention by being disqualified for entering several gates Sunday.

Skiing consistently, Tischhauser captured second place in the giant slalom and was third behind Pierre Stamos of France in the slalom.

Peter Duncan of Mount Tremblant, Que., turned in the best Canadian performances of the two days, finishing fifth in the giant slalom and seventh in the slalom.

Bruce Henderson of Banff, Alta., entered a favorite of Canadian contingent, ranked after Duncan in the giant slalom and went off the slalom course in his first run and did not finish.

Weather conditions on the newly - developed ski area, staging its first major meet, proved appalling. Snow, rain and fog plagued the course.

Meet officials estimated about 600 spectators braved the weather Saturday and about 1,000 Sunday.

Defeats Mighty Rangers

Berwick Pulls Huge Upset

LONDON (CP)—Mighty Glasgow Rangers, holders of the Scottish Football Association Cup, "crashed 1-0 to little Berwick Rangers Saturday in one of the biggest upsets in the history of cup soccer play in Britain.

Berwick, a second - division club rated 20,000-to-1 outsiders to win the cup, clung grimly to a first-half goal by Sammy Reid to beat Glasgow, which has won the cup 19 times—more than any other club.

There were no major upsets in the third round of the English Cup.

An estimated 1,000,000 fans poured into soccer grounds throughout England — the biggest turnout for English third-round cup matches in about 12 years.

The other non-league team, Bedford, was trounced 6-2 at home by Peterborough.

After Glasgow Rangers' first-round defeat, their rivals, Glasgow Celtic, were favored to win in both the Scottish League and the cup.

Celtic scored a comfortable 4-0 victory over Abroath.

All the favorites for the English Cup survived, although West Ham was surprisingly held to a 3-3 tie at home by third-division Swindon and Tottenham Hotspurs will have to replay after a scoreless tie at Millwall.

Leps Win 1,000

Crothers Finishes 4th

BOSTON (CP-AP)—Bill Crothers' eight-race victory streak in Boston was broken Saturday but Ergas Leps salvaged some prestige for Canada in the Boston Athletic Association indoor track meet.

Crothers, the 26 - year - old Markham, Ont., pharmacist and Canada's best-known active runner, finished a disappointing fourth in the 600-yard run. It was his first defeat in the Boston Garden. His victory streak went back to 1962.

Leps, normally a miler, won the 1,000-yard race in two minutes, 8.1 seconds for the only Canadian victory in the meet.

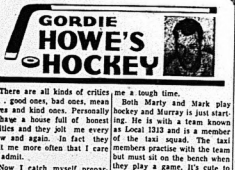
Martin McGrady of Central Ohio State won the 600 in 1:09.9. Dave Hemery of Boston University was second in 1:10.1, Billy Bruckel of Cornell University third in 1:10.4 and Crothers was fourth and last in 1:10.9.

Leps took an early lead in the 1,000 and easily defeated Rick Urbina of Georgetown University, Washington, who was second in 2:09.2. Ray Tucker of McMaster University in Hamilton, Ont., was fifth in 2:09.6.

Kerry O'Brien of Australia won the two miles in record time of 8:38.4. Dave Ellis of Toronto was third in 8:41.2.

Dave Bailey of Toronto, the only Canadian ever to break the four-minute mile mark, finished second in the mile after holding the lead with three laps to go. Sam Bair of Kent State University in Ohio won in 4:04.8, his best indoor time. Bailey's time was 4:05.1.

Baltimore Olympic Club won the one-mile relay in 3:17.8. Toronto East York Track Club was third in 3:21.7.



There are all kinds of critics . . . good ones, bad ones, mean ones and kind ones. Personally I have a house full of honest critics and they jolt me every now and again. In fact every jolt me more often that I care to admit.

Now I catch myself preparing my arguments well in advance.

There was a game against the Boston Bruins in Olympia not long ago that serves as a good example. I was a terrific chance for a goal in the third period and missed the net with my shot.

It's hard to explain. I was all alone and took a real good look before I shot. In fact, if the shot had been half as good as the look, I would have blasted the puck right through the net. But I missed.

Naturally, you are concerned when you blow one like that. But I also have to worry about my honest critics at home. I knew what I'd be in for the next morning at breakfast. I wasn't wrong. The first question was "Dad, how come you missed the net with that shot?"

Rough question, eh?

I always try to have breakfast with the children. To me it seems they are always at their cutest or worst in the morning. Of course, besides my daughter, Cathy, I have three sons, Marty, 12, Mark, 11, and Murray 6, and they can give me a tough time.

Both Marty and Mark play hockey and Murray is just starting. He is with a team known as Local 1313 and is a member of the last squad. The last members practise with the team but must sit on the bench when they play a game. It's cute to watch. Murray often takes off his big hockey glove and sucks his thumb.

And the difference in personalities never fails to amaze me. Mark and Marty are always reminding me that their team is winning and then they ask that awkward question, "What's the matter with your team, Dad?"

But let me give an example of the difference in personalities. Mark quite often asks what the Wings play to do with my No. 9 when I retire.

"Tell them to save it for me, Dad," is the way he often puts it and not long ago he was talking to Sid (Detroit Manager Sid Abel) about it. And Sid was kidding with him, asking "Why not shoot for No. 12? That was pretty famous number, too, you know."

No. 12 of course, was Sid's old number.

He had Mark blushing.

Marty is completely different. He's not interested in No. 9. He tells me, "Dad I want to make a number of my own famous."

So you see it's nice to come home to a house full of honest critics.

Varsity Shades Gaels 4-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

University of Western Ontario Mustangs set their sights on third place in the Ontario-Quebec Athletic Association hockey standing Saturday and promptly moved to within two points of idle Waterloo University by beating University of Guelph Redmen 7-4.

In other games, University of Toronto Blues increased their hold on first place with a 4-3 win over Queen's University Golden Gaels and McMaster Marlins trounced McGill Redmen 11-3.

The Mustangs exploded for five goals in the third period as Jim Dent and John Corbett each scored twice. Rick Lauzon, John Hospodar and Gord Lackenbauer scored single goals.

Paul Laurent's goal with less than two minutes remaining gave the Blues the win.

Fuel Peewees Unbeaten In 28 Games

Smith Fuels streached their unbeaten peewee record to 28 games over the weekend by blanking Napanee 8-0 in their final league game and topping Trenton 4-1 in exhibition.

Elsewhere, Riteways novice club defeated Tweed 5-2, Western Tire-Juveniles edged Oshawa 3-4, Kinsmen bantams bowed 5-0 to Trenton and Belleville's second's peewee all-star club, the Red; Wings, blanked Brooklin 2-0 and nipped Lindbranch 2-1 in a pair of "road" games.

The Smith peewees sewed up their group pennant Saturday with the blanking of Napanee as goalies Marek and Rutherford split duties in the shutout. Geogan and Richardson led the attack with two goals and an assist each. Coates and Lupenette each had a goal and assist while England and Coulson also scored. Smith collected three assists, Ackerman, Whalen and Mulvihill one each.

In Sunday's exhibition win, Lupenette potted three of the goals and Mulvihill notched the other one. Smith and Richardson each drew two assists.

Riteways won on three third period tallies, by M. Meeker, B. Sutherland and Scott James, with his second of the game. P. Crawford had the other one. Mulvihill, Crawford and Sutherland each had an assist. R. Moynes and L. Dillabough scored for Tweed.

A 3-2 margin in the third also provided the juvenile Tiremen with their tight-win. John Holgate and Dave Muir each fired their second goals of the game and Terry Wellesley had the other one. W. Storms, Muir and Holgate had lone assists. B. Morrison scored twice, W. Grakko and T. Goodchild once each for Oshawa. Belleville drew the major share of penalties, including R. Fuller's major and a misconduct to D. Lambert.

The Red Wings topped Longbranch Sunday morning on Larry Kirby's two goals, one assisted by Joe Edwards. In the afternoon, Joe Edwards and Mike Burley scored in the win over Brooklin and Rick Burnett had an assist.

No report was turned in from the Belleville midget team's play in a Hull tournament on Saturday.

They will be installed in the hall at Cooperstown, N.Y., in July as the 105th and 106th members of the elite group. Rickey died in 1965 at the age of 83 after a long and illustrious career was credited with some of baseball's most important innovations. Waner, and his brother Paul (Big Poison) both played for Pittsburgh Pirates during the 1920s and 1930s.

Expert Says U.S. Astronauts Escaped Several Decompression Chamber Fires

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (CP) — The inside of the burned spaceship Apollo I looks like the cockpit of a Second World War plane that took a direct hit, says a reporter allowed to see the craft.

George Alexander, writer for Aviation Week magazine who represented all media, says the interior of the ship in which three astronauts died Friday is a charred mass of burnt-out wires and scattered debris.

Slate-grey deposit covered the panels, the dials were unrecognizable and the couches on which the astronauts were lying were destroyed.

Dr. Wallace Fenn, physiologist and director of the University of Rochester's space science centre, told a reporter there have been several similar fires during the U.S. space program.

He said the fires occurred in decompression chambers from which the astronauts were able to escape because they were larger than the Apollo capsule. Fenn said he could not give the dates or locations of the fires.

Investigation of the fire continued today while preparations were made for burial of the astronauts. Flag - draped coffins containing the bodies of LL-Col. Virgil I. (Gus) Grissom, Lt.-Col. Edward H. White II and Lt.-Cmdr. Roger B. Chaffee were to leave Cape Kennedy by plane today.

Grissom and Chaffee will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery outside Washington and White will be buried at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. The funerals will be Tuesday.

Similar memorial services were planned today for Grissom and White.

At Cape Kennedy, the 12-man board of inquiry continued investigating the tragedy, looking at photographs taken of the cockpit, interviewing witnesses and studying data.

Alexander said that outside, the worst damage appeared to be in a panel located adjacent to where electrical wires from the ground fed Apollo I's power systems during the fatal test. The panel is located at the right of the spacecraft door, approximately over Chaffee's shoulder.

The space agency has not announced what will become of the Apollo I spaceship, but most observers agree it is too heavily damaged to ever carry men into space.

One theory was that a spark, perhaps from a battery or faulty electrical connection, triggered a fire and the flame — fed by pure oxygen in the cabin-swept through the cockpit in seconds, perhaps combusting with gas fumes or contaminants in the oxygen.

A space agency official reported Saturday that the moon-ship had been on internal power—its own batteries—during the tragedy. Sunday, the space agency backtracked and said it had been on external power, receiving electricity from outside the spaceship, and was only "simulating" internal power.

There was also speculation that a combination of temperature and oxygen pressure buildup might have touched off an explosion.

The board's findings may not be known for several days.

The 40-year-old Grissom, veteran of Mercury and Gemini flights; White, the 36-year-old personable spacewalker of Gemini 4, and Chaffee, the handsome rookie, were in a full-scale rehearsal for their Feb. 21 launch date when the block-house crew suddenly heard one of the astronauts shout:

"Fire in the spacecraft!"

Twenty-seven members of the launch crew suffered smoke inhalation as they attempted to rescue the astronauts, trapped inside the burning moonship 218 feet above the ground.

The fire culminated a long series of problems that plagued the Apollo 1 spacecraft and threatens to scramble the U.S. lunar-landing timetable, perhaps delaying the flight six months to a year.

The Soviet labor newspaper Trud said the astronauts were the victims of American "hurry and haste" to reach the moon.

More Teachers May Strike As Settlement Formula Sought

MONTREAL (CP) — Dogged bargaining in two areas and a key meeting in Quebec City are the major features today of strikes by more than 11,000 Roman Catholic teachers.

This week may bring a further extension of work stoppages in Quebec, which already are blocking the education of 260,000 students.

Education Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand will confer in Quebec City with representatives of teachers now on strike and the Federation of Catholic School Commissions.

Mr. Bertrand says they plan to "discuss solutions to the conflicts now in progress."

Raymond Laliberte, president of the Quebec Corporation of Catholic Teachers, said during the weekend that some positive suggestions for solving teacher problems have been made in the legislative assembly.

Mr. Laliberte was looking forward to more suggestions he felt might be forthcoming from Mr. Bertrand at the meeting.

Meantime, mediation was being pressed in Montreal and finally got under way in the Yamaska area east of the city.

Claude Ryan, publisher of the Montreal daily Le Devoir, began mediation activities Sunday after meeting both the Yamaska regional school commission and representatives of the 447 Roman Catholic teachers whose strike there began Nov. 24.

The teachers, who have 8,500 students, have been following a work-to-rule strategy since they were ordered back to work by a government-obtained court injunction last weekend.

Mr. Ryan insisted that both sides in the dispute agree to the presence at the mediation sessions of a provincial government representative.

Agreement on this came through so that Bernard Angers of the Quebec education department will represent the province.

At Yamaska and the four other centres of actual strikes, money seems to be the top issue in dispute.

In Montreal, where 217,000 Catholic children have been out of elementary and high school classes since Jan. 13, the talks between representatives of the 9,000 French- and English-speaking teachers on strike and the Montreal Catholic School Commission were reported making small progress in mediation presided over by Mr. Justice Andre Montpetit.

A threat of back-to-work court injunctions hung over 500 striking teachers in the Pointe Claire - Beaconsfield area just west of Montreal.

The threat originated with the local Roman Catholic school commission as anxiety mounted about the educational status of the 10,500 students affected. The strike began Jan. 20.

The 1,239 Catholic teachers on strike since last Friday in predominantly French - speaking Trois-Rivieres, 70 miles northeast of Montreal, see arbitration as the only hope for settlement of their dispute.

About 5,000 teachers are threatening to strike elsewhere in Quebec.

Thursday could see two groups of these teachers quitting their posts—672 at Granby, 40 miles southeast of Montreal, and 3,500 in the Saguenay-Lake St. John area, 119 miles north of Quebec City.

Teachers in the St. Maurice area, in Chamiley and in the Montreal suburb of Verdun all have threatened to walk out during the first two weeks of February.

Working conditions have figured in the disputes but most attention has focused on the salary question.

The Montreal teachers seek an 18-per-cent salary increase as part of a two-year contract. Their previous contract expired last August.

Salaries under that contract ranged from $3,800 a year for teachers with two years' professional training to $10,400 annually for teachers with two advanced degrees and 14 years of classroom experience.

Is Auntie BBC Distressed by Furor? Alice in Blunderland Not So Sure

LONDON (CP)—"Tut, tut, fiddle," said the Duchess. "Everything's got a moral if you can find it."

You may even find a moral in this story which tells how Auntie BBC, already accused of everything except taking candy from babies, now is charged with filching Alice in Wonderland away from the small fry.

Derision and spluttering rage marked reaction to a BBC announcement that the new $75,000 television production of Alice is unsuitable for children and will be shown after 9 p.m. Dec. 28.

Alice unsuitable for children?

What in heaven's name was the point of producing for the Christmas season—the season for kiddies—an adult version of a much - loved children's story? That was the outraged question.

Huw Wheldon, BBC TV controller, added to the worries rather than otherwise when he explained that producer Jonathan Miller found the story as a psychological drama with disturbing undertones:

"The whole production will be very different from a child's impression of the story. This is, after all, a 1966 production."

Oh my fur and whiskers! The reply came in a chorus faster than you could bite a mushroom: "Off with their heads!" Jonathan Miller explained in a newspaper article later that to "Freudian extravaganza" was in prospect, but by then the Gryphon was really weeping.

"So the truth about Alice now is out, and high time, too," wrote R. T. Tedre from Dorset in one of a series of letters to the editor in The Daily Telegraph, under the headline Alice in Psycholand.

"Let it be hoped that Mr. Miller now turns his attention to that sadistic study of agricultural depravity, Three Blind Mice, and the dismal story of illicit wool distribution hinted at in Baa, Baa, Black Sheep.

Another letter - writer predicted the BBC soon will be producing Evensong and other religious programs "unsuitable for church-goers."

All sorts of learned comment appeared on the perhaps unique place held by Alice in English political and literary life—never mind the kindergarten set. Analysing Alice has been a hobby for years and one commentator remarked that many adult fans must admit its brilliance only dawned on them after childhood had vanished down the rabbit hole.

There have been Tweedledees and Tweedledums in British public life ever since Charles Lutwidge Dodgson, a writer - mathematician better known as Lewis Carroll, wrote Wonderland just over 100 years ago.

SOME WERE REAL

It was a collection of yarns he had spun on sunny afternoons for real-life Alice Liddell, a daughter of one of bachelor Carroll's friends, linking wild absurdities with everyday things in a deceptively slight way. Because satiric and serious meanings can be read into the chronicle, it is an inexhaustible reference for cartoonists, politicians and others.

Even today's newspapers may well have a Cheshire-cat smile somewhere. Carroll's characters were sometimes drawn from real life. The Mad Hatter, for instance, was an Oxford furniture dealer who always wore a topper. He invented an "alarm-clock bed" that woke the sleeper by tossing him out on the floor.

The BBC could hardly have picked a more sensitive tale. Long known as Auntie because of a reputation for utter respectability, the BBC in recent years has frequently been pictured as a miniskirted poppy treading the borderline of taste and morals.

And one newspaper, hot on the Alice issue, compared the BBC to Lewis Carroll's Old Father William, who was asked why he incessantly stood on his head.

RIVAL VERSION BOUGHT

"In my youth," Father William replied to his son, "I feared it might injure the brain:

"But now that I'm perfectly sure I have none,

"Why, I do it again and again."

The Guardian printed a "Come home—all is forgiven" note to Jonathan Miller after learning that one of the publicly - owned BBC's commercial competitors had bought an American version of Alice. It's called The New Alice in Wonderland — or What's a Nice Kid Like You Doing in a Place Like This?

Alice Liddell's only surviving descendant, Mrs. Mary Jean St. Clair, 34, seemed only moderately upset about the BBC when she was interviewed in far-off Gloucestershire. She said:

"My greatest worry is that the film will appear to make my grandmother into some sort of strange person. She was not."

Miller, away in New York, wrote an article for The Daily Mail carefully explaining: "There's nothing overtly gruesome about the film. Nor is there any occult sexuality—no glib Freudianisms, no waggish cross - reference to Lolita."

RABBIT'S REACTION

But the production does explore complicated Victorian attitudes toward children. It is a story about children but not necessarily for them. It is not unsuitable for children in the sense the term is usually used.

And the moral of all this? Perhaps it's embedded in this passage from The Guardian:

"Oh my fur and whiskers!" said the white rabbit, trotting anxiously back and forth across the morning papers. "What a commotion it has all caused. How distressed Auntie must be."

"I am—but—so sure," said Alice, laughing at all the witty cartoons and comments. "It is—hinted—that Mr. Miller's program is a very—funny—interpretation, which will most certainly 'infuriate the poor duchess even more. I think that everyone will want to turn it on now and see for themselves. . . ."

Movie Column

Oysters and Champagne Chief Fare for 400-Pound Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What happens when you take a 400-pound Tahitian woman out of the islands, make her a movie actress and send her around the world on a publicity tour?

What happens is that she has a ball.

Jocelyne Lagarde was in Hollywood on the final stages of a tour that had taken her to Tokyo, Hong Kong, Paris, Stockholm, London, Berlin, Barcelona, Zurich, New York, Montreal, Chicago, Dayton, Ohio and Kansas City. It was quite a trip for someone who had not been out of French Polynesia until she appeared as the queen in Hawaii two years ago.

She told her method of surviving the rigors of the journey:

"Oysters and champagne. Everywhere I go, I order oysters and champagne."

CASTING IDEAL

The casting of her as the warm - hearted Malama was ideal, since in real life she excludes the outgoing spirit of Tahiti. Her English, which was minimal during the filming, has greatly improved with her travels, although she sometimes lapses into the fluency of her native French.

She is a handsome woman, carrying her poundage regally on her six-foot frame. Like most Polynesians she is three-eighths Tahitian — she laughs often. But she frowned as she remembered one of her fellow players in Hawaii.

"Richard Harris!" she exclaimed. "He was bad to me. When we do scene together, he makes faces at me, and I have to laugh. The director say, 'Miss Lama, you are supposed to be sugry; why do you laugh?' It is because of Richard Harris. He would not remember his lines and he make me do scenes eight-nine times until I get tired. He tell somebody on set, 'When I am in scene with Malama, nobody look at me.'"

Miss Lagarde had kinder memories of the other players:

Julie Andrews, she nice and sweet. But she was too high for me. She is big star, and I am just debutante. We get along okay, but she is reserved. That's because everyone wants something of her.

"But Max! (Von Sydow) Max I love. He was so kind, so helpful."

Lauds Canada

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden's biggest morning newspaper, Dagens Nyheter, devoted 15 of 16 pages of a special edition Monday to a presentation of Canada as "the country of the year." Four of the paper's editors gathered material on different phases of Canadian life and a specially - assigned photographer handled picture coverage.

Miss Lagarde has never married—"I never found a man worth giving up my life for." She lives comfortably on an inheritance, devoting her time to charities. One of her friends is Tahiti is Marlon Brando, a frequent visitor to the islands.

CBS Special Strong Preachment On Tragedy of War, Destruction

NEW YORK (AP)—The Final War of Olly Winter, first television play to be new CBS Playhouse series, was the last chapter in the wasted life of a good man.

But more, the broadcast Sunday night was a strong preachment of the tragedy of war—the destruction, hunger and death of innocent people, even animals.

Olly Winter was a New York Negro in Vietnam during 1962 as a military adviser. A master sergeant, he was a veteran of the Second World War and Korea.

Ronald Ribman's play opened with a massacre. The South Vietnamese, flouting Winter's advice, were cut down by the Viet Cong, and Winter survived by smothering one man and shooting another — who turned out to be a woman. The action made him physically sick with revulsion.

Then he picked up a Vietnamese girl whose family had been killed and a hungry little dog. He didn't want them around but they tagged after him. Then he came upon an orphan baby. Winter, a first soldier and reluctant hero, groused ecastantly but shared his rations.

When he caught a young Viet Cong, he was so sick of killing he spared his life. Eventually, he detoured into Viet Cong country to deliver this strange band of dependents to a small village.

STIFF DOWN

Then, when escape and even some happiness with the girl seemed possible, he was shot down.

All through this wandering tale, by turns violent, tender and sentimental, there were flashbacks to his childhood and young manhood.

Ivan Dixon in the title role was superb, investing compassion and sympathy in the role and softening it with flashes of humor. Tin Chen, as the girl, also was excellent, as were the others, but the play concentrated on Sgt. Winter.

Ribman experimented by having the Vietnamese, with one exception, speak their own language. Thus there were long stretches of dialogue which the viewer could not understand, although it was easy to guess what was being said.

It would seem that the network, with long periods when no specials are scheduled, could keep out of each other's way. But NBC's The Royal Palaces of Britain was in conflict with the CBS drama. It was a shame, since the NBC show was a beautifully photographed and leisurely inspection of the architecture, interior and art of royal residences from Scotland's historic Holyrood to Windsor Castle and Buckingham Palace.

Recommended tonight: News special, NBC, 8.30-9.30 EST, report on China.

NON-FICTION

Reporter in Red China by Charles Taylor. Charles Taylor evokes the atmosphere of Peking as well as the province. He describes the attitudes of the younger generation and has much to say unbelievingly of the influence of Mao, the successes of prison reform, and the dangers of oligarchy.

The Merchant Bankers by Joseph Wechsberg. For a hundred years supremacy in international banking was held by the Rothschilds, a family that has been a legend for generations and whose name is a symbol of wealth. It is a kind of wealth shared by all the great houses as the author clearly reveals in his fascinating study of the magic and mystery of the merchant bankers.

My Country, Canada or quebec by SoAge Chapot Rolland. The writer reports on the French-English problems as foreign to itself, something for Ontario and Quebec to solve. French Canadian minorities outside Quebec live in the shadow of Big Brother to the English Canadians. Maritimers and Quebeckers, proud of their provinces and history, look down on each other as parochial; and Toronto, supposedly the heart of English resistance to Quebeckers, seems surprisingly to welcome the French-Canadian assertion. To read this book is to find out how a native Quebecoise feels about you, your attitudes, and your indifference towards her, your fellow Canadian. You may grow angry with what she has to say but you will care more about Canada.

People of the Noatak by Claire Fejes. Claire Fejes has written with rare insight and understanding about the intimate daily lives of mothers and fathers and their children, of husbands and wives and in-laws in the villages in which she lived, an aspect of Eskimo life almost never treated in books. Her superb sketches and drawings of men, women, and children at work, at play, and at home add a warm, visual, living presence to this book.

The Story of Canadian Roads by Edwin C. Guillet. The problems which Canada has faced in seeking to connect two oceans by road would have been formidable even in a land more densely populated. Early settlers found their way blocked by forest and swamp, rivers, rocks and mountains. An early gradual success is recounted from the woodland trail, cleared by Champlain in Acadia, to the Tennisecuta Trail between the Atlantic Provinces and the Canadas: the plank-roads, Canada's first contribution to road - building science; the cart tracks, and the high-class roads for travelers these routes — a wonderful assortment of sleighs, caleches, wagons and stagecoaches.

FICTION

The Abductors by Stuart Cloete. The Victorian Age will never seem the same after reading this novel which is at once fascinating, unsettling drama, and a stiflingly explosive expose of an era more usually remembered for its elegance and propriety.

A Certain Island by Robert Murphy. The story of a young boy who finds his way to the beginning of manhood during a great and memorable adventure in the world of nature.

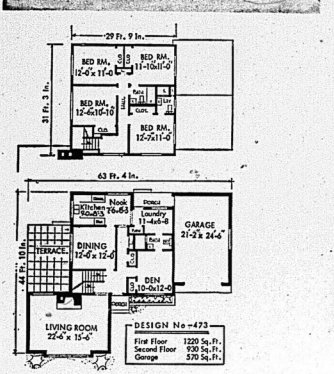
HOME OF THE WEEK



This handsome 2 storey design might be termed a modern colonial. You will note that the living room comprises a separate wing thus completely isolating it from the sleeping area, often a very desirable feature. On the ground floor there is a den which could be used for an extra bedroom, a separate dining room and an extra large kitchen. Laundry area opens onto the rear porch which gives added protection to the back door. Upstairs there are four larger than usual bedrooms, one of which has its private washroom. A two car garage is included. Construction of lower level is brick veneer.

House 1,220 sq. ft. Garage: 570 sq. ft.

Standard blueprints for this design no. 473 cost $20.00 for the first set and $5.00 for additional sets. Blueprints comply with the National Building Code of Canada, and are obtainable by return mail. (Ontario residents must remit 5% sales tax). The design book entitled "101 Selected Suburban and Country Homes designed for Canadians," price $1.00 tax free is available at this newspaper office. This edition includes information on the cost of building in Canada, financing, heating, insulation, constructional details, etc., plus many outstanding new ranch, one and half storey, split level, two storey colonial and duplex designs. Full details on how to order blueprints are also included in this book.

Nancy Morrow Heads L. and A. Jr. Farmers

NAPANEE — Nancy Morrow is the new president of the Lennox and Addington Junior Farmers for the Centennial year. Larry Wannamaker and Margaret Woodcock are the vice-presidents, and Linda Lennox continues as secretary-treasurer. Wayne Parks, immediate past president, was elected provincial director. Barton MacLean and Larry Wannamaker are the representatives to the Federation of Agriculture, and Neil Denison to the county ARDA Committee. Margaret Anne Hill is the program chairman.

The meeting in the North Fredericksburgh Township Hall Wednesday was preceded by a buffet supper prepared and served by the UCW of Anderson Church. A sing-song followed, and Philip Paul and Delbert Baldwin entertained with two musical selections.

Barton MacLean, last year's provincial director, gave a report on the year's meetings in Toronto. Nancy Morrow described the bus trip she had taken through Eastern Ontario and Quebec Province. The trip was sponsored by the Junior Farmers of the County.

Approve $90,000 Debenture For Addition to Collegiate

NAPANEE — Because of the storm, the special meeting of the Lennox and Addington County Council called for Friday had to be postponed until the following day.

The sole matter concerned the issuing of debentures for $90,000 for the addition to the Napanee and District Collegiate Institute, in addition to the $650,000 for which debentures were issued last November. A request for the necessary by-law had been presented by the board to the council at its regular meeting last week, but did not contain the resolution of the majority of the municipalities within the school area approving of the move.

Last week all 11 of these municipalities met and voted on the question. Eight of the 11 bodies in the school area approved, with Adolphustown, Camden and North Fredericksburgh disapproving. As this gave the necessary majority approval, the by-law was given its first and second readings Saturday, and passed each reading and will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for its consideration.

There is a question as to whether the debentures can be issued before the third reading of the by-law or not. Opinion was expressed that the approval of the Board of Municipal Affairs will be sufficient to warrant borrowing the money needed before the contract can be signed. If this is the case, the third reading will be given at the next regular meeting of the council. If not, another special meeting will be called immediately.

REPORTS KKK GROWTH

NEW YORK (AP) — Dorr Schaty, national chairman of the anti-defamation league of B'nai B'rith, says membership in the Ku Klux Klan in the U.S. south has increased 20,000 since last September and now stands at 50,000. He attributed the rise to KKK capitalization on a "climate of fear" in rural areas of the south.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Turcotte visited her father, Mr. Marsh, at the Belleville Hospital on Sunday.

Hotel Accommodation Scarce in Soviet Union

MOSCOW (CP)—Walk into a Soviet hotel any afternoon or evening and chances are you'll find stranded travellers plaintively trying to talk the desk clerk into giving them a room.

The answer is usually the same—Nyet.

You vaguely wonder where the wayfarer will end up spending the night. And a popular choice seems to be the railway station. The waiting rooms of railway terminals in cities are invariably jammed with people who have staked out sleeping places on benches or floor. Some look as if they have been there for days.

Building of hotels in the Soviet Union is one part of the economy that has been neglected over the years in favor of heavy industry.

Aggravating the shortage of rooms is the fact that, especially in summer, most of the good hotels are heavily booked with foreign tourists.

As far as the general public is concerned, however, the situation wouldn't be so bad if what rooms there are were more properly and fairly allotted.

Preference is given to those on state "business." In one month last year a hotel in Rostov-on-Don was obliged to accommodate 1,500 persons on various kinds of state business. This left the equivalent of only five full days for other guests.

Block reservations are made for various conferences. Sometimes an official or delegate fails to show up but the room may be allowed to go unused instead of being turned over to some traveller without a reservation.

A few motels have begun to sprout in western areas of the Soviet Union. But a recent report on the Minsk motel, just outside Moscow, said that instead of attracting tourists it gets only people on business trips, the overflow from Moscow hotels.

Only on big holidays are there rooms available. That's when persons accustomed to making frequent business trips normally stay home.

Foreigners living in Moscow don't have to worry about a place to stay when they go travelling. If they can get permission to travel they can usually get a hotel reservation as well.

They are apt to complain about an altogether different problem — the price. Earlier this year the government boosted hotel rates for Moscow-based foreigners by an average of 300 per cent.

Previously on the inexpensive side, hotel accommodation now is decidedly costly. I recently paid 14 rubles ($16.80) for a single room with bath in Leningrad's gracious but jaded old Astoria. In addition I was charged nine rubles, 20 kopeks for the reservation itself, bringing the total cost of the room to $27.84.

That's stiff for one night in a single room where, typically, the sink plug was missing.

Gordon Speaks

U.S. Control Voting Issue

HAMILTON (CP) — Foreign ownership of Canadian industry will be a major issue in the next federal election, Walter Gordon told a McMaster University audience Monday night.

The former minister of finance, who recently rejoined the federal cabinet as minister without portfolio, told an overflow crowd of more than 600 students that any party which ignored the issue of foreign control would be committing "political suicide."

He said the problem must be worked out gradually over a period of years.

Progress had been achieved on the foreign ownership problem through legislation giving guidelines for Canadian subsidiaries and controlling ownership of banks, newspapers, magazines, insurance, trust and loan companies.

"Now hear this!"

The latest move was the establishment last week of a ministerial committee headed by himself which will examine the foreign ownership and control question.

He said that press reports about pressures and retaliation from the United States on the Mercantile Bank question were exaggerated.

Asked by a student if Canada would continue to "buck the United States" on the question, he replied, "Yes."

Citibank Refuted

OTTAWA (CP) — Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, gave detailed evidence Monday night to challenge four statements by bankers James S. Rockefeller and Robert P. MacFadden in the Mercantile affair.

Mr. Rasminsky tabled a document before the Commons finance committee that suggested the First National City Bank of New York went into its 1963 purchase of the Mercantile Bank of Canada with eyes open.

Mr. Rockefeller, Citibank chairman, and Mr. MacFadden, a Citibank vice-president, gave their versions last week of circumstances surrounding the Mercantile deal.

Finance Minister Sharp was present to hear the central bank governor contradict much of the Citibank evidence in a case that has generated heat between the Canadian and U.S. governments. Citibank is protesting proposed legislation to halt the growth of Mercantile, a wholly-owned subsidiary.

The governor took issue with these statements by the Citibank executives:

—That they had not promised to clear the purchase of Mercantile with Walter Gordon, then finance minister.

—That they did not know of Mr. Gordon's strong views against foreign ownership of Canadian banking before their meeting with him July 18, 1963.

—That the decision on the deal had been made irrevocably by July 18.

—That the meeting itself was set up only on July 16, 1963.

Quoting from extracts of his notes on conversations with Mr. MacFadden, Mr. Rasminsky said he had urged strongly on June 20, 1963 and July 2, 1963, that the Citibank executives see Mr. Gordon before concluding the Mercantile purchase. On both occasions, Mr. MacFadden had promised to do so. Last week Mr. MacFadden and Mr. Rockefeller described the meeting as a "courtesy call," not a request for permission.

Mr. Rockefeller also told the committee last week that, prior to July 18 Citibank was not aware of Mr. Gordon's views on foreign ownership.

But Mr. Rasminsky's notes of the June 20 conversation with Mr. MacFadden in the Bank of Canada offices records a promise by Mr. MacFadden to "re-

Spaceship Fire Not First

WASHINGTON (AP) — President and Mrs. Johnson and other national leaders pay silent, graveside tribute today to the three Apollo astronauts killed in a spacecraft inferno.

At Cape Kennedy, Fla., scene of last Friday's tragedy, a 15-member board of inquiry continued to sift evidence and interview witnesses, searching for the key to the spacecraft fire.

Likely to receive the board's critical consideration is a three-year-old National Aeronautics and Space Administration report detailing previous fires in oxygen-filled chambers.

The report showed four men suffered critical burns in 1962 during experimentation in Philadelphia with an oxygen-filled simulated space cabin. That blaze was touched off by an electrical spark, said the report.

A similar accident in a space cabin simulator at Brooks Air Force Base, Tex., the same year, involving a fire of unknown origin, caused two men in the chamber to lose consciousness.

These and other fire accidents in space-cabin experiments, said a 1964 report prepared for NASA, "illustrate in concrete fashion the potential dangers of 100 per cent oxygen atmospheres."

Furthermore, the report said, an earlier space-cabin fire that developing from the overheating of a television tube, was averted so handily it gave experimenters a "false sense of security."

The study was prepared by the Lovelace Foundation for Medical Education and Research, Albuquerque, N.M.

It was part of a series that is sure to be re-studied as a result of the fatal three-man Apollo astronauts at Cape Kennedy, Fla., Friday night.

The findings of the board of inquiry are not expected to be known for at least several days.

Among those being interviewed by the panel are 27 members of the launch crew who suffered smoke inhalation as they tried to rescue the astronauts, trapped 218 feet above the ground in the burning space capsule.

In London, an RAF scientist said British experiments had shown the danger of sudden fire in Apollo spacecraft and the results were reported to NASA before the astronauts died.

Dummies and dead animals wearing chemically treated suits in an all-oxygen atmosphere were used in the tests.

Fl. Lt. David Denison, a leading authority on oxygen fires, led a group of British space medicine experts in the experiments at Britain's Institute of Aviation Medicine.

Denison said small sparks in such an atmosphere brought an instant flame causing almost immediate death.

"We certainly do not criticize the Americans," he said.

"Their choice of a pure oxygen system for the space cabinet may well be the right choice. It is their job to balance up the many risks.

"What we did was to bring out that the character of fire is unexpectedly swift and savage in a pure oxygen atmosphere."

The NASA study on oxygen fires listed two accidents in 1962. The other occurred in a simulated space cabin and caused two men to lose consciousness.

The main difference between Friday's tragedy and the earlier fires was that the pure oxygen atmosphere in the Apollo spacecraft was pressurized at 16 pounds a square inch—three times the pressure said to be involved in the other blazes.

The higher pressure, the more effectively oxygen feeds flames. And the higher pressure makes other objects more combustible.

Considering various factors that could cause fire in space cabins, the report asked, "Is the increase in over-all probability of mission failure brought about by the fire risk of 100 per cent oxygen environments greater than the over-all probability of failure brought about by the added weight and complexity of a multi-gas cabin system?

"In conclusion, it cannot be stated with certainty on the basis of present data that, as regards fire hazard since, 100 per cent oxygen should be eliminated as an atmospheric environment in space cabins."

Russians Believe U.S. May Have to Modify Spacecrafts

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The mentator of Novosti press death of three U.S. astronauts in a sudden fire at Cape Kennedy Friday may force timeconsuming modifications to American spacecraft, a Soviet commentator suggested today.

He paid warm tributes to the three dead astronauts, declaring that "the grief of the American people is shared in all countries because cosmonauts, no matter what country sends them up, in a way become representatives of the earth."

Yuri Marinin, scientific com-

agency, said the inflammable pure oxygen atmosphere aboard the Apollo craft might be partly to blame for the disaster.

Russian spacecraft have an oxygen - nitrogen atmosphere which is safer but requires bigger and more expensive equipment, he wrote in the newspaper Sovietskaya Russiya.

If as a result of the disaster U.S. space scientists decided they had to fit future American spacecraft with this system it would take several years, he added.

Rich Ore Found Off BC Coast

VICTORIA (CP) — Mines Minister Donald Brothers confirmed Monday night that evidence of major mineral deposits on the continental shelf off the British Columbia coast has been discovered.

His confirmation came hours after the provincial cabinet approved an order reserving the continental shelf mineral rights for the crown.

The order would stop anyone from digging, drilling or gathering mineral samples from the ocean floor without provincial government approval.

Late last year the B.C. government passed orders under the Land Act and the Petroleum and Natural Gas Act. They require provincial approval to develop any part of the shelf inside what was described as B.C. territorial waters.

Premier Bennett's government has been involved in a long battle with the federal government over which administration has the rights to offshore undersea resources.

The premier's move was seen as the first definite assertion of provincial rights in this field.

The Supreme Court of Canada has yet to rule on jurisdiction over offshore rights.

The mineral discovery was made last June by a team of University of B.C. geologists and oceanographers at Jervis Inlet, 80 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Mr. Brothers said there is evidence of rich discoveries of manganese, nickel and copper.

Samples were taken by the UBC team, headed by Assistant Geology Professor James Murray, from a ridge 1,200 feet below the surface, about half way up the inlet. The ridge rises about 400 feet off the ocean floor.

The samples, raised to the surface by a metal claw, consist of manganese oxide and runs as high as 38.1 per cent manganese, one per cent nickel and .3 per cent copper.

Mao Seizes Another Key City

TOKYO (AP) — Mao Tse-tung's forces today claimed capture of the Shantung province port of Tsingtao with army help but said they had to beat down an apparently bloody counter-attack by supporters of President Liu Shao-chi.

Tsingtao was the fourth major city claimed by the Maoists in their current attempt to gain control of the government and the Chinese Communist party. The others are Shanghai, Peking and Taiyuan, capital of Shansi province.

The Liberation Army Daily, controlled by Mao's heir-apparent, Defence Minister Lin Piao, said Tsingtao was seized by Maoist revolutionaries Jan. 22. But it said the city administration employed "white terror"—Communist phraseology for assassination and torture — to launch a "counter-offensive on the newly born revolutionary rebel committee and attempted to continue bourgeois rule."

The report said the pro-Liu forces attacked the Tsingtao Daily and "obstructed and threatened the Tsingtao people's radio station" in an attempt to block a message to Mao.

The army unit siding with Mao broke through this encirclement, the army paper said, and "severely struck down" the attack. It added that the army force, identified only as "a certain unit," staged a demonstration with full armament Jan. 28 to show its support for Mao.

"This action by the Liberation Army greatly blunted the hot air of the class enemies and helped the people who were blindfolded to wake up," the army paper said.

Since the 1949 Communist conquest, Tsingtao has been a major base for Communist construction in the interior. It has large cotton, paper, oiseed and flour mills, shipyards, a tire factory and locomotive shops.

Mao's strategy in grabbing the cities—the reverse of his policy in the 1930s policy of winning the countryside—is based on the tactics of the 1871 Paris commune. Following its pattern, he has called for formation of revolutionary committees of peasants, students, workers, military men and intellectuals and instructed them to take over city governments.

In Hong Kong, meanwhile, the English-language Star said it had received reports that the army commander in Sinkiang province, Gen. Wang En-mao, had threatened to seize the Chinese nuclear test base at Lop Nor if Mao's forces tried to take over the Sinkiang provincial government.

Art Is A Question of Form

SAN GABRIEL, Calif. (AP) — Some critics say that modern art has blown its top. But who ever thought it would go topless?

Well, the art world had best prepare itself. Topless art has come to San Gabriel and, though the proportions of the new fad's influence are not yet known, more than a few residents — mostly male — have felt it is worth looking at.

The technique involves the use of a topless girl, paint, canvas and a crowd of onlookers to create an abstract painting.

The technique: Artist dabs girl with paint — usually cold paint so the girl can spral — and the girl slithers on to canvas. This produces unusual designs on the canvas — the girl too — which are different from most examples of abstract art.

But like many artistic innovators he has his detractors.

"This intellectual dishonesty is not in the interest of art," said Mayor Helen Achilles.

"It's in the interest of the fast buck."

The mayor and city council of San Gabriel, located about 10 miles east of Los Angeles, have been complaining since Stagg opened his "art show" at a restaurant.

They want the "abstract impressionist" to stop painting, at least in the present fashion, and they want the restaurant owner, Bill Coleman, former police chief in nearby Monterey Park, to dress his women employees more modestly.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cloud and snow which spread into northwestern Ontario and Michigan today will continue moving eastward. Snow amounts are likely to range from one to three inches and there is a risk of some freezing drizzle. The disturbance should move out of the province by Wednesday.

Counselling Service in Great Demand

Mr. Joel Mazer, Chairman of the Committee on Family Counselling Service, presented a summary report to the Children's Aid Society Board of Directors. The report covered the Service's activities for the year 1966. The Family Counselling Service served 196 families and individuals involving 783 children.

Mr. Mazer noted that an increasing demand is being placed on staff's time and more efforts are being made to hire additional professional help. The majority of people applying for service were families with children. There were 157 families involving 676 children among those given service. The remainder were either individuals or couples without children.

As one would expect, said Mr. Mazer, the majority of cases involved people with marital problems. This experience has been reported by other Family Service Agencies in Ontario. However, more applications for service are being received from parents who are worried or puzzled by their children's behavior. Mr. Mazer also indicated that the Family Counselling Service is under increasing pressure to give service to people who are liable to manage their financial commitments. If this pressure continues some steps will have to be taken in order to meet the demands. This problem is under study at the present time, by the Committee.

In commenting about the residential status of applicants who have been served Mr. Mazer noted that there has been an increase in the percentage of people from the County making use of the service from 34% in the first half to 53.3% in the second half of 1966.

In other developments, it was announced that the Family Counselling Service is now operating in Trenton one day a week.

Businessmen Get the Works

Belleville businessmen are bumping off pounds during breaks from the office grind these days. The secret of keeping trim is to surrender a lunch-hour session for a workout in the city's YMCA gym.

Will Boost Pressure

Steady Progress Made on New Main

Despite winter conditions, work is progressing steadily on the installation of still another section of the new 24-inch watermain being built by the Belleville Public Utilities across the north end of the city.

Work currently is under way at the intersection of Cannifton Road and College Street.

Construction of the new water-main aimed at boosting water pressure in the north end of the city, was started several years ago from the pumphouse in the west end of the city.

Since then the big pipe has been extended eastward along Sidney Street to College and east along College street to the Moira River. The contract now underway by The Tatham Company will extend the main across the river, north along Cannifton Road to College and east to Centre Street in the Hillcrest area.

The installation of the elbow will be lined until February 8 but would have been 98 years old.

His parents, Reuben Spencer and Susanna Jane Anderson Brewster, came here from the United States before the birth of their son. All his life had been spent on or near the water and he has never lived far from the Napanee River.

For several years Mr. Shipman was an employee of the Canadian Company and managed their office and yards on the south side of the river. When the company ceased operations in Deseronto and the yards closed in Napanee, he turned his hobby into a full time job and became a carpenter. He liked boat-building the best, and built many craft, from row boats to small yachts. He also operated a boat livery for the days when boating was a fashionable pastime, and the river was lined with docks and boat houses, especially on the south side.

He owned and sailed the "Winnie Ling", a schooner which carried cargo, principally coal, to such ports as Picton, Kingston, Gananoque and Oswego, N.Y., as well as Napanee. When sailing up the Napanee River with a load of coal, the Winnie Wing was hit by a barge and sank just off the north shore. Mr. Shipman concentrated on work as a carpenter after that.

Following his retirement about 13 years ago he turned his attention to gardening as a hobby and worked in his garden alone until well over 90. His wife, formerly Hetu Marie Wallbridge, was an invalid for several years, and he cared for her until a few months before her death, when Mrs. Rene Tremblay came to live in his home. Except a few months following Mrs. Shipman's death nine years ago, they have been there ever since. He was very fond of them and of their son Michael.

When they were young, both Mr. and Mrs. Shipman were members of Grace Church choir.

Mr. Shipman had no children and his one sister died in infancy. It is believed that he has no living relatives. However, he looked on Mr. Frank and Mrs. Milo Long of San Francisco, Cal., as his own. They were Mrs. Shipman's goddaughter and niece.

The funeral service, held in the Tierney Funeral Home Monday afternoon was widely attended. The Rev. Guy Case officiated.

Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

REUBEN B. SHIPMAN
Napanee

NAPANEE — Reuben Brewster Shipman of 150 Water St. a lifelong resident of the town, died at his home Friday. Had he lived until February 8 he would have been 98 years old.

His parents, Reuben Spencer and Susanna Jane Anderson Brewster, came here from the United States before the birth of their son. All his life had been spent on or near the water and he has never lived far from the Napanee River.

For several years Mr. Shipman was an employee of the Canadian Company and managed their office and yards on the south side of the river. When the company ceased operations in Deseronto and the yards closed in Napanee, he turned his hobby into a full time job and became a carpenter. He liked boat-building the best, and built many craft, from row boats to small yachts. He also operated a boat livery for the days when boating was a fashionable pastime, and the river was lined with docks and boat houses, especially on the south side.

He owned and sailed the "Winnie Ling", a schooner which carried cargo, principally coal, to such ports as Picton, Kingston, Gananoque and Oswego, N.Y., as well as Napanee. When sailing up the Napanee River with a load of coal, the Winnie Wing was hit by a barge and sank just off the north shore. Mr. Shipman concentrated on work as a carpenter after that.

Following his retirement about 13 years ago he turned his attention to gardening as a hobby and worked in his garden alone until well over 90. His wife, formerly Heta Marie Wallbridge, was an invalid for several years, and he cared for her until a few months before her death, when Mrs. Rene Tremblay came to live in his home. Except a few months following Mrs. Shipman's death nine years ago, they have been there ever since. He was very fond of them and of their son Michael.

When they were young, both Mr. and Mrs. Shipman were members of Grace Church choir.

Mr. Shipman had no children and his one sister died in infancy. It is believed that he has no living relatives. However, he looked on Mr. Frank and Mrs. Milo Long of San Francisco, Cal., as his own. They were Mrs. Shipman's goddaughter and niece.

The funeral service, held in the Tierney Funeral Home Monday afternoon was widely attended. The Rev. Guy Case officiated.

Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

ROBERT NIXON

Ontario Liberal Leader To Speak at Meeting

Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon will be in Belleville Feb. 16 to speak at the Quinte Riding Liberal nomination meeting at BCI.

Mr. Nixon, 38, MP for Brant, was elected January 7 as leader of the Ontario Liberals following the resignation of Andrew Thompson.

The meeting will choose the Liberal standard bearer for the new Provincial Quinte Riding. A tense race is expected. Quinte Liberal president, John O'Flynn, said: "I expect this to be a hotly-contested nomination. There's been a great deal of interest since the new riding of Quinte has been formed. It is the best fighting ground for Liberals in eastern and central Ontario."

Frantic behind-the-scenes activity by potential candidates is expected to keep interest high. Various candidates are expected to announce their intentions of contesting the nomination within the next few days.

The Quinte Riding consists of Belleville, Trenton, Middleton Park, Frankford, Batawa and the rest of Sidney Township.

Voting at the meeting will be by party delegates and the general public is invited to attend.

Liberal Member Favors Teaching Two Languages

A Liberal MP speaking to the Quinte New Democratic Youth in Belleville last night called for updated education methods whereby both French and English would be taught throughout Canada beginning in the first grade.

Jean Chretien, MP for St. Maurice Laflesh, and parliamentary secretary to Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp, said in the Kiwanis Centre last night that in years to come, being bilingual will be an asset to all Canadians.

He said relations between English and French speaking Canadians was of paramount importance.

Mr. Chretien said one of the biggest problems facing Canada today is the lack of unity between the two groups.

The speaker also touched on a few other topics of national interest. He said the auto deal between Canada and the United States should double Canadian automobile production.

Off the Mercantile Bank affair, he said only that the U.S. should not have any control over Canadian banking.

Next Step Detailed Plans

Municipal Board Approves City's Capital Works Program

With municipal board approval of this year's quota of the city's five-year capital works program, city council yesterday called for cost estimates for a number of projects planned to go ahead this year.

Included is the rebuilding of Sidney Street north from Dundas Street to a point about opposite Wilson Concrete; and installation of a number of sanitary sewers in different parts of the city.

Among the sewers planned for completion this year is a system in Foster Ward with a preliminary cost estimate of about $140,000.

Also planned for this year is the first phase of the long talked about Dundas Street project and construction of a new arena at the Belleville Fair Grounds.

City Manager J. R. Reynolds said that when cost estimates for the various local improvement sewer and road building projects were in, a bylaw would be brought to council and application made to the OMB for approval of the individual projects.

A sanitary sewer for the Valleyview Cres. area now served by septic tanks, would be included in the year's work, it was stated.

Detailed plans for the Dundas Street bridge and roadway project have still to be drawn by the consulting engineers. When these are completed and cost estimates in, application will be made for OMB approval of this project.

The first phase of the project is construction of an overpass over the CPR to replace the present level crossing near the intersection of Dundas Street and the Bay Bridge Road.

The total project, to cost an estimated $1,700,000, is to be done in four phases. The second phase scheduled for next year is the bridge across the Moira. The third phase, the roadway between the river and the CPR overpass is to be built this year.

A fourth phase would be rebuilding of Dundas Street from the proposed CPR overpass to Sidney Street.

Also this year the city parks board is expected to bring in detailed plans for its proposed artificial ice arena at the fairgrounds.

The initial phase of this project will consist of the new arena with seating capacity for about 2,500.

Later phases are the addition of an auditorium and increasing the seating capacity for the arena by adding seating at the ends.

The entire complex would be constructed on the present site of the manufacturers and merchants buildings at the fairgrounds.

Several Aldermen, particularly Alderman J. R. Scott and Jack Allin, expressed concern regarding later phases of the Dundas Street and arena projects, which they feared might be left up in the air through possible non - approval by the Municipal Board.

Alderman Kenneth Soden and Donald Williams assured this could not be the case with respect to the new arena as this year's proposal could be operated as a separate entity.

With respect to the Dundas Street project, City Manager Reynolds said he felt the city was quite capable financially of carrying out all four phases when it was decided they should go ahead.

Mayor Ellis said the OMB report in approving the city's 1967 capital works quota of $2,208,900, was "quite complimentary" and indicated support of the city's monetary position.

The mayor then brought in recommendations authorizing the city engineer to prepare cost estimates for the various local improvement sewer and road building projects planned for this year.

Peter Thomson, Retired Police Officer, Dies

Peter Thomson, a retired police officer familiar to two generations of Bellevillians, died suddenly at his home last night.

Mr. Thomson, who retired from the city force in 1960 after nearly 33 years service, was stricken with a fatal heart seizure, after he had been shovelling snow at his residence, 240 East Dundas Street, earlier in the day.

He joined the Belleville police in 1927 and his taciturn manner, backed by a powerful figure, made him one of the department's best-known constables to the citizens he served. On his retirement from the force he worked some time for the Belleville Parking Authority.

He was born in Scotland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Thomson and came to Canada 43 years ago. He moved to Belleville after working a year in Hamilton.

Through the years he maintained a contact with the culture of his native land through his membership in the Sons of Scotland.

He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

A widower, he was predeceased some time ago by his wife, the former Barbara Breckenridge.

He leaves two sons, Andrew, of St. Catharines and Richard, of Belleville; a daughter, Mrs. Paul (Barbara) Aman, of Northbrook; six grandchildren, and a sister, Mary Williamson of Scotland.

Restaurant Site Consecrated

Three Left Homeless After Orland Fire

TRENTON — A Brighton area family of three was forced to find temporary accommodation with friends following a fire in the two-storey frame house in Orland, north of Brighton, yesterday.

Brighton firemen under chief Edwin Boes fought the fire for more than four hours but were unable to save the dwelling.

Some of the furnishings were carried out by firemen and neighbors.

Loss was estimated at $8,000. The owner, Wilbur McDonald, told chief Boes he heard a small explosion just before the fire broke out at nine a.m. Mrs. MacDonald was at work and a son, Scott, six, at school.

Funeral

CHARLES F. KEIRL

The funeral of Charles F. Keirl was held yesterday from the John R. Bush Funeral Home.

Service in the funeral home chapel was conducted by Mr. Sidney Bates and interment was in Riverview cemetery.

Bearers were Ken Juby, Milton Keirl, Percy Mitchell, Arnold Mitchell, Harry Brills and Archie Greatrix.

$5,000 Cost City Manager Gets New Office

Part of the second floor of Belleville's 94-year-old city hall is to be brought up to date — this time to provide an executive suite for use by the city manager.

The proposal, given offic i a l okay yesterday by council, will see the present "tower" committee room completely refurbished for use by the city manager.

Also a part of the upstairs hall will be partitioned off to provide an ante room and office space for the secretaries of the mayor and city manager.

Ceilings in both areas would be lowered, the upstairs h a l redecorated, the washrooms renovated, and a coat and hat rack provided for use by council members.

WILL CARPET SUITE

Plans call for carpeting in the executive suite together with new office furniture in keeping with the total decor.

Alderman Jack Deacon t o l d council that a rough estimate of the cost of the work was about $5,000 and with approv a l of council the project would be commenced immediately.

On completion of renovations the city manager would m o v e upstairs to the new office and city industrial commissioner, now occupying an office at the rear of the city clerk's department would move to the present office of the manager.

Citibank

consider their decision" about Mercantile if Mr. Gordon was strongly opposed.

At the meeting Mr. Gordon did in fact say he was against the deal and warned of possible restrictive legislation against Mercantile. The amendments to the Combines Investigation Act were first sponsored by Mr. Gordon.

In the July 7 telephone conversation, Mr. Rasminsky would be specifically read to Mr. MacFadden a paragraph critical of foreign ownership and control of Canadian banks from the preliminary report of the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects, a commission headed by Mr. Gordon himself.

On the third point, Mr. MacFadden had told the committee that a memorandum of agreement signed June 26, by Citibank and Dutch interests for sale of Mercantile represented a "binding agreement" on both sides.

In Mr. Rasminsky's memo from the July 2 phone conversation he says:

"I said I assumed that before completing the deal MacFadden planned to see the minister or finance, and he replied in the affirmative. . . ."

The memo of June 20 had also recorded a pledge by Mr. MacFadden "not to push the matter to a conclusion."

The governor directly contradicted public statements by Mr. MacFadden on the arrangement of the meeting with Mr. Gordon.

The Citibank executive has said he and Mr. Rasminsky agreed on July 16 to see the minister two days later. July 16 was also the date of a Citibank board meeting that approved the memorandum of agreement on the Mercantile purchase.

But the governor said on July 16 he was "about 800 miles from here fishing for salmon on a river off the Saguenay."

His record of the July 2 conversation showed that Mr. MacFadden had at that time proposed to see Mr. Gordon July 18.

The Citibank vice - president has said the date was not made earlier because Mr. Rasminsky was on vacation and could not be reached for some time after July 2.

But Mr. Rasminsky said he phoned Mr. MacFadden on July 2 confirming the July 18 date. His notes of the meeting say he was in Ottawa until July 12, when he left for holidays.

DECIDED AFTER MEETING?

The governor said he believed the Citibank decision to go ahead with the Mercantile deal must have been made before the meeting with Mr. Gordon.

He quotes Mr. MacFadden in his July 2 telephone conversation as saying "that the ministry of finance had been fairly noncommittal to them that he did not wish them to proceed with the transaction but that after serious consideration they had decided to go ahead."

Citibank has argued that the proposed Bank Act amendment halting Mercantile's growth is retroactive and discriminatory. The federal government says Mr. Gordon gave fair warning to the consortium of investors. Two official notes of protest from the U.S. state department have been answered with a rejection.

Mr. Rasminsky said existence of large foreign banks in Canada would hamper the central bank's monetary control, and would increase the chances of unofficial trusts and foreign-funds control legislation.

Ald. Claims Monument In 'Deplorable' Condition

City Council feels that something should be done to remedy the "deplorable" condi i on of the monument to Sir Mackenzie Bowell which nestles in the corner of the Belleville Armouries lawn.

Alderman Donald Will i a m s brought the matter to the attention of council yesterday during the mortar and joints on the monument required repointing and that the lettering on the bronze plaque was so dingy that it could hardly be read.

"Sir Mackenzie Bowell," he said, "was the only Belleville man ever to become p r i me minister of Canada, and the city owes it to him to see that his memorial is kept in good condition."

WORK MAY BE DONE

Mayor J. R. Ellis said the Defence Department this year was expected to do something about a memorial wall around the Armouries lawn and suggested the monument repairs might be done at the same time.

Alderman Jack Allin noted, however, that the monument was put up by the Sir John A. Clubb and Sons committee which looked after the monuments and plaques in perpetuity.

Council Concurs in Resolution To Control Official Planning

Members of Belleville city council feel that municipal governments and not the Ontario Municipal Board should have the right to okay proposed changes in a city's official plan.

They feel that if this was the case lengthly delays for change approvals would be obviated and at the same time responsibility would be where it should be — with elected representatives.

At yesterday's council meeting members voted 6 to 4 in favor of an Etobicoke township resolution calling for removal of the legal significance of an official plan.

Currently city Planning Director P. J. Beavis and the city planning board are completing details of an official plan for the city of Belleville and the planning board recommended a regional concurrence in the Etobicoke resolution.

Alderman J. Russell Scott said there was a feeling that official plans were binding on municipalities but were not binding to the same extent on developers.

Mayor Ellis said Etobicoke's official plan was at least 20 years old and when changes were desired there were lengthy delays in going through Ontario Municipal Board channels for proper approvals.

He said if a plan was reasonable changes were well thought out, OMB approvals could be expected within three to four months.

Alderman Donald Jose, counsel representative on the planning board, said that while he approved of official plans he felt that a good municipal government was the best assurance of control instead of having to go to the Municipal board.

He felt council should support the Etobicoke resolution and hoped others should be a step in the "continual erosion of municipal government authority."

"It's just another power taken away from the people directly answerable to the electors," interjected Alderman Scott.

Alderman Douglas Boyle felt however that the Ontario Municipal Board is a safeguard.

He said he was not too clear in what Etobicoke was requesting in it's resolution.

"It's confusing, and I am not too sure that it is a good resolution," he said.

Jury Believes Fire 'Contributing Factor'

A coroner's jury in Belleville last night found that two men died June 4, when fire engulfed their small car after it was struck from behind by a second car six miles east of Belleville on Highway 401.

The jury said fire was a contributing factor to the death of Robert Frank Pearson, 27, of 95 Geddes St., Belleville, and Joseph Claude Lantagne, 27, of Quebec City, both instantly killed when their car was struck from behind by a car driven by Charles Tatham, 24, of Rossmore.

Tatham testified the small car was stopped on the driver's lane of the highway and didn't appear to have any lights on it at the time of the accident.

The accident occurred during a heavy rainstorm near the Rupert Leeming Sideroad. Mr. Tatham and the three occupants of his car escaped unhurt.

One passenger of the Tatham car, Robert Bovet of Ste La Salle, Quebec, an electrical engineer, suggested that possibly static sparks from the steel twisting against steel could have ignited gas fumes at the rear of the car.

A Belleville mechanic, Ross Campbell, service manager at Trudeau Motors, who examined the car, said the combination of the gas tank and battery being located at the rear of the car and the collision in that area could well cause a spontaneous flame.

The coroner, under the direction of Dr. John Stock, coroner, was also told by the wife of the deceased Demers, that the two men were leaving the car for a faulty cooling system thermostat at the time of the accident.

She said her brother, Lantagne, and his wife, went to Quebec City couple of days earlier and had driven back that day. Mrs. Demers testified Lantagne was an air force mechanic and he had decided to change the thermostat because the car heated up in the heavy traffic on the way back from Mosport.

Mrs. Demers said her brother tinkered with his car a lot and he and her husband had gone out for a drive because of the faulty thermostat.

The jury attached no blame in the accident.

Drove Car Without Muffler

Magistrate T. Y. Wills imposed the fine on Gordon Alafano after hearing city police evidence that the accused's car was making excessive noise on Front St. on the evening of Jan. 14.

Const. B. Titterson told the magistrate that upon investigation, he found that there was no muffler on the car and ordered quently found it in the trunk.

Afghanistan, Land of Contrast

Afghanistan, crossroads of the early east west traders — and invaders — is truly a land of contrasts, Belleville Rotarians learned at first hand yesterday.

Harry Mulhall, of the editorial staff of The Intelligencer, spent some time in this strange and forbidding land in the course of a journey through the Middle East last summer.

Mr. Mulhall found that while there is still some reserve toward foreigners in Afghanistan an interested and friendly attitude evokes a friendly response from the people. Thus after leaving Nepal on the far northern border of India he returned to the country.

"For centuries Afghanistan was the crossroads of the world, the meeting place of the east - west movements of peoples," said Mr. Mulhall. "However, its importance went into decline when the seas were conquered by the Europeans and the land route faded before the predominance of western maritime commerce."

The history of Afghanistan, going back 5,000 years is one of conquest. Alexander the Great came here on his way to India and the Greek culture he brought with him held away for more than two centuries. Thus, Afghanistan is also the land of the early Aryan peoples, who were the forefathers of European civilization. Buddhism and subsequently* Mohammedanism influenced the country, items which are recalled in latter-day Afghanistan by the remains of early temples and mosques.

Modern Afghanistan owes much to the confemporary power struggle between the United States and the Soviet Union. The airport at the capital city of Kabul was built by the Soviets as was the road system from the Persian border town of Herat to Kandahar, while Kandahar's airport owes its existence to the U.S., as does the highway between this city and Kabul.

In Kabul a modern city centre, with a theatre and restaurant flanked by fountains and other imprints of western civilization, is in sharp contrast to humble homes and side streets nearby. Similarly, in outlying regions, terrain made fertile by irrigation is to be found side by side with arid desert like the "Curse of Genghis Khan," a tract named after the 12th century Mongol conqueror.

It was in what Canadians would term rural Afghanistan that Mr. Mulhall had his most rewarding contacts with the people of this remote land. Here he experienced warm friendliness from Afghans travelling on foot and by horse as well as by plane, and observed the gentleness and strong family ties which exist between them.

Mr. Mulhall, who illustrated his talk with color slides, was introduced by Rube Freeman and thanked by Jack Belanger.

Quinte District Farmers To Be Paid for Fire Losses

A painstaking, six-month investigation into damage claims by Quinte district farmers against the CNR may be drawing to a close.

Today, a railroad adjustor was expected to talk settlements with 16 farmers in Tyendinaga and Richmond township who charge their properties were damaged by fire, started by a crack CN passenger express.

Despatch of the adjustor to the area was announced last night in the Commons by James Byrne, MP, parliamentary secretary to Transport Minister Pickersgill.

Mr. Byrne was replying to Douglas Alkenbrack, MP Prince Edward-Lennox, who complained in an adjournment debate that the railroad hadn't yet paid the farmers for damaged caused to fences, crops and pastures.

Claims total $3,223 and range from $50. to $640.

The farmers claimed grass fires started along the CN right-of-way between Deseronto and Napanee after the fast passenger Rapido express passed by.

H. J. Fast, manager of the railroad's Rideau Area in Belleville said today the delay in reaching settlements was because the executive investigation necessary into causes of the fire.

Much inquiries, he noted, once relatively simple in the days of steam locomotives, today are complicated by the dieselization of the railways.

Since no apparent defect could be found in the Rapido's motor units, all other trains which passed through the area had to be examined and their crews questioned.

He said there would have been an average of 40 trains involved.

Investigations were further complicated by absence of crewmen on vacation and strikes.

"The whole delay has been in trying to find out a cause," explained Mr. Fast. "Grassfires were started along our right-of-way in that ages by something — but nobody really knows what."

However, the adjustor, expected from Ottawa today, will discuss the situation with the dissatisfied farmers and "hopes to settle the claims on some basis," said Mr. Fast.

Women At Work

Canada cannot afford to waste its female brainpower. That is the word from Mrs. Michael Sabia, St. Catharines alderman and president of the Canadian Federation of University Women.

Mrs. Sabia complains that men have put women on a pedestal . . . that women have been told they should be "eternally seduced, flutter their eyelids, wear perfume."

Specifically, Mrs. Sabia wants women to have equal rights and opportunities. Last November she led a delegation of 75 women to ask the federal government for a royal commission to examine the status of women.

That those who received the delegation did not have "female brainpower" in mind is evident from Mrs. Sabia's remark to a Toronto audience last week. "When we presented our brief, the first words said to us were: "You have lovely hats," and the second, from Justice Minister Lucien Cardin, who said, "I don't believe there is any prejudice. We men love women."

Do men not take women seriously, when it comes to competing in a man's world? Well that may be true, and yet at the same time women have come a long way from the days when they were supposed to be strictly housewives and mothers. There are many vocations open to women which suit them ideally and in which they have no need to compete with men.

The opportunities for women to be women, to nourish their mental gifts and spiritual qualities, and still wear perfume and retain their feminity, are manifold. Men have their own special qualities and motivations regarding work. Their attitude toward women competing with them may be one of acquiescence — but for heaven's sake, let's just get on with the job.

These days there is room for anyone with the ability and willingness to work. And for many a housewife, spending much of her day in the home, a job, part-time or otherwise, could be a lifesaver as well as a benefit to the economy.

Too much confinement to the home, with the children in school, and only housework to contend with, are not conducive to spiritual or mental vigor. Indeed it may be asked if this is one reason for the 36 per cent of women patients found by a Mayo Clinic survey to have neurotic tendencies?

Work, and particularly congenial work, is perhaps the greatest boon in anyone's life. Everything else hinges on it, whether it is work in a profession or about the home. And more and more these days there are opportunities for anyone of either sex, with the talent and ability, to go out and find a job.

Kanata

Canada — the name by which this country is identified — how did it come to be named thus?

According to the Canadiana encyclopedia, Canada is believed to be derived from the Huron-Iroquois term Kanata, meaning the village or community. It appeared first in the narrative of Jacques Cartier in 1534, where it seems to have referred to the Indian community of Stadacona.

The name was then applied to the St. Lawrence River described as "that famous river of Canada" in Robert's Map of Canada, 1638) and so to the whole country. It became the popular designation for the colony of New France as distinguished from Acadie.

That then is the Canadiana version of this country's origin. But there is another one that has been passed on to us. And it is from the Spanish Aca nada.

It seems early Spanish explorers searching for gold in the St. Lawrence region found little in the way of such wealth. And Aca nada loosely translated means "Here . . . this way. There is nothing."

Not a very complimentary designation, as viewed by the Spaniards. We are not even sure if the Spaniards did in fact search for gold in the St. Lawrence in an earlier time. But it is certainly an interesting theory.

Diefenbaker Still Strikes Fear in Liberal Ranks

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Don't let the Liberals kid you when they try laughing off John Diefenbaker and chuckling that more of his Conservative leadership is exactly what they need most.

They are still in a state of shock from the blockbusting he gave them with his call for a leadership convention at which he will either be a candidate himself or the king-maker placing on the head of his chosen crown prince — whoever he might turn out to be — the jewelled symbol of succession.

For months, even years, in fact, almost from the day the years ago that he broke their two decades and more of uninterrupted power, they have been telling themselves — and anybody who would listen—that he was just about the best thing that ever came down the Confederation pike for their political money.

The way they have been telling it, Diefenbaker as Conservative Leader is the best possible insurance of their continuing to rule the political roost.

But don't you believe it.

For in their secret hearts they still fear him even more than they hate him.

Because, beset by disloyalty and besieged by rebellion within the Party's splintered ranks, he still twice held them, solidly united and cockily confident as they were, to the non-triumph of shaky minority election squeakbys.

"For nearly four years now he has terrorized them from the Opposition, confounding Prime Minister Pearson and confusing the Cabinet.

So in desperation they seized on the strategy of pretending that the worst thing that ever happened to them — and Dief's staggering 1958 sweep of 208 seats cutting them back to 48 was just that, utter disaster — was really the best.

But you should have been in National Liberal Headquarters here in the Capital this last election night.

Then the mask slipped.

And in the dazed Liberal faces you could read the truth about Dief.

It was bedlam at the Chateau Laurier where the Liberal organizational command had gathered to watch and gloat over the triumphal results so confidently expected.

You would have to see it to believe it — but they were convinced that everything rise across the nation had gone mad and that the whole crazy thing was a plot, the unspeakably dirty work of that "SOB," as so many of them called him, that arch political conspirator, the despicable and dastardly Dief.

The disaster began in Prince Edward Island, which in the superstition of the pols is supposed to set the election trend.

So when all four PEI seats went Tory, there was not just mere consternation, but feelings of panicky persecution and then hostility.

"Cancel the bloody caucus-way," some of them growled.

And while it wasn't actually cancelled — as a form of political punishment — it was put on the "slow" list, just short of a dead stop, where even today it dawdles along.

Their election - slap - in - the-face was a great psychological upset and has left them with a psychotic hangover still.

Ever since '57 they had attempted to convince themselves that Conservative voters should be regarded more in sorrow than in anger.

Anybody who could support "that madman," as they called him, had to be either stupid or just as crazy as he.

The reaction from shocked unbelief to angry hostility and revenge has been lasting.

The dislike has even been among the more tolerant in the resentful government ranks, to make the constituencies that went against them bleed a little.

The psychology of that is familiar to every parent — when understanding, patience, even kindness and indulgence fail, lay on the rod of stern punishment.

Chastize the barbarians, for pain alone can redeem them as believers in the True Faith.

And so the country, if not abandoned, is all but abandoned, to paddle PEI. The Navy is getting its fatigue-dress jumps, to punish Halifax, so dependent economically on the RCN. Branch railway lines are to be rolled up, to teach the West a lesson. Defence establishments are being "economized" to make the Maritimes feel the pinch. Revenge may not be the sole motive, but government action regionally has to be more than coincidental.

Blame that old devil Dief.

Norway Is Tough on Drunk Drivers

Norwegians are justifiably proud of one record they set up over the Christmas holiday season. Not a single road traffic death was registered during the holiday period.

Statistics indicate that Norway has proportionately fewer cars than North America or Britain, but most observers believe the reason for the fatality - free holiday season can be found in the drastic Norwegian laws that categorically forbid drinking when driving.

It has been repeatedly argued that in Canada, Britain and the United States, the public would not tolerate such tough laws as those enforced in the Scandinavian countries — mandatory jail sentences for any driver who has had even a single drink, and long terms of imprisonment for drunken drivers involved in accidents.

But there was a time when drunken driving was a prevalent in Scandinavia as it is now in other parts of the Western world.

Deciding to tackle the danger before it got out of hand, the Scandinavian governments introduced stiff legislation that has drastically reduced drunken driving on their roads. No government has suffered politically from the laws since the public recognized their justification.

Perhaps the rising death toll on the North American highways could be curbed if the governments would get together and introduce legislation such as that applied in the northern European countries.

Last Days of D'Arcy McGee

Sherbrooke Record
Ottawa Journal

In an interesting backward glance, the Montreal Gazette reprints a report it carried 100 years ago of a speech by Thomas D'Arcy McGee to Irish Protestants in that city. Did he reveal in it a premonition that his enemies would soon destroy him?

In his speech he said: " . . . If these were to be my last public words to our fellow-citizens of Montreal, as possibly they may be, and I accept them under the solemn consciousness of that fact, I would say let no conspirator divide or embitter you, but remember always that you are necessary to each other and that an honorable and honest unity is necessary to us all."

This man who had done so much for Confederation and Canadian unity was shot down and died at the door of his Ottawa boarding house on Sparks Street on April 7, 1868. A young Fenian, Patrick James Whelan, one of the Irish extremist determined to "free" Canada from Britain's yoke, was convicted of the crime and executed.

The Grammar of Existence

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Part 2: How to Tell a Winner From a Loser:

A winner takes big risks when he has much to gain; a loser takes big risks when he has little to gain and not much to lose.

A winner focuses; a loser sprays.

A winner has a healthy appreciation of his abilities, and a keen awareness of his limitations; a loser is oblivious both of his true abilities and his true limitations.

A winner plays the people more than the cards"; a loser plays the cards, and it might as well be solitaire.

A winner knows when the price of winning comes too high; a loser is overeager to win what he cannot handle or keep.

A winner knows that people will be kind if you give them the chance; a loser feels that people will be unkind if you give them the chance.

A winner takes a big problem and separates it into smaller parts so that it can be more easily manipulated; a loser takes a lot of little problems and rolls them together until they are unsolvable.

A winner walks when he can, and runs when he has to; a loser runs when he doesn't have to, and is out of breath when he should run.

A winner judges himself by the standard of excellence in his field; a loser judges himself by the standard of mediocrity in his field.

A winner tries never to hurt people, and does so only rarely, when it serves a necessary purpose; a loser never wants to hurt people intensionally, but does so all the time, without even knowing it.

A winner is sensitive to the atmosphere around him; a loser is sensitive only to his own feelings.

A winner handles his winnings both productively and prudently; a loser handles his winnings (when he has any) either profligately or miserly.

A winner uses amassing as a means to enjoying; a loser enjoys amassing as an end in itself — therefore, no matter how much the loser amasses, he never looks upon himself as a winner, and he never is.

A winner knows that the verb to be must precede the verb to have; a loser thinks that enough of the verb to have is what makes the verb to be — a fatal mistake in the grammar of existence.

Germany announced the start of unrestricted submarine warfare in war zones 50 years ago today—in 1917—which meant that any ship would be sunk without warning, whether armed or not and whether belligerent or neutral. The decision was taken as a desperate attempt to destroy Britain's food supply. It nearly succeeded, with 7 million tons of shipping were sunk in nine months. But it brought the United States into the war and ultimately brought about Germany's defeat.

1858 — The iron steamship Great Eastern was launched.

1956—U.S. President Truman announced he had ordered the hydrogen bomb to be built.

Fifty years ago today—in 1917—the German submarine fleet of 120 boats prepared to sink neutral ships headed for Britain; German troops attacked near Riga again.

Working Women

Toronto Star

The well-heeled businessman who wines and dines his customers can claim the cost as business expenses for tax purposes.

But the hard-pressed housewife working to help pay off the mortgage, or the divorced or deserted mother, can't deduct the cost of household help.

This is an injustice and undoubtedly is a strong deterrent against women playing a larger role in the economic life of the nation.

For many women, work is a necessity. But by the time they add the extra cost of a housekeeper, babysitter, day nursery or cleaning woman on top of the cost of transportation, meals and work clothes, their pay cheque has dwindled away to a few dollars.

Looking Ahead

Here we are almost into the month of February and Quinte area hobbyists and high school science buffs should be thinking ahead to April when the opportunity presents itself once again to demonstrate their prowess.

Sponsored by Rotary, the Science Fair and Hobby Show is being held at the Armouries on April 21-22. This is two weeks later than originally scheduled, in order to accommodate Centennial events, and prospective entrants are thus afforded a longer period to prepare.

As this is Centennial Year, here is an opportunity for students and hobbyists alike to make the 1967 exhibition the best one yet.

By Joseph C. Molner M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: What help can the symptom of belching be in diagnosis?

Several years ago my wife began to belch, accompanied by heartburn. The amount of her belching was fantastic.

Her doctor found a gall stone. The gall bladder was removed but in three days she resumed belching, although at a reduced rate. The heartburn returned.

Our doctor said belching is caused by air swallowed in eating, or is a nervous habit and the air for a second belch is swallowed at the time of the first belch. Something like that.

I don't buy that. We live in quiet retirement and nothing bothers us.

Would barium X-rays be of value in finding the trouble? — K. J.

You may not buy the idea of swallowed air, but it is common. Medical researchers have even trapped the gas from belches and analyzed it, finding it repeatedly to be atmospheric air.

We must grant, of course that there are other causes. It would appear that your wife's defective gall bladder had some consequences, since her trouble was partly relieved after the surgery.

X-rays should be taken to determine whether an ulcer is causing the heartburn or whether there is such a condition as spasm of the outlet of the stomach or a diverticulum of gullet or stomach where food can gather and ferment.

Hiatal hernia could be involved. Or stoppage of food in the upper digestive tract can lead to gas formation. Allergy to some common food, even such ordinary things as coffee or lettuce can be involved.

Thus careful X-ray and other studies may divulge some defect which can be remedied by sedative medication or diet.

But usually the repetitious belcher does prove to be an air-swallower — with or with out some other factor contributing.

The air-swallower hardly ever of course, is aware of doing it. Rapid eaters swallow air with their food. Folks who swallow nervously often acumulate a lot of air.

Some swallow little gulps of air in pauses while talking. Occasionally you can even catch them doing it — and then it becomes just a matter of breaking a habit.

Dear Dr. Molner: A sign in the "Y" by the ultra-vay lamp warns, "Limit exposure to 3 minutes," but there is no indication of the maximum number of three-minute periods. — B.B.

What kind of rays are they? If they are ultra-violet, I would assume that one time limit is to avoid being burned (as in sunburn) and that if you limit exposure to three minutes each day, no burn is likely, and there would be no limit to the number of days.

• • •

Dear Dr. Molner: How long after a cataract operation does a person have to keep from stooping or doing strenuous work? When can a person start normal activity again? — Mrs. E. Z.

There is no arbitrary time. It depends on your individual condition, and this is the sort of question that should always be addressed to the surgeon. Another doctor who has not examined you can only guess, and he might guess wrong.

Mine, Mill Merger Ends History of Violent Labor Action

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The independent International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers is engaged today in posting a final footnote to a 73-year saga of fierce and sometimes bloody labor progress as it merges with the United Steelworkers of America.

Re - entry of the roughneck hard-rock miners into the mainstream of American labor after years of standing alone was unlike its 38,000 members in the United States with more than 1,000,000 steelworkers.

Once the two unions fought bitter jurisdictional battles for membership. But now Steelworker President I. W. Abel says:

"Our basic objectives, our viewpoints and our attitudes are today pretty much the same."

Kenneth Smith, president of the Canadian section of Mine-Mill, said last week that its national executive will recommend against merger with the Steelworkers. The issue is expected to be discussed at a meeting of the Canadian leaders of Mine-Mill in Edmonton Feb. 17.

Mine-Mill has 20,000 members in Canada. The Steelworkers boast a Canadian membership of more than 200,000.

At Mine-Mill headquarters in a two-storey brick building in East Denver, yellowed and tattered volumes of Mine - Mill newspapers, magazines and other documents are being crated. Some will go to the University of Colorado's library collection of western lore, others to the Steelworkers' headquarters in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The records chronicle the turbulent history of a union founded in Butte, Mont., in 1893 when miners worked for $1 to $1.75 a day. The union's first goal was $3.50 a day for the hard-rock miners, who blast the ship ore from granite.

Into the crates at union headquarters go accounts of labor strife all but unheard of today —assassinations, lynchings, and other violence that marked the miners' history.

Also reflected in the records is the pioneering of Mine-Mill in winning the first eight-hour day law in the U.S., in Utah in 1896, and its fight against racial discrimination in employment, which goes back to 1912.

The miners were in and out of three labor coalitions before their 1949 expulsion from a fourth, the CIO, which they helped found. The charge, decided by miners' officials, was that the Mine-Mill leadership followed the Communist line.

In 1899, the Democratic governor of Idaho, Frank Steunenberg, called out National Guard troops to end a miners' strike. Six years later, out of office, Steunenberg was killed by a dynamite bomb attached to the gate of his sheep farm.

Arrested as the dynamiter was Harry Orchard, who claimed he had killed 27 persons as hired assassin for the miners' union. The union called him a company agent.

Charged with murder along with Orchard were three top officers of the union, including Secretary - Treasurer Haywood (Big Bill) Haywood. The union officials were cleared.

Orchard went to prison for life, complaining that he had been promised consideration for his testimony against Haywood and the others. He died in Idaho's state prison in 1954.

Despite Haywood's acquittal, organized labor deserted him. He fled to Russia to escape a prison sentence for subversion and died there in 1928.

The miners' union left the old American Federation of Labor in 1905 to become a founding member of the radical International Workers of the World, an organization that would become famous as the Wobblies.

Two years later, the miners pulled out, complaining their goal of "higher wages" and working conditions "clashed head on with the Wobblies' contempt for signed contracts and stability of industrial relations."

In 1911, the miners returned to the AFL.

In a 1913 strike against copper producers in Arizona, the union claimed 1,200 miners were herded into bull pens and then transported into New Mexico in 27 locked railway cattle cars.

Hundreds eventually won back their jobs through federal intervention. Involved for the government was a labor department aide named Felix Frankfurter, who one day would be a U.S. Supreme Court justice.

The Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers was one of eight unions expelled from the AFL in 1938, when they formed the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The miners' expulsion from the CIO came 11 years later.

In the 1950s and 1960s the union won dismissal of charges that it had filed false non-Communist affidavits with the National Labor Relations Board. Meanwhile, it was engaged in a battle against membership raids by the Steelworkers.

But now, with all this behind, A. C. Skinner, last president of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, describes the merger as "a new challenge and a new opportunity to contribute our vitality, our experience and our militancy to a new phase of history."

Food Processors Argue Ottawa Lobby Needed

HAMILTON (CP) — The Canadian food - processing industry, battered by consumer criticism and the Senate-Commons committee food-prices investigation, needs stronger representation in Ottawa, the president of the Canadian Food Processors Association said Monday.

Elmer Banting told delegates to the association's annual convention that food processing is a $7,000,000,000 industry in Canada, employing 1,250,000 persons, and is twice as big as the steel and pulp and paper industries.

The association cannot make a public case without influential backing, Mr. Banting said.

Mr. Banting suggested all concerns involved in food processing form an agency—The Canadian Food Council—which could work on legislation for packaging, advertising, orders, distribution problems and public education.

In another session, Llwelly a Smith, chairman of the board, said Canadian food processors may have more than the rising food price index to worry about —the contraceptive pill.

Two-year Study on Automation Calls for Radical Departures

OTTAWA (CP) — The Economic Council of Canada Monday recommended a far-reaching program of new labor-management negotiation to solve problems of unemployment arising out of introduction of automation in industry.

After two years of study, and extensive between the labor and management representatives on the 27-member advisory council, it said in a policy declaration:

—Management should give labor as long notice as possible of its adopting technological changes that would materially affect employment;

—Working through labor-management committees, employers and employees should prepare detailed plans of manpower adjustment to the new work procedures;

—If work forces have to be cut, voluntary separations, normal retirements and death should first be counted to reduce payroll numbers;

—Employers then should facilitate transfers to other jobs, and training and retraining to fit old employees to new job requirements;

—Employers should ensure that employee pension rights are vested, and easily carried from one job to another to increase labor mobility;

—Failing all else, employers should make generous severance payments to workers who have to be discharged, as well as benefits supplementing unemployment insurance and government mobility allowances.

Council Chairman John J. Deutsch said the government council's role is simply to set guidelines for subjects which should be normally a part of collective bargaining and contractual agreement.

BASIC PRINCIPLES.

"This is not a proposal for legislation, but a set of basic principles for what labor and management can themselves do. The more they can do themselves, the less there is need for third party intervention."

The guidelines are to be submitted to a meeting of labor and management representatives here on March 21-22. This annual national conference of labor - management relations was originally scheduled for Montreal but cancellation was cancelled because of a strike of Air Canada workers.

"Canada, with its open economy, must be ever conscious of the need to ensure that no impediments stand in the way of progress," Mr. Deutsch said in an introduction to the policy statement.

"To prevent change from taking place would be not only to deny ourselves the benefits which result from the process of change, but would undermine our competitive position in the international economy and eventually result in our slipping behind the pace of the industrialized world."

MAKES NEW JOBS

"In the long run," said the declaration of principles, "technological development increases employment, increases and living standards.

"It creates new jobs and new occupations through new processes and new products. It offers the possibility of shorter working hours with more leisure time and easier work."

Mr. Deutsch said the three-month notice clause in the statement was "a difficult one to put across" to the council, which includes both union leaders and presidents of major corporations. But, he added, both labor and management representatives on the council came to the view that both sides must do more forward planning for the conditions of rapid change."

Manpower in industry.

"Historically," the declaration said, "There have always been problems in working out a suitable accommodation between what management regarded as its prerogatives in running its business, and what the union regarded as its rights and duties in protecting the interests of its members.

"The problem has become much more difficult today under conditions of rapid change."

Alberta Plastics Industry Mushrooms

EDMONTON (CP) — Plastics Industrialist Clifford P. Bowes left Westlock, Alta., as a boy determined to become a chemical engineer.

In the 20-odd years since, Mr. Bowes, at 41, has earned his engineering degree and become a leader in Alberta's $35,000,000 plastics industry, where leaps-and-bounds expansion is considered normal growth.

He has parlayed Alberta's aggressive industrial development program, and three plastics firms, into a new plant considered one of the most versatile in the world.

When Russell Patrick, Alberta's industry minister, officially opened Engineered Plastics Ltd., in Edmonton recently, he termed it a milestone in Alberta's future as the "inland empire of North America."

Mr. Bowes said the reason he started, developed and sold three previous plants was for research.

He said in an interview that Alberta's future in plastics is assured only by the initiative and imagination of the industry.

When he started 15 years ago, the Alberta plastics industry amounted to "the square-root of nothing."

Alberta has the raw materials, inexpensive power is readily available and there are "few things that cannot be duplicated in plastic today."

The limits are unknown, he added. Some plastics were as strong as steel. These poly-resins were used in rockets and for some components in space capsules.

Mr. Bowes estimated that annual sales of Alberta plastics have grown from $190,000 in 1952, when it started, to $15,000,000 last year. He forecast sales of $100,000,000 in 15 years.

Less than $300,000 was invested in Alberta's plastics industry 15 years ago. Today there was an estimated $35,000,000.

If Alberta approved use of plastic pipe in construction, like many other provinces, the future "is fantastic," he said.

Plastic pipe already is being used for gas distribution, he said. In other provinces and in United States it was being used for underground power and telephone cables, plumbing and ventilation.

A U.S. firm is marketing plastic bathroom fixtures, including a bathtub-and-shower unit.

Mr. Bowes said manufacturers need only start production, get headed in the right direction with sales, then simply increase the number of marketable products.

Social Event in Barbados Has A Canadian Flavor

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados (CP)—One of the major social events of the season in this West Indies island has a Canadian flavor.

It's the Maple Leaf Ball organized annually by the Women's Canadian Club of Barbados in aid of local charities.

Visitors and islanders mingle at the gay pre-Lenten finale, being held this year at the Marine Hotel Feb. 11, dancing everything from the waltz and Charleston to the frug and native West Indian dances.

The Women's Canadian Club of Barbados is 35 years old. Originally affiliated with the clubs in Canada, it severed its ties about 20 years ago because of the distance. It was a long way for speakers to come from Canada and for Barbadian representatives to go to attend conferences.

"We started as a social club," says Winifred E. Smith, the president, a native American who lived in Windsor, Ont., before moving to Barbados 20 years ago. "Later we went into charity and since the beginning have given a total of more than $100,000 to various causes.

"We have about 45 members. All have lived in Canada for five years or more although a number of are American citizens. Many are winter members only, paying dues but absent most of the year. We have only about 30 resident members who do most of the work.

"The only time we go to the public for money is at the Maple Leaf Ball. Some years we have made as much as $4,000."

Features of this year's ball will include a fashion show of the creations of Mrs. John Wren, a club member who with her husband runs a shop in Bridgetown, and a raffle for a white fox fur stole donated by a Montreal furrier who staged a fur fashion show at last year's ball.

Many of the resident members of the club are married to Canadians in business in Barbados.

Mrs. A. J. Toussaint, the treasurer, is married to the manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia branch on the island. Other members of the executive are Mrs. Roy Oliver, past president, who comes from Winnipeg, and Mrs. L. Bousseau, secretary, from Montreal.

Charities assisted by the club include a home for retarded children, an old women's home, the British Red Cross, Salvation Army, the local association for the blind and dead and church charities.

Defendant Changes Opinion When Woman Lawyer Wins

EDMONTON (CP)—"You defend me?" a man charged with a traffic offence asked dubiously when he first saw his defence counsel.

Miss Cormack, a solicitor with the attorney - general's department, said in an interview that people "still raise their eyebrows" when she walks into a courtroom gowned in black.

The daughter of Gordon Cormack, Northern Alberta district court judge, she broke an invisible barrier late last year when she became the first female Crown prosecutor in Alberta.

Although the department had female solicitors before, and one acts as counsel for the local juvenile and family court, none had prosecuted in open court.

But Miss Cormack made up her mind long ago to enter law school and apply to the attorney-general's department for a job.

She wanted to do courtroom work and said she never even thought of going into private practice as the few other female lawyers in Edmonton tend to do, "You get stuck on mortgages," she explained.

ENJOYS COURT WORK

In her few months with the attorney-general's office she has handled trial cases, district court appeals, bail forfeitures and welfare cases.

She says all of them mean court experience, and she loves every minute in court.

"I didn't twist her arm or anything," said her father.

He was appointed to the Judgeship in 1963, the same year she graduated from the University of Alberta with Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Law degrees.

She then articled for a year with an Edmonton firm, was admitted to the bar, and took a two-month vacation to visit Australia and New Zealand.

Did she think magistrates and judges might rule against her because she's a woman? "I should hope not," she said.

Abortion Laws Are Called 'Patently Unjust' in Brief

OTTAWA (CP)—Calling Canadian abortion laws "patently unjust," the president of the National Council of Women of Canada asked the prime minister for "clarification and amendment" of abortion legislation during appearance of the association's brief to cabinet members Monday.

Mrs. Ellis H. Steen of Vancouver, president of the 700,000-member women's organization, asked for a royal commission to investigate the matter.

Prime Minister Pearson, who with 20 members of the cabinet met with the NCW delegation for almost two hours, said he is "not sure a royal commission is needed or even desirable."

He said abortion reform might be included in amendments to the Criminal Code to be considered later in this session of Parliament.

The NCW brief urged that more women be appointed to represent Canada on the United Nations secretariat especially in sections dealing with the education of women.

The prime minister said that Canada wasn't getting its share of UN appointments, "though we pay our share of the bills."

The question of appointments was under discussion with the UN. The initiative to be appointed to the secretariat rested with the women. They must apply to the government, which would then decide whether to send them or not.

A request by the NCW to have salaries of regular part-time household help made tax deductible, would have to wait for an answer until the Carter royal commission on taxation reported, Revenue Minister Benson said.

Another of the brief's 13 resolutions urged that patients suffering from mental illness and tuberculosis have their treatment covered by the federal health insurance plan.

Health Minister MacEachen said that although the problem had been discussed with provincial health ministers, inclusion of these patients was "quite unlikely" until the cost sharing situation was clarified with the provincial governments.

The prime minister repeated his promise to make an announcement on a commission on the status of women in the next few days.

Tartans Are Designed to Represent Ten Provinces

LONDON (CP)—Clan - conscious Scots who treasure the tradition of family tartans are having a bad time of it in the with 11 Canadian-woven tartans fashion world...

First the French seized upon it, "le tartan" became a wild fire cult, and the boulevards of Paris blazed with multi-colored type of garment from tuxedos checks that never greeed a highland chieftain's plaid.

Now a Quebec textile firm, Pik Mills Ltd., has bravely plunged into the British mvrket: designed to represent Canada —the "Canada" pattern in red, blue and green — has been chosen as the official tartan for the Pan-American Games being held in Winnipeg this summer, and another in red, white and blue has been adopted by the First Canadian Winter Games Association in Quebec.

The colors, taken largely from provincial coats of arms, also are intended to evoke the prairie wheatfields, lakes and forests of Canada's landscape.

ON SALE IN CANADA

Centennial symbolism extends even to the weave of the cloth, each pattern containing two lines of 12 threads to represent the provinces and territories, and the main square of each pattern being woven of 100 threads to signify the anniversary of Confederation.

The tartans, already on sale in Canada, are expected to be in British stores soon.

Fashion highlights of the London show, organized by Canadian-born actor Robert Beatty, a native of Hamilton, and attended by High Commissioner in Lionel Chevrier, were a trouser suit in green and blue "Manitoba" tartan and a couple of jaunty mini-skirts labelled "Alberta" and "Quebec."

First Scottish reaction was predictably frosty.

Dame Flora Macleod of Macleod said the tartan was "a family thing" and the idea of 11 designed by someone not even of Scottish descent -the designer is British-Canadian—was "absolutely awful."

The Lord Lyon King of Arms in Edinburgh, ultimate authority on Scottish heraldry and clan insignia, ruled they are not tartans at all but "trade checks."

Acts Out All Hostilities Behind Wheel of Car

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why has no one labelled the husband's hazardous and nerve-shredding driving for what it is — the 20th century version of wife-beating?

ANN LANDERS

I'd like to describe a daily drama and I hope the players recognize themselves before the lids finally come down on their caskets.

A couple goes for a drive. The outing becomes an occasion for the husband to act out all his hostilities and aggressions. Once behind the wheel he seizes the opportunity to get even with his wife for every rotten thing she has ever said to him — real or imagined.

Risky driving has become a socially acceptable technique for punishing a wife for whatever is wrong in a man's life. Maybe he hates his mother, or his boss, or his job, or more often than not, his own inadequacies could be making him miserable. But it's the wife who catches the brunt of it every time.

I suggest that couples who are constantly at war because of the husband's driving find out what is really bothering him and settle the problem at home. If torture is the objective, the husband should admit it, and go out and buy a set of thumbscrews at his friendly, neighborhood medieval museum. Wife-torturing on our streets and highways is costing society too much. — SURVIVOR.

DEAR SURVIVOR: The experts in the field of traffic safety tells us that an important factor in many serious accidents is hostility. Sometimes the anger is directed at the world in general — or it may be aimed at the wife-passenger, as you suggest. There's also the possibility that the wild driver may have a subsconscious desire to kill himself.

People who are mad at themselves, their relatives or the world should stay at home and hammer away at a punching bag or go to a gym and play handball.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I went together for six years before we married so we knew each other pretty well. The only problem was religious differences. He wouldn't accept my religion and I wouldn't accept his, so we were married by a judge. All his family came to the wedding and so did mine.

Out of the blue my father-in-law decided that I do not exist. He refuses to speak to me in public or even when he comes to our home. When I told my husband it hurt his said, "You know how my father is. Just go into another room."

If my father-in-law wishes to ignore me in public, that's bad enough, but I do feel that my husband should speak up and not let his father treat me so shabbily in our own home.

Should I make an issue of it? — BEWILDERED.

DEAR B.: You have made an issue of it and it hasn't done any good. Obviously your husband is not emotionally equipped to stand up to his father or he would have done so. It's downright uncivilized to refuse to speak to a person whose hospitality you accept and I sympathize with you. But swallow it and keep quiet because your alternative might be a shattered marriage and it's too big a price to pay.

Apple Pearl Tapioca

By MARY MOORE

As you know, Marianne and Herbie and family have returned from Germany and are posted to Victoria, BC. I saw them off, after a wonderful 20-day visit, on The Continental, and now this house feels empty.

The new things I learned from their visit, were the amounts of food four children from 10 to five years can consume.

I made the following Apple Tapioca Pudding for seven of us and did not have enough. In addition the children were not familiar with "fish eye" or pearl tapioca and two of them carefully picked out each "lump", put it aside and ate only the puddingy liquid and hard sauce! Tapioca to them is little minute-size tapioca.

I think it is a homey winter pudding and I like to make one each year. My fellow editors in this audience will welcome it because they remember it from their child hood, too.

APPLE PEARL TAPIOCA WITH HARD SAUCE
(Serves 5 or 6)

½ cup pearl tapioca
2½ cups cold water
½ tsp. salt
2-3 cup sugar
3 med.-sized apples pared and sliced into 16ths (1 used Spsa)
4 whole cloves
½ tsp. vanilla

Soak pearl tapioca overnight (or for 4 hours) in the cold water. (I used the top of my stainless steel double boiler.) Place over boiling water in bottom of double boiler and cook 3 or 4 hours, covered or until tapioca is tender right to the centre core. Remove from heat and add salt, sugar, sliced apples, whole cloves and vanilla. Turn into baking dish and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 min. or until apples are tender.

Serve with generous spoonful of —

HARD SAUCE

Beat together until light and smooth 1-3 cup butter or margarine (room temperature), 1 cup unsifted icing sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, ½ tsp. vanilla.

Pile in attractive shallow serving dish, sprinkle top with nutmeg and chill until hard.

NOTE: Don't worry about the cloves — anyone who sees one in his pudding can fish it out.

Many Century Old Toys To Be Shown

Of course, as centennial year goes on, you'll see all sorts of favors and decorations in stores. But some investigating the fun items and play things provided for the youngsters of that era, one cannot help but be struck by the comparison between then and now. Manufactured toys were rare and simple homemade items sufficed to amuse the children who weren't helping with the chores.

Popular party decorations were strings of popcorn and cranberries, and paper ropes made from bits of tinsel. Gingerbread toys and flat cookie houses decorated with icing and peel were party favorites.

Simple favors for the guest needed a clever man-of-the-house to make. For the girls, a small flat penny-doll was cut out of wood and she made clothes for it with scraps of material — and for the boys, a carved willow whistle. (Remember Tom Sawyer?)

Good old Pomander balls were in vogue in those days, too. The youngsters were often supplied with a quantity of cloves and an orange and they made their own spicy, fragrant favor to take home and hang in the closet or place amongst their clothes in the bureau drawer, to ward off moths.

If you would like to make one, my friends, I have the instructions for you — do you think you might have a hint for me? — Susanna

Never Has Had True Friend During Fifteen Years of Life

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: During my entire life of 15½ years I have never had a true friend. People have told me that I have a wonderful personality and good manners. I like people very much, no matter what race or origin, and I am not at all shy.

Practically every time I go on a bus I chat with someone, hoping that I may be cheering them up a bit. Casual acquaintances spill their problems on my shoulders and I try to help even if there is a chance that I could get hurt.

Isn't a true friend a person who you can tell your problems to without getting a slap, someone who really wants to help you and you can help them? I know you can't go to a store to buy one, but could I meet one through my qualities, and if I could, How!—An Only Child.

Dear Child: Once there was a motto on our wall which read: "A friend is one who knows all about you and loves you just the same." Seemed to me a bit negative; but it has the same idea as your definition. And a good friend is rare and precious.

An only child can certainly be a lonely one, until she clicks with a pal. Just be sure those acquaintances who pour it all out don't get the idea you are nosy.

Friendships often develop around a common interest: so keep in the swim. With that friendly heart, you'll find a kindred spirit, sooner or later.

Dear Doris: Grandma and Grandpa are pretty old now, and they just aren't up to celebrating with the rest of us when the family is together, times like Christmas. So my daughter, who lives with my husband and me and our four children, has another way of fixing things.

They live in the next block. She makes up a course at a time and sends runners over, taking turns at carrying things. One child stays to visit until the next course. Each is proud of having a turn.

She is taking a leaf out of her own mother's book. Years ago Granny would send up a tray to her mother, sick in bed, and detail one child or guest to sit with Great-Granny as she ate. — Dulce

Dear Dulce: Wonder full! That way Granny and Grampa not only share the food but the fun. The most worthwhile gifts after all are those in which the giver offers a little bit of himself.

Long, Tedious Debate on Armed Forces' Unification Under Way

OTTAWA (CP) — A controversial defence bill that would submerge the identities of the navy, army and air force in a single, one-uniform force was attacked anew by opposition spokesmen in the Commons Monday.

Defence Minister Hellyer sat quietly at his desk as the emotion - charged debate resumed and critics tore away at his pet proposal, insisting him personally for introducing it.

Commons attendance dived, indicating a long and tedious debate in prospect. Some MPs estimated it would take at least two weeks for the speeches to run out and allow a vote on second reading—the key stage in which bills are approved in principle.

The issue was thrashed out for two weeks last fall during debate on an interim supply bill and on Dec. 7 when Mr. Hellyer delivered a 15,000-word speech to introduce the motion for second reading.

Opposition MPs Monday repeated their demand that hearings on the bill be held by the special defence committee before the House is asked to approve it in principle. The government has insisted on following the regular procedure under which committee study follows second reading.

The public galleries were almost empty and attendance on the floor at times sank close to the minimum 20 needed for a quorum.

Marcel Lambert (PC—Edmonton West) led off the attack, completing a speech he had started before the debate adjourned Dec. 7.

The former Conservative veterans minister, taken prisoner in the 1942 raid on Dippe, called Mr. Hellyer's unification ideories "unadulterated piffle".

There had been a suggestion that greater loyalty would result.

"I'm afraid the minister shows how woefully short on experience he was in his country's service," Mr. Lambert said.

"It is insulting to the men who are in the services now," chimed in Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre), a gunner in the First World War and commander of an army regiment in the Second World War.

NDP defence critic Harold Winch asked there is utter confusion about the future role of Canadian forces. Mr. Hellyer had been too dogmatic and dictatorial in applying new policies, first of command integration and now full unification.

"How much better it would have been if he had learned to be a little more co-operative and realized that he is not the only one interested in our defence forces. . . ."

A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) said his five-member group supports the unification plan. However, the minister had caused a major defence controversy by being so close-mouthed about the details.

He asked whether serving officers are required to support unification.

"We have not required anyone who is serving to make statements in favor of this policy," the defence minister replied.

John M. Matheson (PC — Leeds) said Parliament in the last three years had been given more information on defence matters than ever before. The government had shown it has the courage to adapt to advances in military science.

Douglas Harkness, onetime Conservative defence minister who quit the Diefenbaker cabinet in a dispute over nuclear arms, said the unified force is aimed at United Nations duty and will be useless for the direct defence of Canada.

The government's defence policies had eroded Canadian participation in NATO and North American defence, the real keys to keeping world peace.

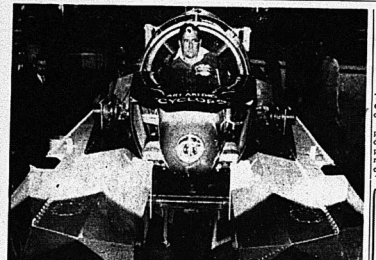
Michael Forrestall (PC—Halifax) criticized the reduction of defence establishments in the Maritimes where, he said, the economy is heavily dependent on military spending.

Start of the debate was delayed more than an hour by a hassle over Indian affairs.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) touched it off, charging that a party has been lost in getting to the bottom of a "festering discontent" among Indians about the way the government treats them. He blamed bungling by the Commons committee supposed to do the job.

Milton Klein (L — Montreal Cartier), chairman of the committee in question, blasted back at Mr. Howard, saying the NDP member wasn't co-operative on committee affairs.

Several MPs criticized the way a proposed tour of Indian communities had been arranged. The itinerary was rigged by the Indian affairs branch, they said.



Speedboat on Wheels

Veteran racing driver Art Arfons sits in the cockpit of a jet-propelled catamaran which he designed and built and with which he hopes to break the world water speed record. The strange-looking boat, part of which was once a racing car, retains two huge front tires. Arfons' theory being that when the boat lifts from the water at planing speed of 150 to 200 miles per hour they'll absorb the shock of the rough water. (AP Wirephoto)

Review of Truscott Case Completed; May Be Month Before Verdict Given

OTTAWA (CP)—Has Steven Truscott been in jail for the last eight years for a crime he didn't commit?

That's the question the Supreme Court of Canada must decide following Monday's completion of a government-ordered review of Truscott's murder conviction.

It may take a month or more before the nine justices hand down their opinion on the 1959 verdict of a Goderich, Ont., jury which found a 14-year-old boy guilty of the rape-murder of Lynne Harper, 12, in bush near the air force base at Clinton, Ont.

A best-selling book, raising the possibility of a miscarriage of justice in Truscott's case, prompted the government to order the review. It consisted of six days of taking new evidence and four days of final arguments by the lawyers.

The court has three avenues open to it. It can acquit Truscott, order a new trial, or uphold the verdict.

Medical evidence at the trial said Lynne Harper was raped and murdered about 8:45 p.m. June 9, 1959. The Crown brought forward evidence that Truscott was with her at the time.

Crown lawyer William Bowman, director of prosecutions for the Ontario attorney-general's office, asserted that Truscott lied about his whereabouts after June 9. He said if Truscott had a reasonable explanation that wasn't consistent with his guilt, he had failed to give it.

The Crown also said Truscott's application for parole in 1964 contained an admission of guilt. In it, Truscott asked for "a chance to prove that one dreadful mistake does not mean I will ever make another."

Defence lawyer Arthur Martin took strong exception to the time of death being established by stomach contents. He said the additional evidence at the review points to a later hour of death.

Visual tests taken by Toronto private detectives showed Truscott could not make out yellow license plates from the bridge where he said he saw the girl get into the car.

Mr. Martin said it was probable that either a person in the car was impersonating the girl met later, strangled her and later drove her body to the bush where it was found.

Mr. Martin noted that at a Supreme Court review on the Steinberg appeal, Truscott said he was convinced his application for parole would not be favorably considered unless he stopped protesting he was innocent.

ASKS ACQUITTAL

Summing up, Mr. Martin said the onus of guilt wasn't reasonable on the basis of evidence and asked that Truscott's conviction be quashed.

If this wasn't done, he said the additional evidence proving errors in the original trial.

Mr. Bowman said no new evidence had been given at the review that would affect the jury's decision.

Truscott's sworn evidence wasn't worthy of belief, said the Crown.

Insurance Failure 1st In 40 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — North American General Insurance Corp. is the first federally chartered insurance company to fail in 40 years, Finance Minister Sharp said Monday night.

The record was remarkable, he told Alcide Simard (Credit-iste—Lac St. Jean) in a Commons adjournment debate.

Mr. Simard had raised the question of full compensation for those who suffer fire losses and find out that the company insuring them has failed.

Mr. Sharp said he was apparently referring to North American General Insurance, a subsidiary of the Prudential Finance Corp.

Prudential Finance had been chartered by the Province of Ontario and the federal government had no control over it.

Every Effort Is Being Made To Nab Bombers

OTTAWA (CP)—Every effort is being made to apprehend those responsible for the "perfidious" bombings during the weekend of Yugoslavia's embassy in Ottawa and its consulate in Toronto, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons Monday.

He said he has received a preliminary report of the investigations by Ottawa and Toronto police in co-operation with the RCMP.

Replying to NDP Leader Douglas, Mr. Pearson said the government will pay compensation to Yugoslavia for the damage caused. This was part of an obligation to protect Embassies of foreign countries in Canada, however, he would have to study further the question raised by Mr. Douglas of compensation to adjoining properties damaged in the explosions.

DESERONTO — About 100 persons from this area were the first in Eastern Ontario to view the dolls representing figures in Canadian history dressed in the costumes of that era. The dolls will be in the district for a while, and are now in the care of Mrs. Stuart Howell of Belleville, district representative of the Centennial Planning Branch of the Department of Tourism and Information which prepared the exhibit.

The opportunity to see them was afforded by the Ladies' Guild of St. Mark's Anglican Church in Deseronto last week, with the addition of tea and dessert. This is the Centennial project of this organization. Peoples from Belleville, Napanee and Kingsford, as well as those locally took advantage of the opportunity.

Arrangements have already been made to have the dolls on view in the public school November 4 and it is expected that they will be in demand at other schools because of their educational value.

The move is aimed at protecting consumers, particularly those coming to Montreal for Expo 67, from the "voracious appetite" of some restaurants who might want to profit exressively from the influx of visitors, he said.

Pearson Wants to Know Robarts' Parley Plans

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson has sent a polite but pointed letter to Premier Robarts asking what the Ontario government has in mind on its proposal for a federal-provincial conference on Confederation, government sources said Monday.

They said the letter points out that the normal procedure for a premier wanting federal - provincial talks is to bring the matter before the prime minister, who then can consult other premiers.

The letter was sent Friday, two days after Mr. Robarts' government unveiled its plan for a "confederation of tomorrow" conference in the speech from the throne opening the Ontario legislature.

The informants said the decision to send the letter reflected some concern in Ottawa over the way the Ontario invitation was made.

Only the prime minister's office has the power to call a federal-provincial conference, they said.

The matter was discussed briefly in cabinet, they added, and there was a feeling among some ministers that Mr. Robarts was making a grandstand play in what probably will be an election year in Ontario.

The Ontario proposal did not specifically mention a constitutional conference but said the meeting should discuss "the future course of our federal system of government."

It said Ontario, as one of the founding provinces of Confederation, could appropriately provide the "inspiration and setting for such discussions."

Premier Robarts said in an interview Monday night the letter he received from Mr. Pearson was marked confidential and "so I have no comment to make on it."

On his own suggestions for the conference he said he felt the conference he proposed would be "a very healthy thing for the country."

At the time he made the proposal he expected no constitutional discussion at the conference but rather general discussion of the state of Confederation and the direction it could take.

At no time did he envisage any changes in the British North America Act arising out of the discussions.

PCs Want Time to Eat

OTTAWA (CP)—A bid by the Conservatives to restore meal breaks to the Commons' work week was turned down by the government Monday, stirring a brief spat between government and opposition front-benchers.

Gordon Churchill (PC—Winnipeg South Centre) presented a motion to amend the rules on sitting hours, allowing a two-hour supper break on Tuesdays and Tuesday, a one-hour supper break on Thursdays and a 90-minute luncheon adjournment on Fridays.

The Commons had dropped meal adjournments as part of a new rules procedure introduced on an experimental basis in 1965 and continued in the 1966 session.

WAUPOOS (Staff) — Commercial enterprise may have its ups and downs, but for Kurt Kaiser the more eggs his business lays the better.

In fact, it's basic to his success.

Last week he took delivery of 9,000 more chickens to complete the newest, most sophisticated hen-run in the area.

With their arrival, he's set to go into full operation with 30,000 chickens at his 300-acre Indian Point farm, east of here on Lake Ontario.

At peak, his feathered production workers should be contributing between 26,000 and 27,000 eggs daily for the major national chain store operation with whom Kurt is contracted.

Like most things in farming these days, traditional terms don't aptly describe the function. In Kurt's case "chicken-run" is also something of an also-ran phrase.

Hundreds of cages, housing three to four birds, tier on tier, stretch the length of the building in four aisles. The eggs, deposited in runnels, are easily gathered by trolley from the various levels.

As in all chicken operations, the emphasis is on housekeeping — cleaning and feeding. In this case, machinery and basic-building design, makes light of the chore.

At the Kaiser farm is an apparatus that not only spreads feed outside the cages, but simultaneously swipes floor boards on each tier clean, dropping the daily residue into a concrete channel below each aisle.

The push of a button releases a flushing system which then floods the channels clean.

Temperatures also are controlled. While each bird is actually its own battery unit — the combined body heat of the 30,000 providing sufficient warmth for the entire chicken colony — thermostatically-controlled fans keep the temperature at a normal 57 degrees.

Under such conditions the chickens now will start reaching full production in a month or so, Kurt says.

The young farmer's enterprise, however, is no sudden departure. It's based on a solid agricultural background. In fact, family connections with farming span a millenium.

The branch of his father's family has its roots in a farm near Dortmund, Germany, which has been handed down to the next-of-kin for 1,000 years.

The new-world transplantation of the family tradition was seeded by his father August Kaiser, who started the Indian Point farm in the 1930s.

From mixed farming, the elder Kaiser gradually turned to egg production until it was a full-time occupation by the 40s.

High-point of the enterprise came in 1965-62 when he expanded to the Belleville area, launching a similar production just west of Belleville. Some time ago, it was purchased by land developers, but is still in operation after being leased back to the family.

"What we have now is two farms of equal capacity," explains Kurt.

The Belleville unit is run by his brother Eric, a graduate of RMC who returned to farming after graduation, and for the forseeable future both operations will remain separate.

The reasons, among others, are economic, since it guards against total loss should the blocks be hit by natural or biological disaster.

"You don't have your eggs in one basket, so to speak," quipped Kurt.

Combined production of both units is big business — which can bear big dividends.

"There's a higher risk in this egg business — and like most things with a higher risk there's the possibility of greater returns," says Kurt.

"It's 10 per cent luck and 90 per cent management. There is an element of luck — and in my case my luck was having a father who knew what he was doing."

Despite the size of his operation he firmly holds that quantity is no substitute for quality. In fact, a farmer can do well with a much smaller operation — as long as he watches the quality of his production.

"It's strictly competitive and the key to the thing is to do a better job than average. Size has no direct bearing on it. It's entirely the job you do."

The cycle calls for a six-month growing period and 12 months production. After that they are disposed among soup canners and pre-cooked food processors.

Does the long egg-and-I association affect his eating habits?

Kurt says he never has the feeling of taking his work to the dinner table. He eats no more nor less than the typical diner.

It's collection time at Kurt Kaiser's big egg-production unit near Waupoos — and the size of the operation also spells big business. Young helper above is using a trolley for the round-up, one of the many techniques a modern farmer needs to keep ahead — and keep his chickens at full capacity.

Hydro Rink Planning Playoff Competition

TRENTON — An Ontario Hydro rink from the Trenton Industrial League won top honors in the Eastern Region annual hydro bonspiel in Brockville on Saturday, making a first for Trenton.

The rink, skipped by Trenton District Operating Supervisor, E. W. Sutton will represent the Eastern Ontario region in the provincial bonspiel at New Liskard on March 10.

Sharing honors for the O. S. Luney trophy were P and C technician Ralph Magnor as vice-skip; Bill Menzies, Trenton-Frankford operator, second and district engineer Jim Schultz, lead.

Winter Arrives at A Rural Retreat

The Garden County of Prince Edward holds many a peach of a picture for the passerby to recall — even in winter. Typical of many a quiet, scenic nook is this view near Demorestville on the high shore road from Crofton, with the countryside lying in the folds of winter's snow, dappled by evergreens.

Trenton Bid Vetoed To Buy Post Office

Trenton Mayor James MacDonald said today that town council members were not going to "sit on their hands" following an announcement that the Ontario Municipal Board had rejected as premature their application for permission to buy the former town post office as part of an urban renewal scheme.

Mayor MacDonald said the rejection may have come about as a result of a technicality.

The board report, released today, said a planning consultant produced a plan calling for demolition of the building except for its clock tower, and for creation of a public square on the site.

However, the report noted that Trenton town council had neither approved the plan nor retained the consultant who drew up the plan.

In a telephone interview from his office, Mayor MacDonald said he had retained the consultant involved, adding "the mayor surely has some authority, within reason".

The mayor said the consultant's report had been completely endorsed, upon submission to council and the town planning board.

Trenton town council has expressed interest in the property since December, 1964, and several months ago was given tertiary refusal rights on the building, after the Federal and Provincial governments.

Two former Trenton aldermen, Gerald Weaver and Joseph Gould, submitted a bid of $41,506 for the building to the municipal board after town council had published the fact that $40,000 of its budget had been set aside for the purchase of the building.

Town council duplicated this bid in its submission to the municipal board.

Mr. Weaver refused comment on the municipal board's decision, while Mr. Gould was unavailable.

Council had proposed paying for the building over a five-year period, through debentures and a direct tax levy.

TRENTON — A Trenton family of seven were rendered homeless today by a fire that broke out around 11 a.m. in their 80-year-old home.

Trenton Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said the fire started in a mattress in an upstairs bedroom of the John Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald MacDonald and their five children.

He commented on the interior wiring of the four - room semi-detached house, but said the exact cause of the outbreak has not been determined.

News in Brief

MUSHMOUTH REPORTS

Dear Boss:

The mainland dogsled mushed into the motel this morning with the mail and brought the sad news that my offices to help the "Battle of the Beauties" tonight in Memorial Arena had been rejected.

Shucks, boss, I was only trying to help out the expences. I offered to act as referee, trainer and rubber-downer for both teams, but I got the brush-off.

Besides, boss, I was prepared to avert what could turn into a civil war over there in Little Spain. There's no foolin' about this puck-chasing minuet of the mini-skirts being a grudge game. I'm told these gals won't use the same perfume and other cosmetics the others do, and they tend not to fawn for their wigs so that their hair-dressers won't give away any secrets.

I don't know how true this is but I'm told the South Marysburgh Green Berets are sending over a detachment for protection purposes and that the Picton "Amazin's" have sent out a call to the Hasty Pees for a like reason.

To keep the peace I was ready to have the gals park their girdles, corsets, bustles, wigs and whatever other paraperanalia women keep their assistants together with in the dressing rooms. I was willing to concede a point on the bustle issue or relief of impact in case of derriere one-point landings.

Being a married man with 19 kids I was willing to referee because I would not be tempted to watch the beautiful curves of an onrushing forward or give an undeserved penalty to a cute little hockey cut up because she wanted time out to powder her nose.

And I would be stern with the babes that do become a penalty, I would send them to the sin-bin immediately and not go into a huddle with her, "Listen dearie, I'm afraid that last high-stick clip was a bit severe. I guess that means you're retired for two minutes for now but we'll try and do better next time. Incidentally, babe, your seams are crooked."

I do not believe, boss, that the powers-that-be of the Belleville Mod-Hawks will be accusing the game tonight for I doubt if any of the self-padded female athletes could make the grade.

There would be the dressing room problem and I can't imagine Mo's sitting there with towel-wrapped heads bowed while the blonde creatre trips gaily to the shower. Nor would the players have to worry about what their wives might think if they stayed late at the arena "to show our new forwards (five-foot-two, eyes of blue) a few tricks."

Fan-wise it could be a great success. It would bring out the wives, not to watch their sexy sports car figures but to watch for any odd gleams in the hubby's eyes, gleams that she is beginning to miss.

No, boss, once a lady athlete gets out of the house its darned hard to get her back. It would be better for her to use her clipping arm with a plate instead of a hockey stick even if she did bounce a piece on your head occasionally.

Besides lady hockey players would have the goalies on the spot because they could get better results than they could get with a stick. There's no goalie living who could stop their shots if they put the eyes on their calves — and you may be sure he would.

And if the gals are victims of cheap penalties or border line ones they can always turn and slug the referee. Of course if they promise to do that, they can have my vote.

So don't miss tonight's fandango of the femmes, boss. In fact I suggest that if a goalie is hurt that you don a Mother Hubbard dress, a polka-dot shirt, three bustles — two forward and one aft — and go out there and pinch-hit. Imagine the fun you'll have if a buxom 180-pounder skates in close, and hands you a body-check.

Mikita Heads For Awards Record!

★★★★★ First For Three?

MONTREAL (CP) — Stan Mikita, Chicago Black Hawks high-scoring centre, is the leading candidate for the Most Valuable Player Award and the Lady Byng Trophy, the National Hockey League announced today.

The 26-year-old forward led the voting for the two trophies which took places at the mid-way point in the season. He also heads the NHL scoring race for the Art Ross Trophy.

He would be the first player in the history of the NHL to win three individual trophies in the same season.

In addition, Mikita is destined to be the centre on the league's first all-star team, barring a complete collapse in the second half of the schedule.

The poll, taken among sports writers and broadcasters in the six NHL cities, gave Mikita 84 points toward the Hart Trophy, awarded to the player judged most valuable to his team, 48 more than goalie Ed Giacomin of New York, the runner-up.

Mikita received 66 points toward the Lady Byng Memorial Trophy, 25 more than New York's Rod Gilbert, who was second.

The Lady Byng Trophy is awarded to the player judged to have exhibited "the best type of sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct combined with a high standard of playing ability" during the season.

Veteran defenceman Harry Howell of New York Rangers leads the list in the results of voting for the James Norris Memorial Trophy for best all-round defenceman while Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins heads the race for the Calder Memorial Trophy, awarded to the best NHL rookie of the year.

The leader in each award category receives $250 from the league. The leader for the second half also receives $250 after a similiar vote taken at the end of the regular schedule.

The award winners for the entire season are those who compile the highest combined total. They receive $1,000 each. The over-all runners-up get $500. Mikita had acquired only four minutes in penalties in the first half of the season. His total after 43 games is eight minutes.

He is scoring at a pace that threatens the record 97 points collected by team-mate Bobby Hull last season. He now has 64 points, 17 more than Detroit's Norm Ullman in the race for the Art Ross Trophy.

He has never won either the Hart or the Lady Byng, but won the Art Ross in 1963-64 and 1964-65.

Howell, leading candidate for the Norris trophy, is a 15-year veteran in the NHL. He was a unanimous choice for the first team defence position in the all-star voting for the first half of the season.

Orr, only 18, has collected seven goals and 22 assists in his first regular NHL season. Last week he collected enough votes to gain a berth on the second all-star team.

Following are the results of the voting for each award.

SACO Stays Put

Realtors Cling To Top

A couple of hard - fought one - goal decisions failed to change the order of standing in the Quinte Hockey League last night.

Grant Realty hung to first place, despite being outplayed, with a ragged 3-2 nod over Ter - Haar Daubers.

Grant's can wrap up first place on the second - last week of the schedule by defeating SACO in what should provide the hardest-fought battle of the season. That game is at 8.00 next Monday.

Gary Genereaux potted the lone Stinson - Horlock goal, unassisted.

Grant's stayed ahead all night but it was tight. They got goals from Court Brailey, Hugh Petrie and Bill Lattimer. Terry Casselman, Maurice "Moe" Switzer, Merv Thompson and Earl "Sonny" MacDonald had assists.

Donnie Moore scored one Ter-Haar goal and assisted on the other by Hubert Pointer. Ron Urch also had an assist.

Penalties were plentiful in this game with the winners taking the lion's share. Indicted were fighting majors and a game misconduct to Polesky of Ter - Haar, plus misconducts to Grant's Howard Skellis and the Daubers' Harold Burgett.

Ellis Midgets Came Close

Could Close Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Dr. F. J. Milne, head of large animal surgery at the Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph, said Monday that if a horse disease called swamp fever ever reached epidemic proportions it could close Ontario's race-tracks.

The Ontario government, which makes $10,000,000 annually from racing doesn't spend a penny on swamp research, Dr. Milne told delegates to the annual meeting of the Ontario Veterinary Association.

He explained later that equine infectious anemia, commonly known as swamp fever, is caused by a virus that attacks red blood cells, with resulting anemia, progressive weakness and wasting away.

Dr. Milne explained that there is no diagnostic test which is 100-per-cent reliable and no treatment or vaccine.

"One or two years ago the equine industry was on the point of pushing the panic button. The answer is we must have help, first in developing a thoroughly effective diagnostic test."

Mechanical Golfer ? What's New

CLEVELAND (AP)—Scientists have worked for two years and spent more than $250,000 to create a robot that swings a golf club just the way the best professionals do.

In Palm Beach Gardens, Fla. Monday, the mechanical golfer demonstrated its artistic swing at the Professional Golfers Association Quarter Century Club Tournament.

The device is powered by compressed air and has a light-sensing device to measure club head velocity. A camera records accurately-timed pictures of a specially-marked ball after it leaves the club head.

Testing of design changes in club shafts and heads become simply a matter of mathematics.

"Scooters" Sparking Flying Hawks

MONTREAL (CP) — Chicago Black Hawks have been frustrated for 43 years in attempts to win the National Hockey League championship. But seldom have the chances appeared better than now.

The Hawks, who have not lost in the second half of the season, now have a nine-point lead atop the standings and an undefeated streak of eight games—seven victories and a tie.

Chicago joined the league in 1926 and has won the Stanley Cup three times. However, not even such Hawks stars as Doug and Max Bentley were able to carry the team to the league title.

This year, three Chicago shooters have been blasting goals at a hot pace, leading the team in victories and cleaning up league records.

Statistics released today by the NHL show that the Scooter Line of Chicago—Stan Mikita, Ken Wharram and Doug Mohns —has 39 goals, 84 assists and 143 points in 43 games.

The line scored six goals last week and 15 points.

At the pace set so far, it would finish 233 points, breaking the record of 226 points set by the Detroit Production Line of Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay and Norm Ullman in 1956-57.

The Hawks also have a chance to break the record 259 goals by a team in one season, set by Montreal Canadiens in 1961-62. They have 156 goals so far and could finish with 253 at the current pace.

Mikita continues to score at a rate that would put him above the 100-point mark and the individual record, set by teammate Bobby Hull last season at 97.

Mikita has 64 points, including a league-leading 42 assists. He is 17 ahead of Norm Ullman of Detroit.

Ullman's 47 points is one better than Wharram's total. Hull is fourth with 44 while Phil Goyette of New York Rangers moved to fifth from seventh by gaining five more points for a total of 41.

Bobby Rousseau of Montreal is sixth with 39 followed by Howe with 37, Rod Gilbert of New York and Pierre Pilote of Chicago, tied for eighth with 34 each, and Mohns with 33.

The goaltending battle among New York, Chicago and Montreal tightened, with only three percentage points separating the teams.

Charlie Hodge of the Canadiens has the best personal average, 2.29, and Ed Giacomin of the Rangers leads in shutouts with six.

All-Stars Whip Oshawa

OSHAWA (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association Junior A All-Stars went on a five-goal scoring spree in the final 40 minutes to beat Oshawa Generals 7-4 in an exhibition game Monday night.

Jude Drouin, Rick Smith, Stu Roberts, Larry Plesu, Gary Unger, Tim Ecclestone and Mike Byerd scored for the All-Stars.

Ron Dussiaume, George Babcock, Bill Little and Fred O'Donnell scored for Oshawa.

The All-Stars rebounded from a 3-2 deficit after 20 minutes to lead 4-3 at the end of the second period. The All-Stars outshot the Generals 39-26.

Bruce Durno and Rocky Farr split netminding chores for the Generals. Gerry Grey and Peter McDuffe worked in goal for the All-Stars.

The Generals were bolstered by Rick Ley, Derek Sanderson, Little and Durno of Niagara Falls Flyers and Farr of London Nationals.

Clay Plans "Picture Fight"

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Cassius Clay and Ernie Terrell had an appointment with the Texas boxing commission today in the Astrodome ring where they fight Monday night to settle the world's heavyweight championship.

After the preliminary weighin and physicial examination both boxers move into their final few workouts.

The Astrodome impresario, silent until Monday on the matter of the in-person gate, issued a prediction that more than 35,000 seats would be sold—more than were sold for Clay's brief encounter with hometown fighter Cleveland Williams last November.

Sonny Liston was due in Houston in time for today's weigh-in. When Clay heard Monday that he was on his way, he said, "I'd like to box him a few rounds," a notion promptly quashed.

Clay said he plans a fight of "about 10 rounds" Monday night.

"I plan to make this a picture fight," he said. "If it ends too soon, it'll mess up a new market. This fight will be seen in countries that have never seen a world heavyweight title fight before."

Driver-Trainer

Suspended Two Years

TORONTO (CP)— The Canadian Trotting Association Monday suspended driver - trainer Yvon Demers of Angers, Que., for two years.

The suspension denies Demers all privileges at all tracks in membership of the CTA. CTA suspensions are also honored by the U.S. Trotting Association.

Demers was suspended under two sections of the CTA rule: for his actions during the third race at Greenwood Raceway Thursday.

Greenwood presiding judge Allan McManus acted under Rule 20, Section 11, which deals with any person who fraudulently and corruptly commits an act injurious to the sport.

Demers was also tagged with Rule 18, Section 5b, for lack of effort due to an unsatisfactory drive.

He was driving Don Will, a 13-year-old pacer who finished second to Mountain George. The winner paid $14.

Centennials Defeat Army Reme

The teams will play another game in Kingston next Monday starting at 9 p.m.

Garry Jones and Woodcock sparked the win with two goals each Boomhower and Hylie Bryant scored the others.

St. Denis had three assists, Boomhower, Bryant and Pug Kellar two each. Mambert, Rowbotham and Smith drew singles.

Hall Cut Took 42 Stitches

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Black Hawks picked Bob Sneddon Monday night as backup goalie to Dennis DeJordy.

Sneddon is expected to fill in for Glenn Hall, who suffered a gash over his left knee Sunday night against Toronto. It required 42 stitches and Hall will miss several games.

Sneddon, in his first professional season with Chicago's farm club in St. Louis, is not expected to see action unless something should happen to DeJordy.

The Beauties Battle Tonight !

The long-awaited "Battle of the Beauties" is scheduled to stage at 8.00 sharp.

And if that's not enough, the Quinte McFarlands will play host to Trenton Apple Kings in a regular OHA Eastern Junior "B" fixture at 9.00 p.m.

And while the Macs desperately need a victory, much of the limelight tonight will focus on the girls' grudge game.

Meeting in the battle royal will be Ruth Calver's Picton "Amazins" and Dot McCaw's South Marysville "Hockets".

Word has it that the girls will be playing for keeps. And for good reason too. The pick of the two teams will be participating in the big girls' 13-team tournament in western Ontario around St. Valentine's Day. They call that one "The Lipstick Tournament". What a spot for "Soapy" Smith!

The opposing coaches for tonight have come up with lineups, and here they are:

PICTON "AMAZINS": 1, Toni "Cutie" Rondavedt, 2, Janice "Jake" Storms, 4, Gail "Lippy" Lloyd, 5, Brenda "Boo" Burley, 6, Maureen "Junior" Ryan, 7, Susan "Kelly" Calver, 8, Sue "Stretch" Hyatt, 9, Jane "Sam" Mulholland, 10, Glenna "Deac" Dockrill, 11, Betsy "Digger" Huff, 12, Patti "Killer" Dockrill, 13, Margie "Lucky" Shields, 14, Susan "Wyn" Ward, 15, Gwen "Boom Boom" Brodsky, 16, Nancy "Big N" Erwin, coach-by-day, manager — Mrs. Ruth Calver.

P.S. — There is a rumor that the player numbers are first digits in telephone numbers, but don't quote us!

Andrea Tops Central Pro

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Paul Andrea of Omaha Knights has taken a one-point lead in the Central Professional Hockey League scoring race.

Andrea, a native of North Sydney, N.S., is the top goal scorer in the league with 21 goals in 45 games. He also has 30 assists for a 54-points total.

Gerry Melnyk of Edmonton, veteran centre with St. Louis Braves, has 53 points on 19 goals and 34 assists. Team-mate Art Stratton of Winnipeg trails Melnyk with 52 points on 17 goals and 35 assists—tops in the league in that department.

Goaltender Wayne Rutledge of Omaha has a 3.07 goals-against average to lead the league.

Sanderson Retains Lead

NIAGARA FALLS Ont. (CP)— Although held to two goals and three assists in four games last week, Derek Sanderson of the third-place Niagara Falls Flyers retained his four-point lead over team-mate Jim Lorentz in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A scoring race.

With 29 goals and 41 assists, Sanderson has accounted for 70 points in the 36 games he has played, an average of almost two points per game.

Lorentz picked up five assists last week and now has 43 to go with his 23 goals for 66 points.

Peterborough's Gary Monahan made the biggest gain with seven points in three games to hold down third place with 65 points. Mickey Redmond of the Petes remained in fourth place but collected five goals in three games to pace the loop in that department with 36.

"Toots" Jrs. Challenge Centennials

That was "Toots" Holway, coach of the famous 1953 Bellevile Juniors who have been holding reunions "for these many years. He was referring to the City Centennial Hockey Club.

"So" said "Toots", "we throw the challenge at them and see what can be done. We might have to plug a few holes but it would be the greybeards centennial effort."

Each year the Juniors of the Fifties get together to play an hour or so of hockey then get together to reminisce.

Three of the original club have passed on, these are Rance Bush, Yake and Jerry Mohery killed in a railroad accident last year.

Ken Newman, manager of the Centennials when told of the upcoming challenge welcomed the idea. "We will be glad to play them. I think it will excite a lot of interest."

Goderich Minor Tournament

GODERICH, Ont. (CP)—The Eastern minor hockey tournament here grows a step closer Monday night to living up to the boast of its sponsors that it is the largest little hockey series in the world.

The 72-team event received entries from Pasadena, Calif., from one end of the continent and Conception Bay, Nfld., at the other.

The tournament, scheduled for the last week of March, also has entries from the Ontario communities of Cornwall and Sheddon.

"The Canadian Far West" Next in Travelogue Series

Don Cooper a lumberjack and most fascinating person will present a film entitled "The Canadian Far West," this coming Thursday evening when the Kiwanis Club of Belleville presents its fourth program of the 14th annual Travel and Adventure series.

Mr. Cooper was literally born and raised in the logging camps of Western Montana, son of the late George Cooper, Senator of Montana. He has spent eight years in the land of James Oliver Curwood and Robert Service and the "spell of the Yukon" also captured him. After ten years of logging in Alaska, Don decided that he had had enough of the hard-boiled north so he and his brother, Dennis, headed into the wilds of Canada.

The film is based on the efforts of Alexander Mackenzie to establish a route to the Pacific Ocean. As a result of his explorations, Mackenzie became the first man to cross the continent north of Mexico. His route traversed such a wild and hazardous part of the world that it was never used. However, it gave Canada its first valid claim to the West Coast and was of great importance in the subsequent boundary negotiations between the United States and Canada.

In viewing this film one will travel the portion of Mackenzie's trip from the western prairies to the sea.

Farley Mowat Champions Trapped Whale

BURGEO, Nfld. (CP)—News was scarce early today on the 80-ton fin whale trapped in a salt water pond.

The mammal became trapped while pursuing a school of herring 10 days ago.

Author - naturalist Farley Mowat, who appointed himself its guardian, said Monday it failed in several attempts to swim to the sea.

Telephone communications to Burgeo on the isolated south coast of Newfoundland broke down Monday shortly after Mr. Mowat told of the mammal. Burgeo, a hamlet of 1,500, has no road connections and is linked to the outside world by weekly steamer.

The plight of the whale has been brought to the attention of the Newfoundland government by Mr. Mowat, who feels it should provide for the animal.

Feeding the whale would not be a "permanent solution, just a way of keeping him alive until we can work out some method of getting him out," he said.

* * *

Mr. Mowat believes it is the first time a fin whale, second to the blue whale as the world's largest animal, has been trapped in North America.

He said that before he intervened residents were using the whale for target practice with high-powered rifles.

However, the whale appears friendly to humans, despite the hostile reception.

"He, or she, appears lonely and swims under or beside my boat at distances within six feet, offering no threats, although it could destroy 30-foot boats with one stroke of its huge tail," Mr. Mowat said in an interview.

FAILS TO ESCAPE

Mr. Mowat said the whale now "apparently believes he can't make it out."

He said the whale has been living on stored blubber and appears healthy. However, it already has lost "a considerable amount of weight and it's urgent to get food to him."

Mr. Mowat said there has been a good run of herring at the conception bay area but cannot fill the pond with fish, but they would have to be paid for it. "This is where the Newfoundland government could help."

Arctic Blizzard Kills Belugas

INUVIK, N.W.T. (CP) — An Arctic blizzard was blamed Monday for the death of three beluga whales that had survived since November by breathing through a small hole in the ice, 1,200 miles north of Edmonton.

Tom Runak, president of the Inuvik Lions Club, visited the site at Eskimo Lake, 30 miles northeast of Inuvik, Monday and found only a hole two feet square.

Tom Dillon of Inuvik, working overnight to keep the whales' breathing space open, told Mr. Runak winds gusted to over 50 miles an hour Thursday and it was impossible to keep the hole open.

Temperatures were estimated at 40 below zero.

The three whales were the only survivors of a herd of 17 which became trapped in Eskimo Lake by an early freeze in November. They were unable to swim 50 miles into the Beaufort Sea en route to wintering grounds in the Pacific Ocean.

Kingston Trio Disbands Cannot Stand Tom Dooley

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Kingston Trio, whose rhythmic folk songs started a guitar-twanging craze on college campuses, is giving up the act that has netted millions.

Bob Shane, Nick Reynolds and John Stewart announced Monday they will disband after June 1, even though the trio can still earn $750,000 annually.

The reason they give: The public won't let them sing anything but Tom Dooley and other standard folk tunes.

Ten years ago, American folk music was largely limited to avant garde night clubs and hillbilly boondocks. Then three California college boys took up guitars and banjo and formed a group they called the Kingston trio—so named because Harry Belafonte's calypso music was then the fad.

The lively harmony of Shane, Reynolds and Dave Guard, who later left and was replaced by Stewart, captured the fancy of the college crowd, especially with the record of Tom Dooley, which sold 3,000,000 copies.

Soon they were earning $1,000,000 a year from albums, TV commercials and appearances. New folk sinking acts sprang up all over and young Americans began thumping guitars and singing Across the Wide Missouri and Where Have All the Flowers Gone.

After singing Tom Dooley some 2,000 times, the Kingston Trio began to tire of the diet of sameness.

"We felt that folk music was moving in a new direction and we tried to change with the times," said Reynolds, "but we found audiences resented our trying something new."

Britain Rejects Dictation

LONDON (AP) — Britain told the world Monday it would not be dictated to in the picking of a sports team—even if the team is going to South Africa with a non-white player on its squad.

Denis Howell, minister of sport, informed the House of Commons that the Marylebone Cricket Club had told the government its team to tour South Africa in 1968-69 with Basil D'Oliveira, "a non-white South African and now a naturalized British citizen, would not be allowed to play in South Africa with England's cricket team."

"Could Feel Their Hatred" Says Rabbi of Red Guards

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC Monday night joined the China-watchers as that country of 700,000,000 people is gripped in a political upheaval.

CBS, in its special program Sunday night two ago, chose to handle the subject by gathering three expert China-watchers and discussing the second-hand reports.

NBC's method was to present dissertations by its Far East correspondents and a state department spokesman, plus the most interesting man of all, Rabbi Abraham Feinberg, rabbi emeritus of Toronto's Holy Blossom Temple, who recently spent four days inside China.

Feinberg said that upon arriving in one Chinese city, he was visited by authorities and asked not to have his room or take pictures.

"I could feel their hatred," he said. He also told of seeing Red Guards—young people—in groups all over the roads and the cities.

Feinberg spoke of demonstrations day and night—and of strange periods of silence.

"There were times when we sensed a demonic, dynamic spirit abroad. The Red Guards are like a tiger let loose. Mao has him by the tail but you wonder what will happen if he has to let go."

It was, generally, a well-organized summary of a murky situation.

The Fugitive, ABC's long-running series about a man on the run, is likely to come to a halt at the end of this season, a victim of competition from NBC's movie reruns Tuesday nights. In any event, Feb. 21, the pursued and the pursuer will get together.

Dr. Kimble, who now has been on the lam from a murder rap for four years, will catch up with the one-armed man he thinks killed his wife, and the policeman who is chasing Kimble also will be part of the show.

But while most cancelled series quietly disappear, when The Fugitive departs it will leave with style and class. When the series began, two episodes were written to wrap up the theme and format heroine of the new musical Walking Happy. She portrays the determined young daughter of a stern Victorian family who escapes rhabitual boredom by a double cobbler, encacted by Norman Wisdom.

When a mere male suggests she is far too handsome ever to face such a bittersweet predicament, she coolly retorts:

"Aren't most of the women you mea marry like that? They look for a man who is a bit weaker-willed and then dress him and make him behave like their idea of an upper-middle class ideal. I have no idea myself what that is, but they do, and then they wonder why marriages break up."

BEGAN WITH VOTE

She traces the rise of female domestic dominance back to the suffrage movement.

"I think" it was getting the vote that did it," she says. "That was the start of modern women." Electoral emancipation, in other words, opened women's eyes to masculine shortcomings in other areas. Which made the ladies unhappy deep down.

"I think women are more defensive and vulnerable by nature, but when men find evil out nowadays, they shy away.

Liquor With Meals Begins on Sunday

TORONTO (CP)—Diners will have the option of wine, beer or whisky with their meals in about 800 Ontario restaurants starting Sunday.

H. J. Browne, registrar of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board, Monday said about 600 operators have written for permission to serve drinks with meals and only 100 will be turned down.

Decrees on Sunday privileges will be granted only to establishments whose records show they make more money on food than on liquor.

Aim of the rule is to ensure that liquor service on Sunday goes with full - scale meals—snacks will not be enough, Mr. Browne said.

There are about 1,600 establishments in the province eligible to apply for Sunday privileges.

Many Women Remain Spinsters After Donning Wedding Ring

NEW YORK (AP) — Many women are spinsters even though they wear a wedding ring, says Louise Troy, who has been mulling the matter on Broadway a good deal lately.

The fault, fellows, is ours, somehow.

"A spinster," as the stage star defines it, "is a person who hasn't a feeling of confidence in herself as a woman because she is afraid men will let her down."

"So she develops a hard shell —I think that's what a lot of women today do with their work. She learns to rely on herself."

Miss Troy is the tall, dark and offbeat heroine of the new musical Walking Happy. She portrays the determined young daughter of a stern Victorian family who escapes rhabitual boredom by a double cobbler, encacted by Norman Wisdom.

When a mere male suggests she is far too handsome ever to face such a bittersweet predicament, she coolly retorts:

"Aren't most of the women you mea marry like that? They look for a man who is a bit weaker-willed and then dress him and make him behave like their idea of an upper-middle class ideal. I have no idea myself what that is, but they do, and then they wonder why marriages break up."

BEGAN WITH VOTE

She traces the rise of female domestic dominance back to the suffrage movement.

"I think" it was getting the vote that did it," she says. "That was the start of modern women." Electoral emancipation, in other words, opened women's eyes to masculine shortcomings in other areas. Which made the ladies unhappy deep down.

"I think women are more defensive and vulnerable by nature, but when men find evil out nowadays, they shy away.

The result is women feel more let down and develop even greater self-reliance."

Halting that vicious cycle, she concedes, "would require a fantastic overhaul of personalities."

In her personal life, Miss Troy concedes, she is "a determined fighter, for my beliefs" and a bachelor girl who reluctantly "seems to attract weaker men."

Comparing her and those stage personalities, she says: "I think I could take someone and build up his ego, but I wouldn't marry him. In the days of Walking Happy that was the only way a woman could get what she wanted — now she doesn't have to."

The audience response and fan mail she has been getting reinforce her belief that spinsterdom strikes a widely responsive note with the general populace.

Miss Troy, who is about 30 and stands five-foot-eight, got the part after an inordinate number of auditions. Having played leads in such diverse items as, A Dolly Heads and High Spirits, she nevertheless acquiesced to retest after retest.

"At one audition I sang one number from the score five times. Every time it was that song. Make a Man, I think, 'O Lord, another audition.'"

MGM Leader in Preserving Vast History of the Screen

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Some what belatedly, the movie industry discovered the gold mine in film vaults, and efforts now are being made to protect that valuable lode.

During the first four decades of film history, little was done to preserve the movies pouring out of Hollywood. After a feature had exhausted its money-making potential, the negative was shoved into a vault and forgotten. Except for a rare classic that might warrant another release there was no reason to be concerned about preserving old films.

Television changed that. By selling their old movies for use on the home screen, studios maintained a financial equilibrium during the theatre depression of the 1950s. Then they became vitally interested in protecting their archives.

"In some cases it was too late," explains a film veteran. "The early films were put on paper film, which became moldy and bug-ridden with age. Sometimes you'd open a can of old film and find nothing but dust.

"Later the movies were put on nitrate film, which is dangerous because it can explode spontaneously. Whole libraries of precious old films have been wiped out by fires. Not until the introduction of safety film in 1949 could negatives be preserved without danger of loss or fire."

MGM is a leader in the preservation of the vast history of the screen. Unlike other companies, MGM has never sold its film; all of its television deals have been on a lease basis.

"Some time ago we became concerned about preserving our films against any contingency," says Raymond Klune, studio manager.

"We decided to make duplicate negatives of all our movies and place them in a repository where they could not be harmed. Now we have copies of all the features back to 1926."

The studio hunted for the best place to store the negatives and found it in salt caves near Hutchinson, Kan. These are used for storing government documents, corporation files—and movie negatives.

First of the MGM films to be stored in the salt mines was the 1933 cowboy epic The Wind, with the late Canadian - born Marie Dressler, and Wallace Beery. Since then many of the features have been deposited, including the studio's most valuable asset, Gone with the Wind.

"All of the films have been copied in the new 'safety' process," Klune explained. "It is a remarkable device that cures scratches on the original negative. When we re-issued Gone with the Wind later this year, prints will be struck from the new negative, with the result that the film will be even better than when it was originally released."

Yesterday's Puzzle Solved:

Royal Bank Interest Unchanged

MONTREAL (CP) — A Royal Bank of Canada spokesman said Monday the bank does not anticipate any changes in lending rates for the present time. Friday,the Bank of Canada cut the Canadian bank rate to 5 per cent from 5¼ per cent and the bank's governor, Mr. Louis Rasminsky said the cut "should be taken as an indication of the bank's view that the recent easing of credit conditions was appropriate to Canada's domestic economic circumstances and its external financial position.

Referring to this statement, the Royal Bank spokesman said, "From the wording of the Bank of Canada announcement . . . it might be assumed that easier lending rates will eventually follow. At the present time, however, we do not anticipate any change."

Spring Loans by Ottawa to Allow Speculative House Building

OTTAWA (CP) — A $300,000,000 shot in the arm was administered Monday to the lagging home construction industry.

Labor Minister Nicholson announced in the Commons a special two-month spring program of direct government loans to builders for the construction of 30,000 housing units without the usual prosale requirement.

It would be limited to 16,000 single-family homes and 4,000 rental units with loans to be granted between April 1 and May 31.

Similar programs were adopted to spur winter home years. They involved 34,000 building during the last two units and $461,000,000 in 1965; 37,000 units and $544,000,000 in 1963.

Opposition spokesmen said the move didn't go far enough to meet what they termed a national crisis.

Said NDP Leader Douglas: "The proposal . . . is about as adequate to meet a housing crisis as it would be to feed a peanut to an elephant in hope of assuaging its hunger."

George Chatterton (PC—Esquimalt - Saanich) complained that the cost of housing has increased so rapidly the average wage-earner cannot afford a National Housing Act loan, or a house built with one.

Raymond Langlois (Credit-iste-Megantic) likened the plan to using a plastic bandage when a major cure is called for and A. B. Patterson (SC—Fraser Valley) said it was only a "small mercy."

A government spokesman said the idea is to get the building industry off to a solid spring start and hope that additional financing will be generated from private sources.

Last year private lenders, who usually finance four of every five homes built under NHA's government - guaranteed mortgage plan, turned away from the housing market because of more attractive interest rates in industrial construction.

Standard NHA loans require the contract signatures of a prospective buyer before the builder gets his money. Direct lending allows the construction of speculative housing.

Mr. Nicholson said the spring program will be regulated in see that big cities do not drain off all the money. Smaller centres and depressed resource areas will get their share.

The program was an apparent admission by the government that new policies have not attracted private capital back into the housing field.

In recent months NHA has been expanded to cover purchases of older homes, the NHA lending rate has been advanced to 7¼ per cent, and changes have been proposed in the Bank Act to put the chartered banks back in the mortgage business for the first time in eight years.

First and Only Centennial, MLA Predicts

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The doom of Canada as a nation within 100 years and inevitable economic union with the United States was forecast in the Newfoundland legislature Monday.

While legislatures in British Columbia and Manitoba tackled less gloomy subjects, Confederation also entered discussions in the Ontario house.

"This is going to be our first and only chance to observe a centennial as I don't think Canada will see another," said Wilfred J. Keough, Newfoundland minister of mines, agriculture and resources.

He said in the throne speech debate that "anyone who thinks that Canada is a nation now is on an LSD jag."

Mr. Keough said even the United States will not survive in its present format.

". . . The sheer mechanics of survival in this last half of the 20th century will dictate there can be only one nation from the Gulf of Mexico to the North Pole."

In the Ontario house, a Progressive Conservative member charged there is division between Ontario Liberals and the federal government over a proposal pertaining to Confederation.

Paul Yakabuski (PC — Renfrew South) said Robert Nixon, new provincial Liberal leader, is opposed to a conference on Confederation suggested in the throne speech debate.

Mr. Yakabuski said Prime Minister Pearson has approved the proposal and has suggested it be put on the agenda at the next federal-provincial conference in Ottawa.

In Victoria, a New Democratic MLA urged Premier W. A. C. Bennett and his Social Credit government to call off a royal commission now investigating the electronic bugging of a Canadian pulp union's convention.

David Stupich, member for Nanaimo, said the commission "seemed far more interested in listening in—they just seemed to want to get in on the eaves dropping."

The commission was ordered by Premier Bennett after the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada reported discovering listening devices at its Vancouver convention last November.

In Winnipeg, Health Minister C. H. Whitney told the legislature that legislation delineating the work of denturists and dental mechanics in Manitoba now is being prepared.

Indonesia Minister Implores Army's Chief to Oust Sukarno

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Foreign Minister Adam Malik today called on Indonesian Army strongman Gen. Suharto to use any means, including force, to topple President Sukarno.

Malik said the only way to end divided leadership in running the country's affairs was to use the emergency powers given to Gen. Suharto last March 11.

On that date troops ringed President Sukarno's palace here while he transferred full authority to Suharto.

Addressing student leaders who are demanding Sukarno's dismissal and trial for alleged complicity in the attempted Communist coup of 1965, Malik said Suharto should use his special powers to remove Sukarno from office.

The Indonesian people should not be sacrificed for one man, Malik said.

"The current tension here is caused by dualism," Malik said, "and as a comrade in arms I have advised the president."

But the foreign minister made clear that Sukarno does not wish to hear any advice.

Earlier today, Malik warned that Sukarno would be doomed if he tried to dissolve the supreme policy - making People's Consultative Congress.

Singer Introduces Bill To Amend Loan Act

TORONTO (CP)—Leo Bernier, the Ontario legislature's new Progressive Conservative member for Kenora, sought less provincial government discrimination against northwestern Ontario in his maiden speech in the legislature Monday.

He said many of his constituents feel that "to a certain extent they are still eating the crumbs from the tables of the East."

Mr. Bernier, elected in a by-election Sept. 22, said Northern Ontario is even discriminated against in maps on the walls of offices at Queen's Park. He said the southern Ontario maps were on a scale of eight miles to the inch and Northern Ontario maps 32 miles to the inch.

In moving the address in reply to the throne speech, Mr. Bernier also attacked provincial Liberals for their lack of co-operation with the federal government.

SAYS LIBERALS FOUGHT

He charged that the periods of Liberal rule in Ontario, from 1871 to 1905 and 1934 to 1942, were marked by "jurisdictional and other quarrels with the federal government. . . ."

In other business Monday:

—Vernon Singer (L—Downview) introduced a bill to amend the Loan and Trust Corporation Act by providing deposit insurance for persons who invest in companies under provincial control. He also introduced a bill to name an ombudsman to investigate "administrative decisions and acts of officials of the government of Ontario and its agencies. . . ."

—Attorney - General Arthur Wishart told the legislature that officials of the Ontario Securities Commission proposed last June that the faltering Prudential Finance Corp. be placed in receivership. He said, however, that no legal basis could be found to appoint a receiver and the commission made no recommendation for such an appointment.

—Mr. Wishart also said that provincial police use electronic devices in collecting evidence only in cases where the public interest is at stake.

—Mr. Bernier proposed that the provincial government set up an Indian affairs commission to "regain the trust" of Ontario's Indian population.

Mr. Bernier was joined in his attack on the Liberal opposition by Paul Yakabuski (PC—Renfrew South) who said that Robert Nixon, new Ontario Liberal leader, appears already to be in disagreement with Prime Minister Pearson over a proposed federal-provincial conference.

The conference, to discuss problems of Confederation, was proposed last week in the throne speech.

Mr. Yakabuski said the proposal appears to have received "wide enthusiasm even in the highest levels of the federal Liberal party."

"Yet here in Ontario, the leader of the Opposition has come out squarely against the conference. . . ."

Mr. Nixon has told reporters he would attend such a conference, but he suggested it would have been more correctly called by Mr. Pearson.

Retire and Live Longer Gerontologist Claims

WINNIPEG (CP) — Studies have shown older people who retire live longer than those who continue to work, Dr. Wilma Donahue of Ann Arbor, Mich. said Monday.

Dr. Donahue, gerontology division chairman at the University of Michigan, said at a news conference statistics indicate most retired people die not die as a result of leaving work.

"These people tend on average to live longer and healthier than their cohorts who did not retire."

She said most old people are not interested in working during their old age, contrary to what many younger people have said.

Dr. Donahue, here for the annual meeting of the Age and Opportunity Bureau, predicted the United States will provide a guaranteed income to retired people which will be related to the cost of living and the annual increase in the national income.

Holy Man Ends Fast

Jagatguru Shankaracharya began eating again in Puri, if eastern India's Orissa state, after a 72-day fast. Prabhudutt Brahmachari also had fasted for 72 days when he quit in New Delhi Monday.

The two holy men apparently were satisfied by a compromise formula worked out with Prime Minister Gandhi's government.

Details of this have not been revealed. Presumably the central government will ask those few states which still permit cow slaughter to adopt legislation protecting all cattle, regarded as sacred by Hindus.

DETROIT (CP) — A Detroit-area food chain announced Monday it is scrapping trading stamps in favor of contributions to a customer savings-account plan.
